The phave been bred with special view to their adaption to all requirements, and the range of soil and herbage in the different parts of the country. Sheepfarmers, therefore, will find in this lot, animals of size, weight of carcase, length and sub-tance of wool, nicely graduated to suit all camps from the richest deep black loam, through all the grades of good and medium camps, and also the fine but less fattening camps, such as the Magdalena and others more or less esimilar.

The character of the wool is marvellously perfect and permanent, and no breed of weighty carcased Merinos can compare with them in shortness of leg and depth of carcase.

Throw will also be on sale 2 or 3 animals two years old.

Sheepfarmers must be on tiev at No. 164 Calle Victoria three days previous to the Auction.

THE PANIC IN LONDON.

The London panic should be the heme for our colleagues, yet it has been overlooked. Nothing could more clearly indicate the changed fortunes of the Prate than this financial collapse, caused by a ten-word telegram from Lisbon. Doubtess Dr. Tejedor has, ere this, awakened to the full import of his note of the 27th April. If he has not, then, to the industry of an aspiring band of colleagues we leave the task of his enlightening him. We have gained the winning post too often in such matters editorial industry can alone afford; we know full well where the shoe pinches the highway of Argentine polities.

Whatever is the position of the River Plate to-day, we suppose that none will advance the doctrine that political influences have achieved it. Every nation, to a certain degree, is the architect of its own fortune; but there are standpoints from which, it we view a nation's progress, this statement requires much qualification; and when we consider all the influences at work here that are not of the people's choosing, and are utterly and absolutely beyond their control, we catch the true River Plate moulding which

Political errors, it is proved, now are but the stepping stones to advancement and knowledge. Had there been no Tejedor, no diplomatic note of 27th April, there would have been no stock panie, and few of the more domesticated Argentines would have been surprized into the importance of their country in the exterior. The lines which bounded Argentine life are now every day overpassed, and the previous intolerable insignificance of the country is replaced by an importance that challenges every care to maintain. This country has within the last five years advanced so rapidly that the people must now accept a position which has been more forced upon perity; the Argentine Republic sails with the current, nothing more. The development of commercial facilities and relations at present going on in South America is marvellous. but it is natural, not artificial: the current sweeps us on, and as for the possibility of a minister or a ruler dicourse which he obeys, not directs, we have outlived such nonsense, as also the fudge of attributing the progress of a country to the sabiduria

"Well aware of the disastrous conequences which would have flown from such a rupture to your country and to us all, I immediately consulted our friend, Mr. Baring (who is as much alive as ever to the interests of your country), and with his approval I im mediately wrote to our friend, Lord Granville, who is a most excellent. able, and judicious man, begging him if he thought proper in case of need to offer the mediation of England beween your country and Brazil, as it would, indeed, be too bad, now that we have settled our differences with the United States and all Europe, and the world at peace, that Brazil and you should enter on a war for which which would deluge La Plata and South America in blood; and both those countries uselessly and barbarously waste their energies in slaughtering each other-so much required, and so much better employed in the ample fields open to you both, in the vast districts which an Almighty Being has placed under your control.

The commercial prosperity of the city of Valparaiso dates from the establishment of Chile as an independent State, and depends partly upon its position as port of the capital and the natutal outlet of fertile and wealthy tracts of land, and partly upon its nearly all vessels entering the Pacific. HAPPY CHILDREN. As house plants cannot flourish without sunshine, so children cannot thrive and be happy without love. How radiant are their bright faces as they respond to tones and words of affection from the lips of their parents! Little they can know of the deep solicitude, the constant care exercised toward them; but they do fully understand and appreciate protestations of love and tenderness. Why should we have the stand and processes the standard of the standar citude, the constant care exercised toward them; but they do fully understand and appreciate protestations of love and tenderness. Why should we be chary of these when they cost only the speaking? "I know now," said a lady not long ago, "that my mother loved me tenderly, but during all my childhood I doubted it. It I were really dear to her, I queried, why did she never caress me and assure me of her love. She thought her actions spoke loudly enough without words. I could not read her actions then as I could not read her actions then as I can now, and how I longed to hear her lap me in the sweet embrace of her strong mother love." Many a little heart aches just as this lady's did, and her actions by the spouts.

We have to thank Mr. Daws for the last number of 'Harper'. As usual it comes full of the most readable and interesting matter:— Señor Castelar continues his history of European Republicanism. Of his full and resonant paragraphs one can complain only that they need anchorage at intervals-they occasionally plunge somewhat too wildly on the sea of rhetoric. His warm and generous ad-miration for the American political school shows at once the happy result of telescopic observation and an absolute fact which impatient Americans are too often apt to forget—that, with all its follies and abstricties, our republic does sustain and fulfill through the law of conscience the noblest ideal of government. The apostles of this American school in France, Castelar censures mildly, in that they have not cultivated in reality that federal idea to which, in theory, they have been So purely and platonically devoted.
