Here we see that England stands for 30 per cent. of the entire trade, no other country at all rivalling her. Chile than with Brazil; and the Unit ed States represent as much in our commerce as Italy and Spain put to gether. Until recently Belgium held the first rank in our export tables, but last year England took the most produce from us. Among the countries not specified above, Germany sends us imports worth over a million, and Paraguay half-a-million.

Comparing 1871 with the previous year we find France fell off one-half both in imports and exports, England declined about 10 or 12 per cent. Belgium remained stationary, United States fell off one-third in imports, Spain and Germany one-fourth; while Oriental nearly doubled. Chile also En las Toscas, a solo cinco leaguas de increased, one-fourth.

Ayres stands for 83 per cent. of the trade of the Republic, Rosario for S, and the minor ports 9 per cent. Most of the export trade to Chile is by way of Mendoza and passes duty-free.

Reviewing the import-trade in 1870 and 71 we find that in the latter year the articles which suffered notable into be executed, in order to complete that in to the required elevation, which was successfully accomplished.

From the summit downwards on the east side of the mountains for a considerable distance no difficulty of importance presents itself, the line naturally following the course traced out for it by the Rivers Ciego and Azufre. It is not until it enters the narrow and fortunous valley of the Valenzaela that important obstacles are met with these arise principally from the years sidelong nature of the ground, and the rapid fall of the river, which is in reality a mountain torrent. Towards its lower end this valley becomes less difficult for railway construction.

Up to this point there is no choice or selection as to the route to follow, there being but one practicable line, but there the opening in the mountains first of the Pampas portion of the faming a tolerably direct line to San Rafael, consequently the party as already stated, surveyed up the River Considers and over the lowest part of the watershed which separates the streams of the route of object of or ording the valley becomes and over the lowest part of the watershed which separates the streams of the route of the constraint of the Pampas portion of the route of large radius on this section and over the lowest part of the watershed which separates the streams of the province of the province of the constraint of the Pampas portion of the province of th in this state of affairs, to make confusion more confounded, the public offices, according to Article 11, are to tender! The little port of Santa Fe is crowd-ed with small craft—there are ten schooners at the mouth of the laguna, and twenty at the mouth of the arroyo. Beyond question there is an improvement in that quarter. The Govern-ment has ple sty of money, and the crops this year will be layer than ever. There is also some year will be larger than ever. There is also some movement in the sale of estancia lands, and some parties in Buenos Ayres have been buying large-

The Cordovese minister is in town, and there is some probability of the loan for £600,0 00 being done in this market. The prospects of Cordova are also improving, notwithstanding that letters from that city give everything as very dull; still some immense transactions in lands are spoken of, and when concluded we shall be the first to give full particulars. The Rio Cuarto Railway will give a newvalue to the territory thereabout, whilst the railway to the lime kilns is destined to supply this market with a very important staple, lime. The commencement of the Tucuman Railway will throw into Cordova new life, and things are at last beginning to brighten in that direction.

are at last beginning to brighten in that direction.

Mr. Oliden is about to start a public market in the town of San Nicolas. The impression is that it will pay, and Mr. Oliden's name has been so long connected with the beef business that the market looks in good hands.

The collection of accounts in the interior is at times attended with much risk. A young man named Bravo who was sent from Buenos Ayresto the province of Santiago for the purpose of collecting documental evidence to prove some debt against this Government was on his arrival up there at once arrested and put in the tecks; he was subsequently liberated and allowed to leave the province.
