THE WESTERN RAILWAY.

This line which runs slow length along, having made many an ineffectual attempt to pass Moorne, is at last in a fair way being prolonged to the Villa Mercede.

The outer wall of enter prise among local capitals is now manifestly evident, so that the original shareholders will be likely to early come to its natural terminus, and in default of private speculators, the Govt. of Buenos Aires has become rea sonable and propitious.

The original capital, consisting of mechanical and legislative cap abilities, it can be denied that the prolongation of the Western Line by hook or by crook, will be productive of much benefit to the country.

By virtue of law of Oct. 30th and resolution of share-holders of 24th inst., the W. railway passes into the hands of Government the 1st January 1863; the condi tions of transfer being clearly stated as follows:

The original shares are liquidated, with 5% annual interest to date of adjustment, the debt to the Bank, and the shares reduced to 100.

The original capital, less the amount of interest, is to be paid up by the 1st Jan uary, and the balance to be paid up by the 1st July.

The original shares are to be held by the Govt. for the purposes of the railway until paid off, and by law of Oct. 30th, the Govt. is vested with the power to sell the same.

is expected, will soon fill the lan d with a population of 100,000.
For the moment, we are in the establishment of a large popu lation, but we do not doubt that it will be easily successful for the country contains many val uable resources, and the Govt. has a well-known command of the Directorio, who, in their war against the English, had an enormous army to put into public and private libraries, caused these books to be hidden by their authors.

SOUTH AMERICAN RAILWAY.

We are told that a meeting ular, taking with him the news of the approval, by the Govern ment, of the statutes contract ing the service.

The Government bears no costs to publish that contract, and specifications of the works.

Has brought amongst its passen gers General Vega, an officer of the Spanish Army, and a Major of Engineers, and the Chief Engineer of the line of Ezeiza and M. E. Mills, the chief contractor of the San Francisco Railway.

He brings 150 passengers from the Argentine, but has not yet received any, but we have written to him, from which we extract the following:

I have been unable to go by the first mail, in order, but I have arrived in time to receive my mail and family, and I am already enroute to Villa Mercede by the 25th inst.

I have not been fully recovered from my illness, but I have seen the com mencement of several important events of our country.

I am writing to you as a salutary reminder that I am still very weak.

LATEST FROM EUROPE.

ARRIVAL OF ST. SAUVEUR.

(16 days later now.)

The Sabine, having changed captain, arrived yesterday morning, having made 2 days under sail.

The news he brings is not of the greatest importance, as in Europe every thing is without change, and in North America, the result of the battle of the Demolition of the Confederate Fleet, and the capture of General McClellan, is the first event on Mr.

Lindley's list of the late events, it is impossible not to come to the conclu sion that Mr. McClellan is here to stay, and to the political domination of power. The result of the battle was known to us a few hours after the victory, and the silence of the Confederates is evident.

The English are surprised and watchful, and in a moment of terror displace one another in McClellan's line, and in the encampment edge of Mr. Lincoln's army, the English are evidently the antithesis of the Confederates.
