The grand topic in fashionable circles yesterday was the nomination of the Marquis of Uroste to the presidency of the department of credit for the province of Buenos Ayres.

On Saturday a very reprehensible trick was played on the Bomberos, in the afternoon some wags rushed into the Policia and shouted that there was a house on fire in Calle Rivadavia.

A fearful steamer explosion took place last month near San Francisco. The Moses Taylor of the Californian and Australian line burst her boiler when four hours from San Francisco.

SNOW-BALLING AT LUJAN. Lujan, July 26. To the Editors of the STANDARD. Gentlemen,

Snow in this part of the world is of such rare occurrence that when it falls it may, I presume, be looked upon as a phenomenon.

Yesterday (25th inst.) in the vicinity of Lujan, at about 4.30 p.m., snow fell in sufficient quantity to allow several ladies and gentlemen with whom I happen at present to be residing to amuse themselves at the never-to-be-forgotten, and with many now ever-to-be-remembered game of snow-balling.

It was a matter of after dispute as to whether it was genuine snow that fell; but as to its being pure snow or a mixture of snow and hail, I can't say for certain.

I only wish I was capable of doing justice in a description of the truly hard fought battle which took place yesterday between the hours of 4 and 5 p.m.

Such a sight, I suppose, was seldom or never seen before in B. Ayres.
