The colonists cut off from civilization, will die of starvation in the vast wilds of Entre Rios. To follow the Gaucho to his wilds a cavalry force fully armed and equipped on the new system is necessary.

The Gaucho will only bow to civilization when he conquers him on horseback. The day when one thousand armed Gauchos are beaten by a squadron of one hundred and twenty horses, and when the Porteno proves his superiority on horseback as well as on foot, that day the 'chiripa' will be convinced of the superiority of the dweller in towns, and if he cannot adopt the new customs he will decide on submitting to them.

The struggle with the 'chiripa' is about to commence, and the Argentine army is not ready—it wants cavalry.

THE BARADERO COLONY.

Buenos Ayres, April 14. To the Editors of the STANDARD. Gentlemen:

Having visited lately the Baradero Colony, I will give you some account of it.

You are well aware that the colony began in the year 1836 with a small number of families from the Canton of Fribourg, in Switzerland, who, having applied too late for admission at Esparanza, on the Castellanos contract, resolved to come out here at all hazards, and had the good fortune to find in the hands of kind and god-fearing persons like Mr. Guizot, the present Minister of War, and his brother-in-law, Mr. Frers. These gentlemen, and some of their friends possessing estates in the neighborhood of Baradero, induced the Municipality of that town to establish those emigrants upon some lands belonging to the same. Successively the colony has increased to its present state, taking up all the lands which the Municipality had to dispose of.

The little town of Baradero is situated on a small arm of the Parana, about 5 or 6 leagues south of San Pedro. On the brink of the river only a few houses are to be seen; the town itself lies a little inside, on the top of the 'baranca,' at a few minutes distance. On entering it, the first building that catches your eye is a large school-house, meant for a college, but where at present only elementary teaching is being delivered. The Plaza, which takes the middle of the town, and lies about two squares farther, is rather better than could be expected in so small a place; it is planted with 'paraisos,' according to the custom of this country, and surrounded by decent-looking azotea houses. In a corner of it stands a pretty large church, of very regular construction. There is no inn, and only two or three taverns, frequented chiefly by gauchos, and offering very little or no accommodation for travellers. This little town may have about 1,000 inhabitants.

The colony lies just round the town, and cannot properly be considered as forming a separate settlement, since it occupies the suburbs of the town, and stands under the same justice of peace and municipality as the latter. To the north the country extends for about one league, being bounded in and watered by the Rio Arceifes, which flows from west to east into the Baradero arm of the Parana. Another affluent of the latter, the Tala, almost coming from a more northerly starting point, it forms with the other river a triangle, the inside of which is a very fine estancia, belonging to a German.

To the south of the town the colony extends to about two leagues, and its depth towards the west is about one league, so that it occupies on the whole a space of nearly three square leagues. The country is not flat but undulated; the view of the colony is picturesque, because the settlers have planted a good many trees. The houses are all of bricks, and the greatest part have 'azotea' roofs. The land has been divided into very small farms of only two hundred varas on each side, or four square cuadras of 100 varas. A road of thirty varas runs round every cuadra, and the latter are all fenced in with wire and 'cua-civa' hedges. One such cuadra was given to every masculine member of a family, above childhood, so that one family could get several cuadras. The conditions were—to build a house, fence and plant trees. These portions of land are a great deal too small, for 11 such cuadras do not amount to one concession of Santa Fé. These are of twenty cuadras to 150 varas, being 45,000 varas square, whereas a cuadra of Baradero is only 40,000 varas square.

The reason why the municipality of Baradero divided its land in so small lots was, because they wished to establish as many families as possible in the suburbs of the town wherein they perfectly succeeded. And even now that the colonists feel themselves too much crowded and see the necessity of getting more land, the greater part of them will not go away, but rather buy convenient lots from the neighboring estancieros. But in the colony houses and fences will become useless, and some arrangement will become necessary to take into cultivation a part of the roads which are a great deal too many.

The colonists have been able to content themselves for a long time with so small pieces of ground because from the beginning the chief produce of the colony has been potatoes, of which two crops are raised in one year. For several years the price of this article has been very high, reaching 25 paper dollars per arroba. Of late, however, the price has fallen very much; this year it has been so low as 5 paper dollars, going up again to 14.

The soil of Baradero is peculiarly adapted to potatoe growing, but a too continuous cultivation of the same produce must end in exhaustion everywhere, and this is what the people are beginning to realize. This year's crop has declined already, and especially the second one which is now in the ground, is very late and exposed to be lost if an early frost should set in. Therefore the colonists are now on the look out for other produce. They have as yet little experience with tobacco growing, and to raise wheat they must needs have much more space. The principal produce of the colony next to potatoes has hitherto been corn, which the people always sold at remunerative prices.

The soil is black loam, mixed with a little sand, to the depth of from six inches to two feet, the average being one foot, then comes a layer of red earth and afterwards the yellow clay generally met with in this country, and which grows harder the deeper you dig. This part of the ground abounds in petrifications of fishes, bones, wood, &c. The wells are very deep, as deep as 25 or 26 varas. The water is sweet and very good.

The colonists have no firewood besides what they can collect from the trees planted by themselves. They burn bisnaga and other large weeds, cornstalks, &c. I was unable to get exact or even approximate information as to the population and productions of the colony; but as the people complain of being too thickly settled on about three square leagues of land, and as their cuadras are very small indeed, and I suppose there can be little less than 300 families, or from 1500 hundred to 2000 individuals in the colony; the greater part of them are Swiss, then come Italians, Basques, Frenchmen, Germans, &c., and even a number of natives. Every family raised yearly from 1000 to 2000 arbores of potatoes, besides a good crop of corn. Wheat has been cultivated hitherto for the people's own use only, but now they are seriously intent upon increasing this production; indeed two or three reaping machines have already been introduced into the colony this year. A fine horse-power mill is to be found there, and on the bank of the river there is a steam-mill, arranged so as to be able to work by water-power also as often as the state of the river will allow it, which proves to be about two months a year.

With regard to cattle the colonists are very limited by want of pasture ground, having nothing but their small farms. The first families who came out, however, and who are established along the Rio Arceifes, have an opportunity of letting their cattle graze on the low grounds by the water, and are able to keep a larger number of animals. For laboring purposes horses are generally employed.

The Swiss colonists of the Baradero make a very good cheese. Besides the large schoolhouse in town there is a still larger and finer building for the same purpose in the colony, the teacher is a German, but I understand the attendance on the part of the pupils is but scanty. There is no other church but that of the towns; the protestant colonists content themselves with receiving from time to time a visit from the German clergyman of Buenos Ayres.

On Sunday afternoon the people of the colony used to gather at the house of a Swiss colonist whose sons are professional players on brass instruments, and to enjoy a rustic dance on a brick pavement erected for this purpose, a side of the house; there is moreover in the colony a pretty good military band under the direction of a Swiss music master.

In no other colony to my knowledge have individual families acquired so much money, there is one family among the first settlers, which possesses one and a half million paper dollars, others have saved one million, and half a million and so on. These people have been rather sharp; as soon as they got any money to lay by they used to lend it out at a very high interest, so that the people of Baradero were induced to ask the Provincial Bank for a branch establishment in their little town, this has been granted and the Baradero Bank to which, that of Buenos Ayres gives only a capital of half a million paper dollars has always an average of three and a half millions, deposits from the colonists, and operates with four millions.

As yet the first settlers are the only ones who possess the lands allotted to them by the Municipality. All the others are most desirous to buy their farms, but they have not been allowed to do so up to the present day. A rent of ninety paper dollars a year is to be paid to the Municipality for every cuadra of four cuadras, and this forms a part of the income of the said Corporation. On the contrary, if the lands be sold the Municipality is obliged to hand over the price to the Provincial Government. This has been a motive for postponing the sale as long as possible on the part of the Municipality. They even went so far as to set on the lands the exorbitant price of 300 dollars per square of 100 varas, in order to scare the colonists from buying, but five or six families went to San Pedro and bought land there at a moderate price. Whereupon the Municipality of Baradero got afraid, that many others would follow this example, so they reduced the price to $350 mg., which the colonists are ready to pay. Nevertheless, no sale has been effected as yet. The colonists accuse the Municipality of wilful delay, and the Municipality says they want to sell the lands to the occupants without public auction, and they cannot do it without a special authorization from the Government, which they are expecting. It is to be hoped that this question will be solved ere long, for it is quite natural and proper that the colonists should be owners of their lands.

Perfect harmony exists between the colonists and the natives, with whom they are continually in intercourse as well in town as in the colony. The Municipality of Baradero, has no more lands to give to new-comers, but the estancieros in the neighborhood are willing to sell convenient lots at moderate prices, and on easy terms. I have the honor to be Gentlemen, Very truly yours, CHARLES BECIBERNAUD.

ON 'CHANGE.

April 23 1870. Oncoes, 400 Sovereigns 1224 Patcoens 25 Nat. Bonds 65 There were no sales cash in the bond market today, but prices are very firm. One well-known native capitalist took up close on 100,000 bonds, this infused a fresh spirit into the market and the bulls talked confidently of higher prices. The Entre Riano affair is still the great topic of conversation. The news received to-day is recorded as of a favorable character, still it is not supposed that the affair will blow over quickly as many think, and it was said amongst the brokers that even supposing the whole affair blows over soon, the outlay to the country will be close on two millions. National bonds are however, too well held to suffer any serious fall, and the probabilities are that prices will improve when the alarm subsides. In exchange there has been a large business done. The rate on England runs to-day at 49 1/2 week. On France 5 1/2-5 1/5. On Antwerp 5 1/2-5 1/5. Total amount passed up to the present, £200,000 sterling. In the produce market there is the greatest activity, particularly in dry hides and wool. The sales are unimportant, save one lot of 12,000 hides from Cuyaba at 46 rs. Several small lots of wool have been sold in the plaza and in deposit— 600 arr. good merino 6 1/2 300 do mixed 5 1/2 1500 lambs 5 1/2 Some lots of madero sheepskins at 145 per dozen. 1100 dry cow hides, comp. 147 per parda. 50 casks tallow mutton, received price. 200 arr. guano, 40 per arr. Almost everything in the Plaza has risen in price. The arrivals from the country are slight, and show a falling off. Advertisements have been received by the packet announcing the appointment of Messrs. G. N. Bunn and Co. as agents for the Royal Mail Steam Packet Co. Mr. Benn, the head of the line, is well and favorably known here, and will doubtless prove an active agent for the Company. Mr. J. H. Green, manager of the London and River Plate Bank, leaves to-day to catch the Chilean steamer in Montevideo, for England. Mr. Green was accompanied to the pier head by a large crowd of friends. Mr. Eck Bernard, Argentine Emigration Agent in Switzerland, leaves to-morrow (Sunday) in the Borgoyne for Europe. Mr. Dominguez, Special Agent for the Government of Buenos Ayres, to negotiate the Provincial Loan, we understand leave in the same steamer. To-morrow (Sunday) the auction of cuadra lands at Jepperau takes place. The lands will be sold without reserve. The sale of the Hargreave property in Calle Piedras Nos. 75, 77 and 79 is attracting attention. The sale is a judicial one, and will take place at the Cabildo on the evenings of the 25, 26 and 27 inst.; there is an offer for the premises already of $700,000 mg. The property is 12 1/2, and an old house of alios. This offer is equal to $2,800 per vara, or $56,000 per vara front. This is a remarkable evidence of the rise in house property. A house in Calle Defensa near Lezama's quinta, 10x70 has been sold for $100,000. The bond sales to-day were as follows— For Monday 11,000 1/2 Friday 5,000 651 Saturday 50,000 652 May 31 60,000 66 June 30 10,000 66 Money was felt to-day a shade easier, and a general disposition to advance on National Bonds. Our special reporter from the South Plaza gives us the following important weekly review: The week has been remarkable for the great amount of business done in every kind of produce and for the rise in prices. Great demand for every kind of produce. Wool—Gleanings 45, 52, 55, and 56; merino 58, 60, 62, 65, and 68; fine merino 70, 72, 75, and 4 notable lot in deposit sold by Souza Martins & Co. at 80 a piece that has not been reached for a long time. Dry hides—A great demand and prices firm. sales 140, 143, 144, and 146, and it said so high as 148. Sheepskins—Great demand for every kind; catkins 50, 55, 60, and up to 60; campo 120, 130 and 145; madero 150, 160, 170, and extra line at 216. The arrivals of produce during the week have been small, and only from remote parishes, viz., Tandil, Loberia, Azul, &c. Cattle—Fat oxen 25 to 300; fat cows 20 to 250; calves 45 to 55. Weathers—25, 25, and 30; capones and sheep 'polados' 20, 25, to 30. Lambs—For market by rail, dead or alive, 12 to 14. MARRIAGE. April 18, by the Rev. James Smith, Captain Wm.
