The new steamer, Villa del Salto, for Mr. Marshall has renovated her from bow to stern, is at last afloat. On Thursday afternoon, the Riachuelo being high, she steamed out. She is now one of the best steamers in the river. She is chartered to the Government for her first voyage.

Yesterday we had news from the Uruguay. The reports about Urquiza's army still are current. It is positively asserted that all the cavalry have cleared out, and that some 200 or 300 infantry have also decamped. The best thing to do is to send the whole Entre Riano contingent on furlough.

An Englishman, who has been or board the steamer San Roman, which is at presentlying in the outer roads, We made the return trip in three bound for Brazil, called to inform us hours, arriving off the mole at 5.30 that he has just seen one of the balls extracted from the shoulder of a Brazi lian, and that the bullet is of extraorculiarly dangerous, as the composition of the ball poisons the flesh. The American war-steamer Mohongo which sailed some months ago from Montevideo for Valparaiso had not up to latest dates arrived at that port; great fears as to her safety are beginning to be entertained.

It is surpassingly strange how the people in Montevideo know more about what is going on in the allied camp than what we do here in Buenos Ayres. Our readers may recollect that days before the surrender of Uruguayana was known here letters were received here from English houses in Montevideo announcing in the most positive terms that Estigarribia had surrendered; nobody believed them at the time yet they proved ultimately to bemost exact. Now all the talk in the Mount is a peace, which in Buenos Ayres nobody knows anything about. The Oriental officers have sent word to engage rooms for them at the Oriental and other hotels: people here laugh at the idea of peace although there it is regarded as already concluded.

Mrs. McBrittain, a worthy English lady, has started an English school at No. 115 Calle Piedras; some gentlemen occupying influential positions amongst us have requested us to recommend this lady's school as first class. We readily and willingly comply.

The shower of black insects supposed to have been clocks but now proved to be earwigs is still the great subject of comment in town; nobody knows from whence they came, although some ship captains hint they escaped from the Policia; it is really a most extraordinary phenomenon. Some years ago the place was visited by a shower of frogs, in the camp districts nothing is commoner than a shower of mice. We hope some scientific gentlemen will favor us with an essay on the subject which really merits attention and enquiry.
