est emission (in April, 1874) only reached 3,992,983$, and instead of emitting up to four times their specie reserve, the latter at no period (except the opening month of November) fell below half the emission, the greatest difference between emission and reserve being in June, 1874, viz.: emission, 3,223,870$; reserve, 1,834,613$.

Notes. Value. Not over $5 662,404 $634,666 From 5 to 100$ 109,837 2,038,710 200 and 500$ 2,527 624,700 Total 774,768 $3,348,076

The above tables show that in this short period of 11 months the National Bank notes have become an important part of the monetary system of the Republic.

The rate of discount has been 12 per cent, except during an interval from April to June, when it was only 10 per cent. The Bank has uniformly allowed 8 per cent on fixed deposits, except from February to June, when it was only 7 per cent.

As only 15 per cent of the capital was paid-up the Directors made a call of 5 per cent preparatory to opening branches in the Provinces, as prescribed by law.

A minute study of the Share-list as it at present stands shows us that 47 shareholders hold from 500 to 8,000 shares each.

The manner in which the shares are held is as follows: Nat. Government 20,000 B. Ayres subscribers 140,379 Santa Fe 9,058 Entre Rios 6,745 Mendoza 4,555 Salta 3,607 Tucuman 3,603 San Juan 3,066 Cordoba 2,649 Corrientes 1,742 Catamarca 1,591 Jujuy 1,355 San Luis 478 Santiago 433 Rioja 336 200,000

The Directors point out that as soon as they made a 4th call the shares were offered on the market at 15 per cent discount, because in many cases the persons who had subscribed did so for speculation and beyond their means.

As regards Branch-banks in the Interior the charter laid down that before Nov. 1874 one should be opened in each province that subscribed 500 shares, that is in all except Santiago and Rioja.

But for the revolution these Branches would be all now in full blast; however, on Sept. 25th the Finance Minister ordered the Directors to suspend the opening of branches and destroy the notes intended for them.

The Directors hope that a speedy restoration of peace will enable them to open the other branches, as that of Rosario is doing much good.

Art. 17 to be slightly altered. "From 1st January, 1875, calls to be made of 5 per cent every three months till six calls from that date."

Art. 20 to stipulate not only a specie-reserve of one-fourth for amount of emission, but also for amount of deposits; suspending all discounts if necessary.

Art. 31—to add that even partners of persons indebted to the Bank cannot be Directors.

Art. 33—to require that at least 8 Directors to be conformable if any customer wants over 40,000$, or wishes to renew by paying less than 25 per cent. Also to prohibit renewing bills to anyone with protested paper, until 12 months after such be paid.

Art. 48. After the election of new Directors the names to be submitted to the old Directors. If they do not approve of the election a new General Meeting to be called.

THE SITUATION. SIXTY-FOURTH DAY. President Avellaneda received a telegram yesterday from Colonel Rocca at a place called Balde, as follows:

"Remingtons arrived. Nelson's men well-armed. Last night caught a scout of Arredondo, who says he is moving. I go to meet. Letters from San Juan 20th, nothing new."

The War-office yesterday published a decree for a Marine battalion of 400 men under Col. Belby, to be made up of naval cadets and recruits.

Colonel Mansilla telegraphed yesterday from Cordoba: "One battalion marched to-day, another goes to-morrow to Rosario, a third on Saturday. I am expecting the San Alberto contingent."

Col. Acebal of Victoria telegraphs that his regiment of Entre Rios is ready to march to Rosario, as soon as their clothing arrives from Parana.

Colonel Arias telegraphed yesterday from La Verde that 14 Mitristas passed over to him, and reported General Mitre's army breaking up in groups in all directions, some going with Rivus to Blanca Grande, others to 25 de Mayo, others towards Chivilcoy.

The same paper says that Lopez Jordan was still in Paysandu last Sunday, surrounded by numerous friends who were anxious to know what course he would take.

An army correspondence of the Nacional, dated Azul, Sunday 22nd, has the following: "This is our second visit to Azul, having been here on 15th. It is time for us to rest our army after ten days' forced marches, for we pursued the enemy so hotly that they had no time either to sleep or eat, and show no disposition to come within range of our 6 Krupp guns."

"When our friends in B. Ayres thought us lost in the Vecino swamps we were marching on, sometimes under a scorching sun, sometimes under rain, from Dolores to Ranch, from Ranch to Azul, from Azul to Tapalquen, from Tapalquen to Sierra Chica and Olabarria."

"Approaching Azul on the 15th Nov. we expected the enemy would make a stand, but heard he had again fled. We halted only 15 minutes and started again in pursuit, reaching Tapalquen next day, just as the enemy were preparing for dinner; but when they heard Col. Winter was coming up with the 5th cavalry they cleared out, leaving behind them some stragglers in the village, 300 firelocks and carbines, some of them Remingtons, besides waggon &c."

"Next day (17th) we started at day-break for Olabarria, where the enemy was reported; we pushed on all day and all night, for Julio Campos was in his 7-league boots to overtake the enemy."

"It was 2 in the morning when we crossed the Arroyo at Olabarria (village founded by Colonel Barros, the actual Governor), and as we entered the place on one side the Mitristas cleared out, on the other, leaving us 2 fine brass guns, 250 muskets, a quantity of lances and about 50 stragglers. At sunrise some 200 Indians passed over to us, and by noon the whole tribe of 600 had joined us, except the Cacique Catriel and 100 followers, including Diego Saavedra, Serapio Rosas and others who did not wish to surrender."

"Then Colonel Lagos was sent in pursuit of Catriel, and when some men went with a flag of truce the enemy took them and cut their throats, whereupon the Indians surrounded Catriel and would have put him and his friends to death but that Colonel Lagos came up in time with the 2nd cavalry, to save him, but not before Paymaster Rosas and his son were lanced. Saavedra, Zapata and Catriel had a narrow escape of sharing their fate. Lagos had ridden 8 leagues through mountains and swamps."

"Catriel had just thrown down his revolver, and Lagos rushing in through a host of lances cried out 'spare his life, brothers! He is as fit as an Alderman, with features like Sarmiento or D. Manuel Egoia, and fine eyes! He was naturally very frightened, but afterwards ate some 'asado' with much relish. His epaulettes of General were torn from his shoulders, and I have them as a relic: he looked very savage when they were torn off. He is now deposed, and all his followers, wives, house and cattle pass to his brother the new Cacique, Juan Jose Catriel."

"The rebel army marched 20 leagues towards Bahia Blanca, then countermarched to Blanca Grande, 21 leagues from here. We have a grand ball here to-night, and set out to-morrow to wind up the campaign which will be all over in 15 days (Dec. 6th)."

CENTRAL AMERICA. LATEST FROM PANAMA.

The Star and Herald of Oct. 24th, contains a lengthy account of the Guatemala satisfaction to the British flag, which passed off most happily, except as regards a poor Guatemalan soldier who was killed by the fall of the Government flag-staff.

The earthquake which destroyed Old Guatemala on Sept. 3rd in thus described:—"Long after the first shock had passed there was still the noise of walls falling more or less distant. Suddenly arose the sounds of hundreds of voices chanting a Hymn to the Creator for mercy; the solemn melody had a strange effect on my excited nerves and feelings. Many shocks followed during the night, of varying intensities, every one of which gave rise to new alarms and new imprecations for mercy. The night seemed an age in length."

"Even during the terror of the first shock there were not wanting perverse men who appeared with long knives for the purpose of stealing and murdering, and tried to do so, but fortunately the political chief of Antigua proved to be the right man for the occasion. He took measures at once to put down such pests of society and saved the people of Antigua from murder and plunder."

"All the squares and open places of Antigua are covered with tents and other modes of shelter. The inhabitants look with fear to the approach of night, expecting a repetition of the earthquake at the same hour. The children alone seem to enjoy this mode of life, regarding it probably as a nice picnic. Happy childhood!"

"Even carriages and carts serve as temporary abodes. It will take some time before the people of Antigua, Guatemala, recover serenity of mind enough to go to sleep in their tottering houses."

"No less than 200 lives have been lost, with the greater part of the public edifices and private houses either entirely ruined or threatening to fall. President Barrios and his Ministers betook themselves at once to the scene of disaster, comforted the frightened people, and supplied them with money for their more pressing needs."

Sr. Francisco de Paula Suarez has been appointed Minister Plenipotentiary of Salvador to the Government of the King of Italy.

The Government of Salvador has named Committees to receive contributions in aid of those who suffered from the recent earthquake in Guatemala.

From August 1873 to the present Guatemala has enjoyed a year of peace. Before that time several factions kept the country in hot water, and diminished personal security. Capital was withdrawn from commerce, and agriculture for this and other causes was almost at a stand-still. Laborers had to be taken and made soldiers of. Intercommunication now exists throughout the republic without fear or danger from any source. The President was expected to return soon to the Capital.

With respect to the Exposition of Chile to which Guatemala has been asked to contribute, the common people it seems who do not understand the subject, ask whether it be true that there is to be an exposition of Chile (peppers).

The Government has published a pamphlet giving the documents relative to the negotiation of a loan for the construction of a railroad from San Jose to the capital, contracted for by W. F. Kelly, Esq.

"Joseph Brickbat Jones" writes to the Pall Mall Gazette:—"Sir, For many years past I have been bold enough to question the great Chauden hypothesis about Christian names. I have turned the question over in my mind as much as ever did Mr. Shandy himself, and though I differ from him altogether in my theory, yet I am at one with him in maintaining that on the choice and imposition of Christian names a great deal more depends than what superficial minds are capable of conceiving. Mr. Shandy maintained that there was a strange kind of magic bias which good or bad names, as he called them, irresistibly impressed upon our characters and conduct. How many Cæsars and Pompeys, he would say, by mere inspiration of the names have been rendered worthy of them? I am ready to admit that there is a certain amount of truth in the negative part, if I may so describe it, of his hypothesis. I can easily believe, for instance, that if Mr. Gladstone had been christened Jeremiah, Mr. Disraeli Abraham, or Mr. Bradlaugh Emmanuel, the course of English history might have been changed."

I was led to consider Mr. Shandy's theory the more closely as I am one of those unhappy men who were to have been inspired by a name. My godfather was that eminent philanthropist, Dr. Joseph Brickbat. I belong myself to a family of philanthropists, and a philanthropist I was intended to be from my very cradle. When I was good I was told that, if I was only spared to grow up, I should be worthy of my godfather; and when I was naughty I learnt that, even if I was not cut off for my sins, I could never hope to follow in the steps of the illustrious Dr. Joseph Brickbat. By my brothers and sisters, as well as by my parents and nurses, as a term of endearment, I was called Brickbat. I was scolded always under the name of Brickbat. There is little wonder that I soon got to dislike a name which was never applied to me but when I was in disgrace.

It may be the case that a philanthropist, like a poet, is born and not made, and that nature never intended me for a career of active benevolence. I think, however, that it is chiefly owing to my name that the world has had one reformer the less. Had I been called Jack or Dick or Tom or even Andrew, which with Mr. Shandy was something like a negative quantity in algebra, I might now be writing a paper for the Social Science Association instead of this letter to the Pall Mall Gazette. You have noticed, no doubt, that just as last century a physician gained his patient's confidence by his gold-headed staff and his full-bottomed wig, so at the present day he relies chiefly on having as his Christian name some family name—the stranger the better. It is impossible to believe that all our young doctors received from their godfathers and godmothers the out-of-the-way names that they display on the plates of their doors. Some surely must have taken their names about the same time that they took their degree. Now, Sir, if ever I have children to christen I shall give them those names which are most opposite to the qualities and sentiments which I should wish to see them develop. If I were a staunch teetotaler, I would call the child, who was so soon to be enrolled in the Band of Hope, not Wilfred Lawson, but Barclay Perkins or Silenus Bacchus. As a strong Low Churchman, I should go to Miss Yonge's tales for my names, and choose Weucelas, Ursula, Anselm, and the rest. As a no less strong High Churchman, I should select Martin Luther, Ridley Latimer, or Spurgeon Cumming. You have doubtless noticed how the children of the present day bear names that were never heard of when Glaucus was consul, and you and I were boys. A generation has arisen which knows not Joseph or Tom, or Jack either. There is great reason to hope that the children that are now growing up into men and women will, by the mere force of the contrariety of human nature, turn into plain, sober matter-of-fact people. The Aubyns and Eustaces, and Seymours and Percies, who are now equalizing around us, will, when they are a few years older, blush over their fine names, and long to be as simple as if they were so many Toms and Bills. The Vauxhall mediocrity of the present age will then, perhaps, see its end.

I am, Sir, Your obedient servant, Joseph Brickbat Jones.

EDITOR'S TABLE. The Sorata's mails from Chile, Peru and Central America were delivered here yesterday. There is nothing very exciting from either of those quarters, except an account of the recent shake up in Guatemala, which will be found in another column. Our excellent contemporary the Star and Herald announces that a Panama hat factory is about to be established in the city of that name, there not being a single one as yet in the town. The famous 'sombreros' so well and favourably known all over the world are not, it appears, manufactured for ages at Ecuador, where the secret of making them is closely kept. The value of the wonderful hats varies from ten shillings to ten pounds sterling, as they can only be made when there is no sun and the atmosphere contains much moisture, and it takes a long time to finish a single hat now, however, is the 'Canton plait'; a beautiful Chinese straw hat which is sold in London at the wonderfully low price of 2d to 6d. This is worth knowing, as the straw hat season here has come in. No doubt some of our importers will be advertising the Canton plait shortly.

There was again a complete death of news yesterday morning. Everything was as dull as ditchwater, and even the spiciest 'bolas' were scouted, as people are getting weary of them. All attention seems to be turned Northward now for the next news.

Our Panama colleague the Star and Herald takes the following slip at B. Ayres in a recent issue—"The Buenos Ayres Standard of the 9th September last has come to hand, in which it acknowledges having Central American papers to the end of July—in which it finds 'all the little republics at peace, and some of them making what they call progress.' Further, our Transandine contemporary wants to know what about Mr. Magee and his 'numerical beating.' All we can say is, that whatever be the progress of Central America, it cannot show anything like the list of assassinations and other crimes that are every now and then told of the Argentine Confederation."

The novelty of the day in B. Ayres in the way of liquor is the famous brandy just introduced to this market by the enterprising commercial agent, Mr. Fisher, of the Passage Argentino, better known as 'Rom Court.' It is called 'Cognac Bovine,' being composed in equal parts of the purest French Cognac and extract of beef, and guaranteed free from any acid, unwholesome and essential oils, salts, or any other impurity. For family use and invalids it has attained an immense reputation in Europe since the Franco-German war, half the cures on both sides being mainly due to its use, its effects proving marvellous.

A new line of steamers has been established between London and Antwerp and Rio Grande do Sul. The pioneer ship, the Doña Isabel, will be launched on the 10th of this month and Antwerp on 20th.

The arrival of Lopez Jordan's family at Montevideo is announced. The General himself is expected at Paysandu.

The New York papers say that Mr. Roach, in his yard at Chester, Pennsylvania, proposes to immediately lay the keels of three iron steamships of 3,500 tons burden for the Pacific Mail Steamship Company.

Look out for Bollaert and Co's. auction to-night at 116 Calle Florida. Gorgeous chance.

Nothing in the papers! Read one read all, and be just as wise at the finish as at the start. We never remember the Buenos Ayres papers so appallingly dull.

The Municipal proctor officially opened a few days ago a house in Calle Montevideo which has been closed since 1899, in which year the proprietor "kicked the bucket," and not a soul has since turned up to claim the property.

The demand for labour up the country is increasing every day. Fully 2,000 hands are required for harvest and other work, but they are not to be had.

Old fashioned schools were more thorough in some respects than modern ones. It took a boy but a very short time to learn how many rods made an acher.

The latest scientific wonder is said to be an invention by which a speed of 60 miles per hour will be attained at sea! An English engineer is credited with the discovery, which consists in changing "in toto" the present form of ships, and building them on a system of inclined planes, applying three times the present relative steam power.

years ago. This is enough. Respectable mediocrity has never the remotest chance of seeing its name in the columns of that paper. "Aut Caesar aut nullus,"—the whole hog or none.

The Montevideo papers are calling the attention of the public there to a famous artist, M. Bouvy, of Messrs. Bate and Co. the well known photographers. M. The following report about the American wool market has come out by the mail and is important.

"The visible supply from foreign countries, to arrive, is as follows:—

"From the Cape of Good Hope

"The J. A. Brown was loading and would bring about 1,350 bales to Boston, 650 bales of which is for Canadian account.

"The arrivals here of carpet wools from the foreign sources seem to be unusually large, and nothing could better denote the improvement in this trade than the fact that such a large proportion of stocks on hand and the arrivals since July last have been taken by or were imported for manufacturers' account.

"It is also apparent that while supplies are still obtainable in Europe and more especially in London, and the European markets do not advance, there is no danger of a rapid or stiff advance in the price of wool at home, as transportation from Europe is quick and cheap, and reasonable quantities bought at London now, and later in Australia, South America, and at the Cape, which will not doubt be done and which in the natural course arrive at the period of greatest scarcity, will leave our markets where though strong and well sustained, there need be no excitement.

"Indications from most reliable sources point to an active and prosperous Fall Trade. Should this occur in the present dilemma of the wool market, it is not unlikely that, whatever may be brought about or ordered for American account, prices may go higher.

Nothing new in produce. Prices maintained. The wools in market are sold with some difficulty; but none have gone into deposit.
