STEAM CULTIVATION. The growing interest and attention paid to the introduction of agricultural, in room of pastoral, pursuits in the boundless regions of our pampas, renders the problem of the advantages of steam cultivation one of para interested in the welfare and prosperity of these countries. We will, therefore, endeavor to trace out a broad and general sketch of the progress and present condition of this important application in England, where steam is gradually superseding every other motive power in conducting farming operations. The first idea which naturally occurred in applying steam power to cultivate land, was that of attaching the motive power direct to the implement, but experience has proved that the power required to move a steamengine over the land of sufficient power | tween Europe and Brazil an easier and weight for traction purposes is undertaking. impracticable, which renders absolutely necessary the use of a rope, by

The first use of the rope was by placing the engine at a side or corner of the field to be cultivated, and leading the rope all round the margin of the field, with two moveable anchors at the line of traverse, and the ends as far as the Azores; and in four of the rope being attached to two years to Halifax. The Portuguese winding drums at the engine, giving out and taking in the rope.

But this rectangular arrangement involved a great deal of fixing of materials, and was gradually modified until the plan was adopted of combining the power of two small-sized engines, each of them provided with

To this great advance in the manufacture of steel wire rope the present success of steam cultivation is mainly attributable. The steel rope at present used is 11.16th inch diameter, weighing about albs. per yard, about 14cwts. for a has been raised from £60 to £84.

The implements hitherto used for steam cultivation have been somehas been arranged for throwing up the around. land in the roughest possible way, and leaving it in such a state as to expose acted upon by the air, which is the long and almost 2 wide, with some only truly practical way of dealing picturesque islands near the demesne with heavy land.

In order that steam cultivation may be brought to the greatest perfection, it is of the utmost importance that the use of horses and bullocks in cultivation should be altogether abandoned. Nervous Power. DR. CHURCHILL'S in every country in the world, for the cure of the above complaints:—

Syrup of Hypophosphite of Soda,
Byrup of Hypophosphite of Lime,
Pills of Hypophosphite of Quinine, and in cases where ferruginous preparations are required (chlorosis, anemia, etc.), the Syrup of Hypophosphite of Irom, Pills of Hypophosphite of Magnese.

These valuable medicines have saved the lives of many consumptive patients. Even in the third stage their boneficial effects have been manifested frequently. In every instance, however far advanced in the disease, the patient will find a marked improvement, both in local and general symptoms. There will be observed a remarkable increase of nervous power, a better appetite, greater regularity of the bowels, better digestion, less cough, less expectoration, less susceptibility of catching cold, less perspiration at night, etc.

Dr. Churchill's Hypophosphites are sold, with directions for use, at four france per bottle, in France, by Swann, Pharmacien, 12, Rue Castiglione, Paris.
