The brothers MacKinnon are grandsons of Mr. Alexander MacKinnon banker and Admiralty prize agent at Naples in the last century; this gentleman appears to have been robbed of brought such discredit upon the hero of the Nile and Trafalgar. All efforts from his own Government proving unsuccessful, he emigrated to B. Ayres in 1808, bought a quiuta close to town, died there some years later, leaving his son, Charles Villiers MacKinnon, the are :heir to a reduced patrimony. The preent claimants are sons of the lastnamed and as natives of Montevideo solicit the support of the Oriental Government in making good their demand for said £40,000 against King Victor Emmanuel as legal representative of Ferdinand IV. of Naples, who despoil-

At last he escaped from the fortress by means of a basket, and made his way to England. His case had been put through a kind of trial at Naples in presence of the jurymen, but he had protested against Sir W. Hamilton and his jury, demand. ing rather to be tried by the laws of Naples. Count Acton did not seek to counteract the measures of Lady Hamilton in the matter; nor did Prince Castelcicala, and the King said if they would not trouble him he cared little how the case was decided. Count Acton was son of an English doctor in Besanzon and early entered the French navy, subsequently passing into the Tuscan service. Mr. Canning refused to interfere in a case already decided by

Her Majesty's Ambassador at Naples. Following the dates as closely as possible we find that Mr. Mackinnon settled in Naples in 1793, was imprisoned in 1795, escaped to England and vainly appealed for justice till 1808, came to B. Ayres and was enrolled as a citizen in 1812, and died in 1816.

During his imprisonment at Castel de Ovo some one sent him a present of a basket of fruit, of which he was about to eat when the jailer snatched the fruit from him, throwing it to a nopudier do embrearse los pasageros suspendio su sai da para Montevideo efectuandolo hoy para el mismo destino a las 51 de la terlo.

The manner in which he got out of the The manner in which he got out of the fortress was this: concealed in a basket of clothes, a stout porter carried the basket through the castlegateway, and not knowing its contents put it on the parapet of a bridge, where the wind caused it to oscilate, until the porter proceeded on his errand and the prisoner reached a place of safety.

MacKinnon, with his little boy. made his way to London. By his second wife he had three children, and on his death his slaves buried him in his own quinta, there being no cemetery for Protestants in Buenos Ayres. His son seems to have despaired of obtaining justice from the Bourbons: but the grandsons have better expectations from Victor Emmanuel, and as General Jose Maria de la Cruz, is the case seems well supported by his dead. The Army will go into mourn tory, we hope they may succeed in getting that justice which was denied their grandfather. As Victor Emmanuel has taken the assets and property of the Bourbon Kings of Naples, he is bound by Roman and modern law to answer for their debts and obligations. Perhaps at any other moment the Mackinnon brothers would have less chance than now, but as sundry Italian claims are about to be arranged lian Government should now more readily lend an ear to so well founded

The collections from the interior are improving, and the fact that the mercantile classes have withstood the pressure with so little of disaster is regarded as a good indication of the healthful condition of trads. It seems to be the general sentiment that, while individuals may suffer, and the country in general may feel pressed for a time the late financial flurry will make it better and healthier for all lusiness interests in the end. The Railway; the decision is that Mr. Crabtree must necessity of curtailing manufacturing production is forcing itself upon the mill-owners, and arrangements are making to that end in various sections of the country. This temporary curtailment is to be deplored, yet, in the present state of trade it would simply be courting disaster to go on piling up goods to make still greater losses. Foreign goods of any kinds are equally difficult of sale at satisfactory prices, and some of the more luxurious descriptions-as silks, sating laces, velvets, &c-are being reshipped in considerable quantities to Europe. 'Gold and exchange have ruled a trifle firmer on less favorable financial reports per cable, the Bank of England rate having been a ivanced to 7 per cent. on Saturday. In our market there is a better supply of money at 7 Musical Instruments, per cent. currency to 7 per cent. gold, though who went to see a friend off had to sleep on some little business has been done at a commis-18 per cent., according to the date of maturity. The outstanding legal tenters are $359,500 000 and decreasing. West rn produce is coming forward freely, and the export trade is going along smoothly, with the promse of an increase, now that the cotton receipts at the southern ports have become large. We annex the range for gold. "The exports of nearly every commodity we send abroad have greatly increased, except gold, the shipments of which have materially decreased, as have also the imports of general merchandise. Take the statistics of the commerce of our own port for example. About two-thirds of the entire imports of the country, and about one-half the exports, pass in and out of New York. Now during the past nine months the imports at this in his circular for the Liffey, gives the following port feel off thirty-nine mi lions of dollars in gold - while the exports, exclusive of stecie, increased forty-eight millions, compared with the same period last year. At nost of the other leading ports of the country there has been a proportionate decrease of imports and increase of exports, with every prospect that this westly improved condition of our foreign commerce will be continued for severa! months to come. "The necessities of Europa for food, cotton &c., coupled with the great y decreased exports of costly merchandise to this country, must be the means of the shipment of further large sums of gold. John Thompson, in his Bank Note Reporter, says-'lt is now quite certain that we shal get, during the fal and winter, near $50,000,000 of gold from Europe.' '
