FIRST TELEGRAPH MESSAGE

IMPORTANT FROM MONTEVIDEO. November 27, 11.55 a.m. [First Telegram received.] Great excitement in Calle Misiones.

This telegram was received at the Standard office at 15 minutes past 12 o'clock.

EDITOR'S TABLE

To-day we publish the first through telegram from Montevideo. We congratulate Mr. Oldham on the triumph of his long and incessant labors.

At the Telegraph office in Calle Cangallo there was the most intense excitement, mingled with a slight sparkling of champagne.

We hear that on or about the 17th December the neighbors of Salto intend holding their first races.

Yesterday one of the boys of the National College whilst bathing off the mole got beyond his depth and got drowned; he was of respectable parents, and the corpse was carried up to the College.

The steamer Guarani in her last trip went right up the 'arroyo' to Goya, which is a great convenience for the travelling public.

Yesterday was the hottest day we have had this season. Up in the wool plazas the heat was something indescribable.

This summary jurisdiction is found a great boon to all in the plazas, as the tedious method of carrying on lawsuits is now abolished.

Private advices from the West Coast are of an alarming nature. It seems that the Allied Chilean and Peruvian fleet have been ordered round to the east coast of South America.

We think it right to call attention to the very crowded state of the Brazilian Hospital.

We hear that on or about the 17th December the neighbors of Salto intend holding their first races.

Some English ladies have requested us to complain of the language used by some of the employees on the Boca Railway.

Yesterday we had a visit from Capt. Fitzmorris, of the allied engineering staff. He came down in the Guarani, and will remain a few days in town.

The Marquis of Caxias is, after all, a most active man: hardly had he arrived at Corrientes than he discovered that the Paraguayans were smuggling in all sorts of stores and provisions.

The National Government has paid the 6th and 7th calls on the shares of the Central Argentine Railway, held by Generals and officers.

Fitzmorris, of the allied engineering staff. He came down in the Guarani, and will remain a few days in town.

On Saturday the Vice-President accompanied by his aide-de-camps, paid an official and congratulatory visit to Archbishop Escalada.

We notice that the National Government has just paid the very large sum of twenty-eight thousand patacons for the survey of the Eastern Argentine Railway.

When does Mr. Fox leave for Paraguay? Several parties have called on us for an answer to this question.

A small 'parque' of artillery has been shipped up to Rosario, for Gen. Paunero's division: we believe six new steel Prussian guns, recently purchased by the National Government.

We salute our old correspondent "Cuevas"—Capt. George H. Lowry, on his assuming command of the splendid steamer Provedor.

The Marquis of Caxias is, after all, a most active man: hardly had he arrived at Corrientes than he discovered that the Paraguayans were smuggling in all sorts of stores and provisions.

In the 'terna,' or municipal list of candidates for Justice of the Peace, sent in to Government from the Fortin district, we notice the name of Mr. Duffy.

I learn that Tamandare remains in command of the fleet till his successor arrive from Rio Janeiro: Barros and Elizario both declined the command.

The Marquis of Caxias has been to Curuzú and seems resolved either to evacuate the place or to fortify 2,000 men there under cover of the guns of the fleet.
