TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 21, 1871. DEATH OF CANON FAHY.

Father Fahy died yesterday morn g at 5 o'clock. This simple announcement will carry grief to thousands of bearts, and the loss of this venerable priest will be regarded by all as a public calamity. For more than a quarter of a century his name has been identified with the welfare of the large Irish community, whose interests spiritual and temporal, may be said to have been exclusively in his care. I s not possible in our parrow limits to recite the long and valued services this remarkable man; his biography can best be told in the fact that, afte in indefatigable and well-spent life, b has succumbed a martyr to his sacre ealling, leaving behind him the me nory of many good works, and a name hat will long be affectionately che ished in Buenos Ayres. The Rev. Anthony D. Fahy was oo:n at Loughrea, County Galway, in 1804, and made his ecclesiastical stulies at St. Clement's Irish Convent of Plate in 1843, at a time when the pros- year of his age. pects of the country and of the Irish recital of the labors of Father Fahy. How wise a counsellor, how firm a friend, how powerful a protector, his countrymen ever found in him needs not our demonstration: it is written in the bearts of all.

In February, 1856, he founded the Irish Convent, bringing out some Sisters of Mercy, under Mother Mary Evangelist Fitzpatrick, from Dublin, and in 1861 the present spacious edifice in Calle Rio Bamba was completed, chiefly by subscriptions from the Irish sheepfarmers!

The increasing numbers and prosperity of his country: nen in the camp districts obliged him to endow each of the provincial 'partidos' with a resident chaplain, viz., Luxan, Mercedes, Capilla del Señor, Lobos, San Antonio Fortin de Areco, San Pedro, Rojas &c. Some of these clergymen were educated expressly at the Missionary College of All Hallows, Dublin, by Father Faby's directions, for this mission. The utility of his labors in this direction soon became visible not merely in a religious, but in a social point of view. Irish reading-rooms, ibraries, schools, &c. have sprung up in various parts, and the whole teno and tone of Irish life in the country districts shows a healthy and improv

In 1865 a subscription was got up to present Father Fahy with a handsome testimonial, and the sum of £1.000 sterling was collected, but he begged of the committee to hand i over to the Irish Convent, saying that he " had no need for more than one coat, and as much as supplied his daily necessities."

His advancing years did not limit his usefulness, and even to a few days prior to his demise, he was still one lof the most active and laborious pastors in this city. Charity and usefulness were his emineut character. istics. He belonged to that order o pastors who, without classing among the brilliant, are nevertheless the most useful and meritorious. He was in the fullest acceptation of the term. working pastor, whose sphere was not merely limited to teaching and example: he worked diligently, judiciously, and houestly, for the good o his flock.

Fresh and vigorous to the last, he combined the judgment of age with the pious enthusiasm of youth. Nature had endowed him with gifts, which in any walk of life lead to eminence. In personal appearance he was tall and portly, with a full, honest face; features manly, well-formed, and expressive; a countenance ordinarily thoughtful and serious, but readily lighting up with 'bonhommie,' in telligence, cheerfulness, and an inviting lamiability. His manners were easy, cordial, and unaffected. These personal qualities, backed by those o the mind, solid, practical, and utili tarian, made up the character o Father Faby. His judgment was excellent and unerring, and he exercised it in the consideration of the multi farious temporal affairs of his parish 21st.—The first thing this morning we received a telegram per cable, dated London, 20th, 10 p.m., with the following: German news announces that the attack of Bourbaki on the enrenched positions of General Werde had no result. Also that the attempt made to relieve Belfort was frustrated and that Bourbaki's army is retreating south towards Balmarte and Pont Roide. Chanzy's troops continue to retire, and are beginning to show signs of demoralization. WAR IN EUROPE.

London, Jan. 11, 1871. t is now a fortnight since the German batteries opened upon Mont Avron, and a whole week since the besiegers commenced to bombard the forts of Paris. The only result of the artitlery duel is the proved superiority of the Krupp gans. We have no late accounts from Paris, but the corres pondence from Versailles and the head irmly, and the Germans have ad-squarters of the Crown Prince leads us vanced their batteries 800 yards nearer, to surmise that the continuous shower of shricking, but invisible, missiles vomited from the latest designed German mortars have driven the Frenchmen from all exposed positions, but Prochu has fulfilled many of the prehave not dismantled the guns, or materially injured the forts. The latter, it is true, do not reply; and we have vet to learn the reason; for, up to the cies has even reached his subordimoment at which I write, the German engineers themselves are divided in opinion on the subject. A telegram, of course, may reach us this afternoon to say that Paris has capitulated, and, according to rumors n the city, it is certain to surrender this week, but judging by the bewilder-that the German despatches, which dering light of a common reader of are almost our sole authorities, are newspapers without money to invest in pigeous, I should say that, as far as the bombardment has had any effect, Paris is in the same case now she was fortnight ago, less the important position of Avron and the still more important consumption of a fortnight's victuals. It is all a question of victuals, and we have no reliable data of that point. Who, says Herr Wickede, writing to the Cologne Gazette, would have pre dicted during our intoxication by success after Sedan, that we should still be in France, in January, with an army of 400,000 Frenchmen, exclusive of the Paris garrison still opposed to us? Mr. Wickede replies to his own question by saying that he predicted it himself. If so, be is a wiser man than Von Moltke; I will not say than Bisbe the fallen type of creation he represents. As for the bombardment, we have now interesting letters from Paris, amougst which I particularly refer you to the letter of the "Besieged Resilent" in the Daily News, and the opinion seems confirmed that although the German fire is incontestably superior the French, and that upwards of 2,000 bombs have penetrated within sthe city, the guns of the forts are not silenced, and, so far, the bompardment is a failure. But it is evia lent that the spirits of the Parisians ere bowed down, and that General dictions asserted by the 'reds,' in respect to his military character and ability. Chanzy has been seriously defeated within a short distance of Le Mans, and if we hear that he is able to maintain himself, in his trenches around that city, and keep Frederick Charles employed, it is all we can now expect of him; provided, of course, inything like the truth.

As to Chanzy's defeat, there is no doubt about it. The Bordeaux despatch, which is partly lost in transmission, confirms the fact

In the east Bourbaki, whatever transitory success he may have gained. he ias certainly made no great impression, and, in the meantime, Manteuffel, who is to commind the new afth German army, is hurrying with strong reinforcements to support General Werder, who, according to reticent, but he went as far as saying the King of Prussia's despatch, had gained a victory over Bourbaki's lotry was still 'full of fight,' and peo troops. But from the latest intellizence we get, the advantage was certainly not decisive, as Bourbaki telegraphs that he was in possession of the disputed position, Villersexel.

The announcement of the death the Very Rev. Canon Fahy caused the most profound sensation of sorrow especially amongst the English commanity, by every member of which he was known and esteemed. The death of this excellent man will prove an irreparable loss to the Irish settlers in this country, to all of whom he was a trusted guide, sincere friend and selfsactificing pastor. Carnival opened on Sunday, though on Saturday evening the streets precarried on. On Sunday the amusements of all kinds began in regular form. Some of the comparsas exhibit really beautiful uniforms and possess good bands. Many of the corps de mu signe,' however, have charms of an order quite unequal to the 'soothing of the savage breast.' On the whole, the Carnival this year falls very far short of its predecessor. The adornment of the streets is greatly inferior to the splendid display in 1870, and the numbers of maskers appears triffing.

The Carnival ball at the Progreso Club on Sunday night passed off with great 'eclat' and success. The gorgeous saloons were crowded with a fashionable crowd, which chased "the glowing hours with flying feet" till daylight yesterday morning. The ladies' costumes were dazzling from to-day till the same hour.

UNITED STATES PUBLIC LANDS

acres were taken up under the Homegold for cash. The remainder was located with Military Warrant, College or Indian Scrip, or applied in satisfaction of grants of railroads, or for other public uses. The entries under the Homestead law during the last year covered 961,545 acres more than those during the preceding year. Surveys have been vigorously prosecuted to the full extent of the means applicable to the purpose.

The quantity of land in the market will amply satisfy the present demand. The claim of the settler under the Homestead or Pre-emption laws is not however, limited to lands subject to sale at private entry. Any un appro. priated surveyed public land may, to a certain extent, be acquired under the former laws, if the party entitled to enter under them will comply with the requirements they prescribe in regard to residence and cultivation. The actual settler's preference right of purchase is even broader, and extends to lands which were unsurveyed at the time of his settlement. His right was formerly confined within much narrow er limits, and at one period of our history was conterred only by special statutes. They were enacted from time to time to legalize what was then regarded as an unauthorized intrusion diseases. Take your streets, those upon the national domain.
