DEGENERATION of the BLOOD—In warm climates an undue amount of the vital principle escapes through the pores. This weakening drain cannot be suppressed without danger but the blood thus impoverished by excessive evaporation should be recruited and revitalised by the frequent use of Bristol's Sarsaparilla. The effects of this agreeable vegetable specific is tonic and nutrimental, as well as depurative. It not only discharges from the circulation the morbid matter to which ulcerous and eruptive maladies owe their virulence, but prevents its accumulation, thereby keeping the current of life in a condition to resist all contaminating influence—Taken as a cordial it is the best safeguard against physical prostration. cj—386 je7

CHEAP RAILWAYS.

If ever there was a country where cheap railways are of easy construction and primary importance it is this: the Pampas offer such facilities as no other part of the world, and the benefit of overcoming distances is exemplified by the utility which the Government telegraph system is at present rendering to the trade and inhabitants of every part of this vast Republic.

The United States set the example of cheap railways, and possess at present 56,664 miles, the total cost of which has been much less than that of 14,247 miles in the U. Kingdom. In Europe it may suit to make costly railways, but in all new countries it is different, and Australia is now constructing a line of 3,000 miles the cost of which is not to exceed £2,400 per mile. In B. Ayres we have made broad gauge lines for about double that figure, and the proposals recently sent in for the mountainous and difficult line from Cordoba to Tucuman, on the narrow gauge, are at the rate of £5,000 a mile. We may therefore venture to lay down an estimate of £3,000 per mile for narrow-gauge lines in the Pampas. And this reminds us to ask, why would it not pay to make steam-tramways all over the camp from one town to another? In Ireland, where they have 4,000 miles of the broad-gauge railways, they are laying down rural tramways of this kind. Surely in our inland districts, at present dependent on Diligencias, it would be cheaper and better to make tramways at £2,000 a mile, and encourage travelling by greater facilities. If we are to wait until English companies make us broad-gauge railways at £10,000 a mile we shall not see B. Ayres on a level with India or Australia for at least a century. Meantime if you can make lines at a fourth of that cost the estancieros themselves will be able to make up in many cases the requisite capital.

Messrs. Angel Plaza Montero and Manuel Ximenez have submitted to Congress a comprehensive scheme for a network of cheap railways all over the interior, which may be summed up in these words.

1st. A trunk line from Buenos Ayres to Patagones, passing though San Justo, Cañuelas, Guardia Monte, Tandil and Bahia Blanca; with 3 branches, to Tuyu, Loberia Chica bay, and the mouth of the Quequen Grande.

2nd. Another trunk line from Patagones along the north bank of the Rio Negro, to the Gult of Chiloe on the Pacific, with a branch along the coast to Valdivia.

3rd. Another trunk line from Cañuelas to Salinas Grandes, Rio Colorado, and meeting the 2nd line on the banks of the Negro. This line would pass through Navarro, 25 de Mayo, Nueve de Julio and Laguna del Monte.

4th. Another trunk line from Navarro to Fort Melincue, passing through Mercedes, Salto and Rojas.

5th. Another trunk line from Melincué across the Pampas, following the route of Don Luis de la Cruz in 1804, and coming out at Concepcion on the Pacific.

6th. Another trunk line from Melincue to Mendoza, crossing the provinces of Cordoba and San Luis.

7th. Another trunk line from Melincue to Rosario, and then along the Paraná to San Nicolas.

The aggregate length of these lines is not given, but we make it out to be about 3,900 miles, or say in round numbers four thousand, which at £3,000 per mile, would cost twelve millions sterling. The projectors put down that the cost is not to exceed £6,000 per mile, but this would be probably for the wide gauge. They demand a guarantee of 7 per cent. and a land concession of two leagues along the whole length.

The benefits to result from such a network of railways cannot be exaggerated.

1stly. It would settle the frontier question once and for ever, by driving the Indians southward beyond the Rio Negro or northward into the Gran Chaco, thus saving the present useless expense of garrisons and enhancing the value of frontier camps by the security given to life and property.

2ndly. It would turn to account thousands of miles of the most fertile plains in the world, quite as suitable for colonists as the lands of the Central Argentine Co. or the Santa Fe colonies.

3rdly. It would place us in immediate contact with Chile and open up a new current of trade for Buenos Ayres.

4thly. It would civilize the nomad inhabitants of the interior who are at present in some manner beyond the reach of law, Government or instruction.

But how is so vast a scheme to be carried out? Even supposing the railways can be made at £3,000 a mile the cost would reach the enormous sum of twelve millions sterling, the interest on which at 7 per cent. would be £840,000 or 4½ million hard dollars; this would be double the burthen imposed by the Public Works loan which Mr. Varela concluded last year in London.

It would be imprudent to augment so suddenly the national debt of the republic and the consequent charge on our revenues. It would be equally rash to calculate on the lines paying a dividend at all equal to the guarantee.

Let us suppose that the lines will for some years pay no more than work-expenses. The shareholders can get no dividend. But the land grant may be made to supply the place of a Government guarantee. If the grant be of two leagues or each side of the line, this will be equivalent to 16,000 square leagues on 160,000 square miles. Let the Government offer this to any joint-stock company that may be formed for the purpose, giving also special favors to the colonies that may be established, such as exemption from taxes for a number of years. If the value of 100 million acres or 16,000 square miles be insufficient to make the 7 lines proposed as above, let us try two or three of them for a beginning.

At present there are 576,000 square miles of public lands which Senator Mitre proposes to distribute in the 11 territories. To our way of thinking it would be better to dispose of them as bonuses for railways.

Many people will laugh at the scheme now submitted to Congress, since its magnitude is quite unparalleled. Yet Australia, with less population than this Republic, is making a line 3,000 miles long. And in 7 years in India Mr. Samuel Laing constructed 5,000 miles of railway at a cost of 70 millions sterling, causing the imports and exports to double in ten years, viz—

	1858.	1868.
Export to England	£15,241,869	£3 ,071,866
Imports —	15,277,629	29,038.715

So wonderful is the effect of railways in the development of a nation's trade and resources. If, therefore, Mr. Laing hesitated not to expend such an amount of money in railways that cost £14,000 a mile, is it not every way probable that lines of much cheaper construction would be equally beneficial in this country?

THE COLON THEATRE.

LUCREZIA BORGIA.

This opera was produced on Wednesday night to a full and fashionable house, and went off well.

Donnizetti's Lucrezia Borgia was first produced at Milan, and its success was remarkable. It has always been considered by musical connoisseurs to be the author's best and most lasting musical work, and the opinion, up to the present, has been uncontradicted. It will always be associated with the names of such artistes as Mdmes. Grisi and Alboni, and Srs. Mario and the elder Lablache. These artistes' splendid vocalism and acting, have left an impression on the European public not easily effaced. Signor Mario, on resigning the role of Gennaro (which he had done for some years past), was succeeded by Sr. Gardoni, who identified himself so thoroughly with the part, in divining the author's meaning, and giving the music the proper colouring, that it has been accepted by the public as a most finished performance. Donnizetti, in the fulness and variety of his melodies, and appreciation of dramatic fitness, in single or concerted scenes, stands almost unrivalled; instance his "Figlia del Regimento", an opera sparkling, telling, and vigorous, rendered memorable by Mdme. Jenny Lind in the role of Marie, and Signor Belletti, as the Serjeant.

As, no doubt, the plot of Lucrezia is familiar to most of our English readers, it is unnecessary to produce it here.

Sra. Saurel, on her appearance as Lucrezia, was warmly greeted; and as the piece progressed, and her splendid voice became developed, she caught the attention of the audience at once. Her love for Gennaro, and her doubts and fears as to the result, were beautifully and vividly portrayed. Then her fears as to her affections being unrequited, and indignant at her womanly feelings being outraged and slighted, by the indifference of Gennaro, and urged on by the insidious whisperings and slanderous insinuations of Don Alphonso, her jealousy culminates in her resolve to poison Gennaro, and by so doing gratify revenge in the death of its victim. After drinking the fatal draught, she relents, tells him it is poisoned, gives him an antidote as a negative to its effects, and assists him to escape. All this, we say, was powerfully and truthfully delineated by Sra. Saurel, her voice in alt being wonderfully strong, and pure in intonation and expression, and her descent gradual and musical, which shews her perfect knowledge of scaling and harmonic unity of combination.

In the third act a scene of recrimination takes place between her and Gennaro; exasperated, he is about to stab her, when she tells him she is his mother. In horror he drops the dagger, and a death faintness overpowers him, having neglected to take the antidote, which he tells her in broken accents. In his death agony he forgives and blesses her; and she, heart-broken and despairing, sinks down motionless, beside his dead body. Sra. Saurel's portrayal of the role of Lucrezia (in a dramatical and musical point of view), is her best effort since the engagement of the present opera company. On a former occasion we have done justice to her rare beauty of voice and musical taste, and our impression is confirmed by her appearance in Lucrezia the most dramatic (with the exception of Linda) of all Donizetti's operas.

Sra. Pocoleri appeared in the role of Maffio Orsini, the page. She is a pleasing actress, and appears to be perfectly at home in stage business. Her voice is decidedly more soprano than contralto, nevertheless, she sang 'Il Segreto' charmingly, and with a finish and expression which augurs future success; she has also a good personnel and graceful manner, which go a good way in catching the sympathy of an audience.

Sr. Piccioli deserves much praise for the manner in which he acted and sang in the role of Gennaro. It is a part from which the public expect much, and in this case they were not disappointed. He gave the music (solo and concerted), with a finish and carefulness that proves him a sound musician. He improves nightly in our estimation, and though his voice is not of the 'shouting description,' which would bring down a house, yet, we must say, his efforts are always subversive to good taste, musical rule, and the author's meaning. This is saying a good deal for Sr. Piccioli's musical talent and discernment; for sometimes singers, in their 'pride of voice,' ignore the composer's effects, and give their own. But this is a matter of public appreciation, or not, as the case may be.

Sr. Dal Negro, sang the music of Don Alphonso very well indeed.

We must, in justice to Sr. Ranieri say, that he appears to take much trouble in 'licking' the chorus and orchestra into shape; but in spite of all his efforts with the latter it is a regular 'in at the death' with some of them, particularly the horns.

We are glad to see the manager has made a concession in the right direction, by changing the operas, and giving the public an opportunity of testing the merits of other composers. To confine an audience to the 'bug-a-boo' music of one particular composer, night after night, would prove neither politic or profitable for the management. The public like variety.

LATEST FROM ROSARIO.

(From our own Correspondent.)

I see that the necessity of a postal arrangement with England is spoken of in the Buenos Ayres papers. It is surprising it has not been made before now. Correspondents in England now have to bear all the expense of ocean postage both ways, besides English land postage.

What inconvenience would there be in having such a postal treaty as those existing between England and Switzerland, Belgium and Italy? The principal on which these conventions are founded is most philosophical and true—every letter is supposed to require an answer, and as a general rule gets one. Thus each country collects both its own postage and that of the country where the letter is delivered, and it is found that the principle turns out wonderfully exact. This would do away with the ancient cumbersome and expensive machinery of keeping reciprocal accounts. For instance I write a letter to a friend in England, pay here 5 cents, the ocean postage and one penny for English postage. My friend writes me back, paying exactly the same amount. It is evident that neither country loses nor gains. But of course it must be understood that the Argentine Government pay their share towards the subvention of the ocean steamers, which they could very easily do in that case, as half of the ocean postage would be collected in this country.

The Opinion Nacional informs us that Don Adolfo Carranza is bringing down 600 alpacas. I have not seen this important fact mentioned in the up country papers. It is so insignificant however by the side of the election of a "Juan Pelotas" to some provincial post, that it is not surprising country editors should have passed it over in silence.

The same paper has a "mencion honrosa" for the people of the "Cancan," who generously abstain from showing their legs &c. to an admiring public on the night of the grand Amateur Concert in favor of the Charity Hospital. Bless the dear little "danseuses!" Their hearts are as big as their legs!

The Indians have been pretty near Rosario. All the mares of Gavino Gallegos and Castellanos at Desmodrados are carried off, and one man killed, Cruz Cabrera, a peon.

As I suggested in one of my former letters, speaking of our custom-houses, I find that the export duties of the custom-house of Santa Fe bear a large proportion to the amount of import duties. In the year 1871 the latter amounted to 62,575 dollars, and the former to 29,203, or nearly one-third of the total amount.

The value of imports and exports is given together, and I have no means of separating them. The gross total is 2,209,000 dollars.

A brutal murder was committed in Calle Progreso the day before yesterday. The police caught the murderer within four-and-twenty hours after the perpetration of the crime; so that is all to be said. The assassin is taken up—what more do you want? And the victim? Pooh! pooh! what does it matter one life more or less?

But is it possible murder does not inspire horror in this country?

Bah! My dear sir, you sensitive Saxon people can't bear to see a calf butchered. Another weakness you northerners are guilty of—you respect your dead. This is on a par in absurdity with your respect for human life. We have emancipated ourselves from such antiquated notions. If a man dies what is he?—a clod of insensible earth. If he is killed by violence, what is he else?

These are the arguments that, like Coleridge's Ancient Mariner, I hear whispered in the air.

Yours truly, LEO.

PARIS LETTER.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

April 30.

The only 'point noir' visible is the dissatisfaction of the Vigilance Committee at the politeness of M. Thiers towards the Parisians, in giving a series of very pleasant and very popular receptions. Should his conduct be brought under the notice of the Assembly, the country will reply to this unseemly attack of the Monarchists by voting the President an ovation—as its general councils have just done in the addresses of confidence and approval of his policy—its execution and aim. In a few days the chamber will meet, and the journals of all shades express the hope that the deputies will at once tackle to the serious questions that have been placed too long in abeyance. It would seem that Legitimists and Imperialists are quite forgotten; so would be the Orleanists were it not for the marked attention paid by a band of partizans to the Comte de Paris at one of the 'evenings at home' given by M. Thiers. The reticence of that prince is suspected; he is summoned to stand and deliver his views; if he accepts the republic, let him declare so; if he submits to his cousin let him avow it; if by chance he be Orleanist, let him say so. At all events no more ambiguity. Subdued exasperation is current at the conduct of Germany towards her acquired French subjects. The inhabitants of Alsace and Lorraine, having selected to remain French, must leave their native soil if they cannot show they have a 'bona fide' residence in France; that is, such unfortunate inhabitant who may have a factory, a forge, a mine, or a farm, must part with it before October next, if he decide to give his allegiance to France. Yet German subjects are not now arbitrarily treated in France; they are free to earn their livelihood among the conquered, as the subjects of 'the most favoured nation' whilst remaining legally attached to Fatherland. The French Minister of Justice has not thrown much light on the hardship by reminding the country that every nation has the right to expel strangers from its territory. Poor France exercised this right in 1870, but paid dearly for the luxury at the conclusion of peace; she is powerless now to take reprisals, and even her humiliation veils her protests.

The Abbé Junqua has appeared before the Court at Bordeaux to explain the reason why he declines to part with his canonicals when commanded to do so by his Bishop. As the Abbé has appealed, the execution of the sentence, six months inprisonment, will be delayed. He has petitioned the Minister of Instruction, Jules Simon, who in opposition was the apostle of freedom of Conscience and all this sort of thing, but has left something to be decided since he has been entrusted with the portfolio of education and religion. However, the Abbé gives him a nut to crack, and his reply is anxiously awaited. As the Bishop is absolute in his sway over curates, he has the law on his side, a journal suggests that instead of defending the Abbé it would be wiser to agitate for the abolition of the iniquitous law that condemns him, namely the Concordat and the organic articles joined to it. There is matter for a revolution in such a reform.

Marguérite Dixblanc or Diblanc—the latter orthography is more general, has submitted to the inquiries of French justice; as she avowed having killed her mistress, Mme. Riel, she did not think many further particulars necessary. The prisoner has quite a masculine appearance, and in strength and indifference quite capable of strangling a woman, with or without a rope, and dragging the body where she pleased. The English and French detectives employed in the arrest, wound up the happy termination of their labors by a substantial breakfast. "d'Adieu." Diblanc has had her photograph taken, to be hung in the celebrated portrai; gallery in the Prefecture of the Police she could not see much use in the work of art, when the authorities possessed the original. Since her arrival in Paris, she kept moving from one quarter to another, even putting up with natives of her own Belgian village; she patronized the great Ginger bread fair now being held; visited the penny gaffs, and admired the screaming farces and Adelphi horrors; she gambled a little, but the stakes were not high. When Diblanc finally took up her abode at Saint Denis, at her countryman's charcoal shop, she felt her days of liberty were numbered. The charcoal dealer's wife was apprized of the murder, and assisted to burn some of the clothes of the deceased, that the murderess wore; time prevented all from being destroyed, as well as, the proceeds of the robbery from being disposed of. The charcoal man—Bouillon—on learning the crime, went to inform the police, after discussing with Diblanc international law as bearing on extradition. During his absence the detectives arrived, and before "the wanted" had time to throw up a barricade with sacks of charcoal, she was secured. Bouillon does not seem to be well up in criminal law, as he assured Diblanc, that as she had not employed any cutting instrument and no blood had flowed, the killing was no murder. The prisoner desired to find a "place" at St. Denis at first, and on being assured there were no "aristos" in the neighborhood—it is factory district—she had better try the heart of the capital for employment. The inhabitants of St. Denis were inclined to lay violent hands on Bouillon and his wife, and might have done so, till they were accused of being "Prussians", which caused the mob to laugh. Diblanc was formerly servant in a glover's family in the rue Faubourg Saint Honoré: her mistress certifies her character was exemplary—only she was given to drink and stealing gloves!

The military authorities are more than indignant at the robbery of six cannon at Vincennes; they feel the Prussians must be enjoying a "good lark" at the extraordinary fact. Two soldiers have confessed their part in the theft, and it has led to the discovery, of the 'materel' of war, and the band of brothers occupied in turning the bronze peace-makers into ingots, to be struck into coin.

It has been said that the "Italians" is the most French theatre in Paris, although the citizens like no opera from the foreigner till served in a French dress; they go all the same to see, and to be seen, and above all to talk; never to listen. Madame Alboni has been induced after ten years absence to again appear on the stage—her object must be the love of pleasing the public with her still charming and pure voice, as she is comparatively wealthy. She appeared in the favorite part of Aunt Fidalma, in 'Il Matrimonio Segreto,' by Cimarose, an opera forming a link between the 'Marriage of Figaro' and the 'Barber of Seville.' Alboni sang and acted as only Alboni can, and was applauded as only Alboni is. This composition was first executed in 1793, before the Emperor Leopold at Vienna, and his Majesty was so enchanted, that on its conclusion he ordered a magnificent supper to be served to the 'artistes,' after which, he commanded them to commence again.

The exhumation of the remains of Alexandre Dumas, nearly two years dead, and the permanent burial of same at Villers-Cotterets his native town, was a fete rather than a funeral. After the body arrived from Dieppe, it was followed from Paris, by an express train filled with friends, although the invitations were select few and private. The most notorious absentee was Victor Hugo; as usual he was occupied with his grand-children, and people laugh at his inflated letter in memory of Dumas, and the vow to visit his tomb alone. It was suggested that the presence of Hugo's son would be a greater proof of sincerity, than a column of windbagism. On arriving at the village, the Mayor had decamped; he avoided the burial as he would an assassin's; the local band declined to play, and a neighbouring one was provided; around the church a sort of fancy fair was held; speeches were delivered, the most impressive being by a local architect who denounced the crimes of the Second Empire, and eulogized the merits of M. Thiers and the Radicals. The friends who left Paris were led to expect that a breakfast attended them on arriving; such indeed was spread at the hotel, but had been commanded for a bridal, not a funeral party; so a siege was laid to the contents of the two huxter's shops, that the village boasts of. Were it not for the dead, and the religious ceremony, the whole thing was a broad farce.

The Horse show continues to be fairly attended; there are nearly 400 entries, and afford pleasing proof that the Prussians did not requisition, nor the Parisians consume all the 'noble animals' in France. The trials of the horses in single and double harness, in trotting, galloping and jumping, together with an eloquent brass band impart a Circus-character to the proceedings of the Society for improving the breed of horses.

The Dolbeau quarrel looks like being hushed up; the Doctor lectures to empty benches, but since the Medical and Law students have fallen out respecting the merits of the case, Dr. Dolbeau will be forgotten in the strife.

Seventy-six years of age, in robust health, with the vigor and energy of youth, the popular head of a great nation—such is M. Thiers to-day. He has no pride, and his ambition is limited to repairing the disasters of his country, and founding a moderate Republic, which can alone save and elevate France. It is a singular, and at the same time happy spectacle to see the French rallying round their Nestor's views. Gambetta has given his adhesion; and as for pretenders, such are forgotten as completely as last season's snow. No coalition could displace M. Thiers now; he has won over the nation to his ideas. In February, 1871, he was elected deputy for 27 departments; to-day not a General Council has concluded its session without voting an address of thanks and confidence to him, in favor of his government, or in approbation of his efforts to establish the Republic. It is true these addresses are in the same vein as were formerly presented to other rulers since the time of the First Napoleon, but it is impossible not to feel they are on the present occasion sincère, because they are the spontaneous offspring of independent and freely elected local bodies. There is no official get up about them.

M. Thiers may truly be said to be the son of 'poor but honest parents.' He is a self-made man, which pleases a nation that like

The grand old gardener and his wife
Smile at the claims of long descent.

He was born on the 15th of April, 1797, in the suburbs of Marseilles. In the Lyceum of the same city he entered as a sizar at nine years of age, completed his studies at seventeen, and by the assistance of men who admired his talent was called to the bar in 1820. Next year he came to Paris to seek his fortune, was employed as reporter on the Constitutionel, lived in a garret in the Latin quarter, but soon rose to distinction as a historian, finish ing his 'French Revolution in 1827. In 1829 he founded the National newspaper, which exercised immense influence. His first official position was as an Under-Secretary of State in 1830; the following year he was elected a Deputy, and in December, 1834, became a member of the Academy. In 1832 he held the portfolio of Home Minister, passing and repassing to other offices, and ending in October, 1840, by being Minister of Foreign Affairs. From this period till 1848 he devoted himself to travel, and concluded the History of the Consulate and the Empire. He failed to form a Cabinet to save Louis Philippe in 1848; it was 'too late.' A failing for Chauvinism made him support Louis Napoleon's candidature for the Presidency, which the Prince very gratefully remembered by banishing M. Thiers after the Coup d'Etat; and in August, 1852, he was allowed to return to France. He was always the Emperor's 'bete noir;' every effort was made to politically extinguish him. But Thiers had his revenge: like a syren he attracted and compelled the Second Empire to coquette with liberty; he assisted at its 'marriage d'occasion' with the light-hearted Olivier, well knowing that France would pronounce for a divorce, and that he alone would be entrusted with the conduct of the deserted household. He is now as popular as the first Bourbon, Henri IV; more respected by the 'bourgeoisie' than the first Orleanist, Louis Philippe; more powerful in upholding order than Napoleon III, for he invites citizens to protect what is their own and not any dynasty. By bowing to the sagacity of the Assembly he will avoid errors; by executing the peoples will on the radical reforms demanded, constitutional difficulties can be eluded.

The Bonapartists have constantly boasted, that were it not for the men of the 4th of September, France would have had allies to assist her against Prussia. No one believed this; however, the Duc de Grammont is to be legally called upon to produce the copies of the secret treaties drawn up by the Emperor of Austria and Victor Emmanuel, promising to support Napoleon. We are getting contemporary history by fragments. M. d'Ideville publishes some notes while secretary of the French Embassy at Turin. On one occasion the French Minister was directed by his Government to read to M. Cavour, and leave copy of, a despatch highly blaming the Italian Government. "Alas!" said Cavour, "that is very severe, but here is a letter from the Emperor's private Secretary approving of what is officially censured." Like Louis XV, Napoleon conspired even against his Ministers. When the treaty was signed by France, accepting Nice and Savoy—the reward for her war for an idea—which gave the Duchies to Piedmont, "we are accomplices now," whispered Cavour to the French ambassador.

The Academy of Music has a museum wherein are conserved remarkable instruments. It has the drum belonging to queen Pomare, the trombones that served when Napoleon's remains were brought to Paris; it has Auber's pianoforte, the keys covered with ink, proof that he composed while playing; Herold's piano has now been added to the collection; the pedals are placed at the sides, and the composer of 'Zampa' went every day to visit his mother, who lived in the suburbs of Paris, and on arriving set to play and write the music he conceived during his walk. Beethoven's piano is a curiosity; it was made to lie on his bed as his illness forced him to lie on his back.

As foreigners arriving from England have now only to give their names, there must be no mistake in the matter. The practice was about as valuable under Louis Philippe. A Frenchman was passing the officers on duty, and nodded in pronouncing the word 'cochon'—which in French means 'pig,' "I do not want to know what you are," gruffly replied the gendarme, "but I desire your name." "Denis Cochon, fruiterer to the King," was the reply.

EDITOR'S TABLE.

We refer in our leading columns to the important project presented to Congress by Messrs Montero and Ximenes, for establishing a system of cheap railways all over the various provinces of the republic. The scheme is a vast one, but more easily carried out than most people would imagine; and far more worthy of the time and attention of Congress than "capital" and other magic lantern questions.

It oozed out yesterday that the man who escaped while being escorted from the Debtors' Prison to the Tribunal of Commerce was an operative editor. The poor devil had too many subscribers, a common disease with his unfortunate class. Poor editors, unfortunately, abound in every country, rich editors are as scarce as Rothschilds, and a good editor, rich or poor, is, after all, a 'rara avis.' An English writer says:— A good editor, or competent newspaper conductor, is like a general or a poet, born, not made. Exercise and experience give facility, but the qualification is innate, or it is never manifested. On the London daily papers all the great historians, novelists, poets, essayists, and writers of travels, have been tried and nearly every one has failed. 'I can,' said the late editor of the London Times, 'find any number of men of genius to write for me, but very seldom one man of common sense.' Nearly all successful editors are of this description. A good editor seldom writes much for his paper; he reads, judges, selects, dictates, alters and combines, and to do all this well he has but little time for composition. To write for a paper is one thing, to edit a paper is another.

We regret to say that we are not as well up in German in Standard Court as we could wish; our knowledge of that powerful language is 'shaky.' In yesterday's issue a laughable error occurred in consequence. In the article entitled 'Europe,' we gave a quotation from Schiller in the original vernacular which read, 'In the smallest frock there is room for a loving couple,' whereas the poet wrote, 'in the smallest cottage there is room, &c.' German is now becoming so much spoken in all parts of the earth, and particularly in these countries, that we find there is nothing for it but to purchase an Oldendorff, and begin at once. We tremble for the result, however, when that interminable Teutonic word signifying tramway car flashes on our memory. If they are all like that, we preter attempting Chinese, if our subscribers have no objection. On referring to the 'copy' we find that the error was not with our contributor, but with our proof-reader, who can't even say 'the top of the morning to you' in German.

The latest advices state that the last Indian raid in the west was quite a "one horse" affair; very little cattle carried off, but the settlers are all frightened out of their wits, so alarming are the reports afloat. In Santa Fe there has been a more serious foray at La Cautiva, and many cattle carried off. The neighbours made a slight attempt at resistance in which one of them got a lance passport to another and a better world.

We understand that a gentleman who has imported a white elephant, picked up at an auction in Calcutta last year for a mere song, intends sending it to Mr. Bullrich for sale next month. There are always plenty of bidders for things of the kind in this country.

The opera of 'Ruy Blas' will be performed to-morrow evening at the Opera House. We have never heard the music, but believe it has much merit; the story is familiar to every novel-reader, and we understand the 'mise en scene' is of the most gorgeous description. The only way to secure a place is to sleep under the façade of 'Covent Garden' to-night.

The province of Santa Fe has decided on borrowing seven millions of patacons (ask enough, Governor, while you are about it); but a slight difficulty may be anticipated in getting any sane capitalist to decide on lending it, at least till the peculiar system of raising and spending the public money in that province be changed for the better.

The last advices from Asuncion announce the capture of three Italian brigands who for a long time had kept the Departments in a constant state of terror by their depredations.

A colleague calculates that the public of Buenos Ayres spent 400,000 paper dollars in theatrical amusements on the night of the 25th of May last, and that its annual disbursement in this way is nearly 16,000,000 currency, not including new dresses, kid gloves, cabs, carriages, and other fair-sex expenses, which would raise it to sixty millions. Hear this, ladies, and blush a little, just for form's sake. What would any audience be without you!—bread without butter.

The number of inmates now in the Convalecencia is 307, including 203 Argentines, 5 English, 4 Irish, 4 Germans, 3 Brazilians, 37 Spanish, 16 French, and 36 Italians.

A man was fined 90 Bolivianos in Rosario last week for buying a stolen mule.

Standard luck in Rio!—A Spaniard named Gonzalez, living in Calle Count d'Eu, in Rio, died suddenly last month. The police came in, and discovered 13,000 pats. in the algibe in his patio. We don't intend to die suddenly if we can help it, for any one's benefit; but life is uncertain, and we recommend those with an eye on the 70,000 pats. in the algibe of our back patio to make a sporting offer at once for No. 118, S. M.

From the frontier we learn that Col. Rourke, who is under the orders of General Arredondo in the expedition to the Toldos, is about to put himself under the orders of a wife when he comes back. Poor Rourke! 'Glory' waits you in front, and Matrimony in the rear; we fear it's all over with you but the priest, the bride-cake, and the honeymoon.

We hear of a piece of heroism connected with the loss of the Saint François on the Solis Bank. When the first batch of passengers and sailors landed the latter were afraid to return to the ship for nine of their number and the captain, who had remained on board. The sea ran mountains high, yet a brave Oriental fisherman named Sebastian Ronda launched his frail skiff, and with two Spaniards put off to the vessel and saved those on board. When near the shore, a wave upset the skiff; and but for the heroism of two fishermen, an Oriental and a Portuguese, who rushed into the water to help them, all would have perished. Ronda was badly hurt on the rocks, and is now in hospital in Montevideo.

On Wednesday evening a meeting of the members of the English Amateur Racing Club was held at Watson's Casino, to transact the ordinary business of the Club and make arrangements for the forthcoming races. Mr. Lee-Smith, Honorary Secretary, was in the chair. After considerable discussion as to the respective merits of gentlemen and professional riders it was decided that none but the former shall be allowed 'up' at the coming meeting, which is settled to take place on the 9th prox. The Honorary Sec. was requested to report on the respective advantages of Lanuz, Belgrano and Quilmes as the 'locus in quo,' which he will do next week, and a decision will then be come to and a programme issued. The accounts, &c. of the past year were passed, leaving a respectable balance in the hands of the Treasurer, Mr. Glover. The proceedings terminated with a cordial vote of thanks to Mr. Lee Smith for his conduct in the chair.

The unfortunate guard Baptiste Luscabo, who was killed on Tuesday on the Southern Railway, was interred on Wednesday at the Chacarita. Messrs. Ezcurra, Grigg, Morgan, Powell and others attended the funeral, the first named pronouncing an eloquent discourse over the grave. The poor Italian peon injured at the same time as Luscabo died yesterday morning.

The Siglo of Montevideo says that Dr. Tejedor's answer to the Diplomatic Corps is a most ridiculous document, and more like a letter of condolence than the just and dignified reply of the Minister of a people who love liberty of the Press even to the verge of excess.

King O'Reilly of Braucania has issued another decree, founding a constitutional and hereditary monarchy there, and naming himself King. His Secretary of State is M. Delafontaine, a Galway man, whose real name is Micky Delany.

We are requested to correct the statement made in the STANDARD of the 6th instant, relative to the experiments made at the Captain of the Port's with nitro-glycerine. The said experiments were not made, as stated, with the view of employing the material to clear away the wrecks in the port, but were a continuation of the experiments made some time since, under inspection of a commission appointed by the National Government, to test the merits of a torpedo offered to the government for use in time of war.

May married December in Cordoba lately. December took May home, but she found the house so miserably furnished that she declined to stop a single night in it, and returned to Mamma on the instant, leaving December to his reflections. He is a 'big wig' in Cordoba, and, we hear, intends to remain as he was before he was as he was.'

The Progreso of San Nicolas considers itself too small, and hints at an increase in dimensions. Take care, young colleague; you may burst your boiler, as many of your older brethren seem bent on doing, and with every prospect of success.

The Democracia of Salta publishes the following news from Bolivia, saying that the measures of the Bolivian Government will lead to trouble. All Tarija and the adjoining places have been put "en pied de guerre." The Bolivians have summuned the Argentine commander to evacuate Cenizas; and Colonel Uriburu has refused. The Bolivian Commander then advanced troops in Argentine territory. Major Millan at once marched and captured 90 of them; another squad of 50 was captured by Captain Torres. Our colleague says that if the Bolivian Government does not withdraw its troops they shall be driven out at the point of the bayonet "conte que conte."

The articles on the progress of the United States, which we published yesterday, from the pen of a leading North American subscriber, has attracted the greatest interest, and has been read in all quarters. The astounding figures (always on the right side) give much colour to the able writer's boast that Europe can teach little to such a nation, though it is scarcely doubtful that, under a system of perfect Free Trade, the results in the ten years dealt with would have been still more wonderful. John Bull's cousins seem a tremendously tall family, but when measured they are found to be in reality quite as tall as they look.

'Lucrezia Borgia' was performed at the Colon Theatre on Wednesday evening. Madame Saurel added another triumph to her list in the role of 'Lucrezia.' As we refer to the performance in our leading columns, we shall limit our remarks to saying that the triumphs of the evening were the trio and duo in the second act; the latter, between 'Lucrezia' and 'Gennaro,' which closes it, resulting in a 'furore,' a fourfold recall of Madame Saurel and Signor Piccioli, and a repetition of the duo. Good as the treat was, we must protest against such a monstrous innovation on the lyric stage as yielding to an 'encore' of concerted music; it destroys the effect of any triumph, and no audience wishing to maintain a character for taste would think of such injustice to the artists. We call on the leading artists at both our lyric temples to spare the musical public a repetition of the weakness, which, it is just to the Colon company to admit, did not originate with them.

THE ARGENTINE NAVY.

Buenos Ayres June 1st 1872.

To the Editors of the STANDARD.

Sirs:

I should be much obliged if you or any of your correspondents could give me any information about the Argentine Navy, with regard to the necessary qualifications and examinations, and on what terms English officers are admitted; I should be also glad to know where application should be made.

Yours Obediently,

MERCEDES CONVENT.

Carmen de Areco 27th May 1872.

To the Editors of the STANDARD.

Gentlemen:

Having seen in your paper, a circular of the Irish Sisters requesting the Irish priests to name collectors for the above institute, I beg to assure them, I shall be at all times happy to assist any good work of their's, but until the debts incurred by Father Fahy for the Irish public are fully paid off, and the hospital in a position to receive our distressed country people, my cooperation must be limited.

I knew the late Father Fahy long and intimately and can assure them that, anxious as I knew him to be to see a convent in Mercedes, he was still more anxious to have his debts paid.

However I will place no obstacle in the way of so meritorious a work, but joyfully pass them any gift the generosity of the people may offer. Under the above-named circumstances I am unable to do more at present.

Your's very truly,
L. M. LEAHY.

National Bonds	75½

The rise in the bond market continues. Prices during business hours were most buoyant, and at after hours they took another jump up, closing firm at 75½. The speculation in bonds never at any previous time took such dimensions as at present. The brokers no longer control the market, and bonds are passing into the hands of parties who never before held them. Bonds have now touched a figure never before known in their history, and as the market stands at present it looks as if they are susceptible of a still higher figure if no untoward news comes, but there are those who look for a very sudden turn in the market, and those parties with the King at their head stand back now from the ring. Fully a million of bonds have changed hands since the present rise began, and these high prices are bringing fresh bonds out daily. But there is money for all; the plethora of money in the market is felt in every circle; every species of security is on the rise, Bonds, Cedulas, Roads and Bridges Stock, Municipal Bonds, Bank Shares, Gas, Bolsa Shares, everything is up, for there is money for all. The sales in the Bond Market to-day were as follows—

For cash	10,000	74½

June 30	2,900	75
do.	35,000	75½
June 20	3,600	75

At after hours 30,000 sold for Monday at 75½, and 1,000 for end of month with right to ask for 5,000 more at 75¼. Also 20,000 cash at 75½.

There was some astonishment caused this morning by the non appearance of the Government decree opening the ports, as the Port Captain, War Minister and officials, were all of accord yesterday on the subject, but on enquiry this morning the steamboat Proprietors, were assured that the decree would be out this afternoon, as the question had been settled in the Government house.

The scheme for a National Bank is now before Congress, it is a vast one, and there is a push to get it through, but the opinion is general it wont be carried through this session.

The Capital question is also again on, and the move is to Rosario. The provincial members all appear determined to pass the Capital Bill in one shape or other this session; and Rosario, it appears at last, stands a chance of being the favoured spot. This will send up real estate in Rosario.

The Montevidean Buoy Company for the River Uruguay has just received from England a fresh consignment of materials and new buoys are to be placed in various points of the river at once.

Last week all the machinery of the burst-up Cunapiru Gold Mines Company was brought to the hammer. This sale is significant. The company started some four years ago under the brightest auspices, but owing to the most wretched mismanagement the fine machinery that came out from England was allowed to remain on the river side at Salto, and on the docks at Montevideo, where it got much knocked about. Samples of the Cunapiru gold were sent to England, where they attracted much notice. A good amount of capital has been lost in this business.

Mr. Cordero's large sales of sheep last week attract much notice in farming circles owing to the very high prices obtained. The sheep are good mestizas, but even since these sales by M. Cordero higher prices have been obtained by the Messrs. Escurra in Matanzas, which we have already published. The following are the sales:—

Those interested in the scheme of paving the Calle Larga, Barracas, shortly expect to receive advices from London announcing the launching of the company in that market. The scheme is an important one, and when carried out will pay handsome dividends owing to the immense traffic on that road at all seasons. It is indeed surprizing that so great a thoroughfare has never before been taken in hand by a paving company, as the Calle Larga is the great outlet to the South.

The Municipality have at last determined to beautify the Plaza Libertad, this is a move in the right direction as the cost will be trifling and the Plaza is a healthy promenade for the neighbours.

Respecting the famed port scheme there is each day less and less said. In high circles the opinion is that what with the Rosario Railway giving us San Pedro, the Campana Railway giving us Campana, and Ensenada Railway giving us Ensenada, there is now no longer any necessity to spend millions upon millions on a scheme which could not be carried out until nothing but tombstones were left of us all; the grand fact therefore is—The port scheme is exploded.

Our colleague the Republica gives the interesting data that in May no less than 1170 houses were rented in this city.

The Tucuman Government announces that it will shortly sell all the 'sitios' of Villa Sarmiento. As some Englishmen have property up in that locality the news may interest.

Samples of Santiago wine have come down to this market, and letters from that province announce a great push made up there in the grape business. There is a dream of supplying all Buenos Ayres with what is known here as 'vin ordinaire.' It may succeed, but we much doubt it.

The people in San Nicolas are determined to push their little town ahead: every species of municipal improvement is on the tapis up there, and the loading of the Ptolemy in 30 hours taking in some 800 tons of produce is greatly talked about, the steamer took all this cargo from the saladero of Sr. Bengolea, the cargo consisting of dry and salt cow hides horse, hides &c. The Neva's mails will probably bring positive news respecting the Mendez tramway.

In a few days the far famed plaza of Santa Lucia Barracas will be brought to the hammer and sold by auction, the plaza is now private property.

In the sale of the Ancla Dorada which we announced the other day, the furniture and fixtures in the house we hear also entered.

The Committee of the English church is looking out for a suitable site for a new church, and it is probable that soon a place will be bought, as several excellent properties have been offered.

Much complaint is made about the extraordinary plethora of small bills, one dollar notes. Public companies like the Gas are perplexed to know what to do with these notes as the Bank won't receive them on deposit. This seems wrong, whatever the trouble or expense the bank should not refuse its own paper, and although it takes a clerk a day to count one hundred thousand dollars m/c. in one dollar bills, still the bank should suffer this trouble and inconvenience, and not the public.

The Savoie, the steamer in which the forger McDonnell fled, arrived at Rio on the 27th and sailed on the 28th. She took no less than 560 passengers from the Plate, besides about 40 from Rio. The Espresso sailed from Rio on the 29th for Europe. She took from the Plate 160 Italians. This shows the great movement at present in passenger traffic.

At the sailing of Olbers the following war vessels were in Rio harbour.

There has been a panic in the Rio market in the stock known as the Brazilian Navigation Company, caused by the rumour that a large amount of shares had been sent from New York to Rio for sale. Previous to this rumour the stock stood well and there was much speculation in it, but when this news got wind there was a tumble in the market. None of this stock is held in the River Plate.

Rio Uruguay,
Rio de la Plata,
Villa del Salto,
Concordia,
Daiman,
Guarani,
Gunzu,
Chaña,
Ponton Dido.

The deficit on December 31st 1869 was 82,73[illegible] pats., and notwithstanding the falling-off of trade by the fever, quarantine &c. the company has been gradually reducing this sum; it now stands at 8,337 pats. according to the balance sheet just published. This speaks well for the company and its management.

The engineers of the Rosario Railway are now out at San Pedro surveying the route. This looks like business.

The latest advices from Rosario give the following—

The Government has presented a bill to the Legislative Chambers asking for the sanction of the following law for a loan—

Art. 1 authorizes the Executive to contract a loan at home or abroad for the sum of seven millions of hard dollars, nominal value, in bonds of public revenue, with seven per cent. interest per annum, and two and a half per cent. amortization per annum, accumulative, to be drawn for at par; the which shall be disposed of at the highest price attainable, according to the instructions to be given by the Executive.

Art. 2 authorizes the Government to add to the amortization fund the interest on the bonds already cancelled.

Art. 3. The nett proceeds of this loan shall be employed precisely for the following purposes—

1st. In the payment of the Provincial debt, amounting to two hundred thousand dollars fuertes.

2nd. In constructing a railway to the colonies to the west.

3rd. In making roads and bridges, wharves and warehouses.

The surplus to be employed in founding a Provincial Bank of Discount and Emission, with a concession for a Banco Hipotecario.

Art. 4. The payment of this loan to be guaranteed by the general revenue of the province, public lands, and the proceeds of the several works executed with the proceeds of same.

Art. 5. The government will present at the proper time the bases of the statutes for the Provincial Bank, to be established with consent of Congress, or otherwise by shares without this consent.

Art. 6. Authorizes the government to pay for the projected works with part of the bonds of the loan.

The plan bears a good face, and if the government goes the right way about it, the loan will become a fact. A good deal will depend on the rate asked. Our correspondent thinks Mr. Irigondo is wrong in offering seven per cent. instead of six. He will not thereby get better terms, and he increases the annual amount to be paid, by 15 per cent., a very serious consideration.

The principal articles exported from Rosario during last month were as follows—

129 bales of sheep and goat skins.
4878 calf skins.
13 bales hair.
21579 hides.
717 bales wool.

BY
J. FERD. NAGEL,

J. FERD. NAGEL'S ferruginous Gin does not belong to that class of wonderful remedies which are being sold at exorbitant prices: on the contrary, the exceedingly moderate price places this most efficacious and valuable preparation within the easy reach of everybody. The ferruginous Gin is not intended for all possible maladies and ailments, but is a simple tonic, imparting to it just the quantity of iron necessary for the growth and sustenance of the body.

The medical testimonial treating upon the excellent qualities of this invigorating preparation, runs thus—"The ferruginous Gin having proved highly efficacious in many cases of scarcity of blood and nervous ailments, Mr. S. Ferd Nagel has applied himself to the task of preparing it has succeeded in composing a preparation which, taken alone or with the admixture of Soda, Selters or other effervescent waters, is not only agreeable to the taste, but extremely beneficial in its effects upon the stomach and the whole system. The ferruginous Gin containing besides the best vegetable Bitters (China Root, &c.) may be taken even by people of delicate constitution before and after dinner in doses varying from 2 to 4 tablespoons full,—100 parts ferruginous Gin contain 0,12 parts iron oxyd."

The ferruginous Gin may be recommended as an admirable cure for Green-Sickness, nervous ailments of all kinds, general debility, Fluor albus; it purifies the blood, creates appetite, promotes digestion and contains every ingredient necessary for the development and sustenance of the body. The excellent process adopted in the preparation renders it extremely mild in its operation, and it will be found valuable in imparting to the system just the quantity of iron required for the well being of the body.

Mr. J. Ferd. Nagel's ferruginous Gin was first prepared by him in the year 1850, and has since become a general favorite.

This ferruginous Gin has been used extensively and with eminent success as a renovator of the nervous system, and thousands have derived the greatest benefit from its use, for it not only sets right any irregularity of the stomach, liver, bowels and kidneys, but has also proved highly valuable against cholera.

Ferruginous Gin.
ANALYSIS
BY Professor Kyle.

The Iron exists in the form of a protosalt, one fluid ounce of the Gin containing 3-10ths of a grain of Protoxide of Iron. The Ferruginous Gin may therefore take its place among chalybeate preparations, and be employed with advantage where the administration of a tonic alcoholic stimulant is indicated.

COMPANIA DE SEGUROS.
"LA PROBIDAD."

HACE poco tiempo que los Sres. Ferber, Huhn y Cia. hicieron publico el proceder honorable que con ellos habia observado la Compañia de Seguros, "La Probidad," con motivo del naufragio del patacho italiano Arriete; y hoy me considero en el deber de hacerlo yo.

Habiendo ido a pique en el puerto de Corrientes la goleta de mi propiedad Margarita, pre entè a fines de Abril a la Compañia 'La Probidad,' donde estaba asegurada, la protesta y demas documentos de referencia; y tomados en consideracion, he sido inmediatamente embolsado del valor que me correspondia.

Me es agradable ver y hacer conocer que existen formadas en el pais verdaderas Compañias de Seguros que saben complir con su deber.

Esto es util para el asegurado, que puede estar tranquilo, porque sabe que, en un caso desgraciado, será embolsado de lo que ha perdido; y para las Compañias, porque, inspirando confianza, todos las buscaran para hacer en ellas sus seguros.

BANK MAUA AND C.O.

101--Calle Cangallo--103

BUENOS AYRES.

The immense advantages of Accounts Current are now so generally felt and appreciated in the two great emporiums of the River Plate, Montevideo and Buenos Ayres, that there are very few Merchants who fail to keep one at the bank in which they place the most confidence.

The Bank of Mauá & Co. in Montevideo has already provided for the working classes in that city a safe and profitable depository for their savings.

The sums deposited in that very important institution are daily increasing, and already reach a very large amount.

These advantages have not hitherto been enjoyed in this city by an immense number of clerks artisans, and workingmen, and servants of all classes and conditions, who are equally interested in putting their savings out at interest, thus providing themselves with a reserve fund in case of need sickness, or old age, instead of spending them in immoral gambling, in lotteries, and other frivolities.

The Bank of Mauá & Co. of this city, following a noble example of their firm in Montevideo, now offer the same facilities in this city, and has opened a Savings Bank at No. 103 Calle Cangallo from Nine a.m. till Three p.m. every day, for the reception of the savings of the classes already mentioned, Sundays and holidays excepted.

The Bank will deliver to each depositors a pass book, in which will be entered the amount deposited and withdrawn.

The depositor is permitted at any time to withdraw the whole or part of the sum deposited; in the former case the interes will be calculated up to date.

The Bank of Mauá & Co. is sufficiently known to the Public by the benefit derived from the course of its operations, which are regulated on the strictest and soundest principles, and always directed to promote the general welfare.

The Bank of Mauá & Co. are also persuaded that this new branch of their business will render immense service to the working classes of Buenos Ayres and its neighborhood.

PEPSINE—The popular and professional medicine for indigestion in Morson's Pepsine, the active principle of the gastric juice. In Powder, Lozenges, Globules, and as Wine.

The combination of Chloroform quickly relieves the pain and spasms of Cholera, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, and, in fact, all acute and nervous pains, and Chronic Coughs; frequently small doses will produce this beneficial result. Many of the Chlorodynes of commerce are not of uniform strength, this has induced Morson and Son to compound their preparation. Sole in ½-oz., 1, and 2-oz bottles.

GELATINE—The purest preparation of this nutritious agent extant is Morson's.

PEPTIC FOOD for Invalids and Infants digestible, nutritious, and palatable. Sold in ½-lb and 1-lb tins.

BETTS'S CAPSULE PATENTS.—To prevent Infringements Notice is hereby given, that BETTS'S NAME is on every Capsule and makes for the principal merchants in England and France, thus enabling vendor, purchaser, and consumer, not only to identify the genuineness of the Capsule, but likewise the contents of the vessel to which it is applied. The Lord Chancellor, in his judgment, on the 8th of February, 186-, said that the Capsules are not used merely for the purpose of the ornament, but that they are serviceable in protecting the wine from injury and insuring its genuineness.

Dr. Jackson's

COLDS,
Accompanied with Cough,
ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, HOOPING COUGH, AND PULMONARY CONSUMPTION.

Prepared at the Laboratory of the London and Liverpool Pharmacy,
10——COLLEGE-LANE——10

Dr. JACKSON'S BALSAMIC PECTORAL.

Is a remedy long employed by the eminent Physician whose name it bears, and is carefully prepared from the original Recipe by the present Proprietors. It is composed entirely of vegetable products, and combines valuable expectorant qualities with those of a soothing curative nature. It has already won golden opinions in Europe by its wondrous effect in allaying pulmonary irritation, and its promoting a healthy action of the membranes lining the throat and lungs, arresting the progress of disease and decay, and even, when used at an early stage, arresting that most terrible of chest diseases—Pulmonary Consumption.

The value of a remedy, within the reach of all, which by its therapeutic action controls and cures a vast bulk of the diseases to which mankind is liable, cannot be overrated. A brief notice accompanying each bottle, of the principal complaints for which it is specially applicable will be found useful; and, instead of presenting a host of testimonials of more or less value the Proprietor simply begs "One Trial," which will far better establish its reputation and gain the confidence of those who need the relief it affords than the repeated experiences of other sufferers, all of whom may be strangers to the patient.
