BAD NEWS from the INTER.OR We very much fear that the system of secresy is bringing the republic to the verge of an abyss, from which nothing but great energy and singular good posed that we wish to cause a vain plarm; but " to be forewarned is to be forcarmed," and we shall better be able to combat the danger by knowing its real character The Interior is in a lamentable con dition, and if we could see Rioja, Catamarca, San Juan, San Luis, and Santiago, our blood would run cold at the desolation, barbarities, and disorder which the scene presents. While our which the scene presents. While our writers and politicians listen to Jullien's reptotous strains at Colon, the wail of anguish and despair is borne by the winds of Heaven across the described homesteads of San Luis, sacked by the Indians. While Argentine philanthro nists, on downy couches, dream of pists, on downy couches, dream of ing at Concordia to learn that his part-regenerating neighbouring republics, ner had not arrived there yet. Conpeaceable citizens are horribly murdered founded and astonished, he hurried by the Chacho's hordes, among whom a thirst for revenge has been generated by Molina's, Sarmiento's, Maubecin's. and Posse's, extravagances, and terrible rigor. While sympathy is colleted for revolutionary Assaretto, confined in the Policia, not a word is snoken of the arbitrary arrest of Argentino citizens in several of the above named provinces.

The enemies of President Mitre's

Government are not slow to make pre-texts of such remissness as a plea for sedition. We read in the 'Reforma' that a Reserie merchant named Paz (nephew to the general) was making a tour of the upper provinces to recover some debts. He describes his treatment as worse than he could expect from the Indians, being first detained at Tucuman by the Governor, and lastly, pursued for his life, at Santiago, because he would not cry "Mucra," with the mob. He escaped on the night of Aug. 26th, and no fewer than 40 chasques were sent after him " to take him dead or alive." (Would to God the authoritics would send so many to catch a murderer!) But he cluded them all, and Governor Taboada then seized his unfortunate broiler, keeping him in irons " till the fugitive turn up."

It is not to be wondered that in sight

> HORRIBLE DISCOVERY. Sixteen Corpses Exhumed.

"Murder will out." There never spots in Entry Rios, between Concordia and Restauration, there has been a striking proof of this proverb.

Close to an unfrequented by road leading from Restauracion, there lived married couple, without children, and without any means of existence, sava-that afforded by a little maize, chacra, and a few heads of cows. Many of the neighbours wondered how these people lived so comfortably, and always with plenty of money; but as the husband had the reputation of being a quiet industrious gamelia, and his wife a thriften housewife, there existed not the slightest suspicion of anything wrong. Several people, however, were missed, and no one could tell what had become of them. Some thought they had perished in the woods, a prey to wild dogs; others that they had been murdered by some of the dangerous vagabond gauchos said to infest those camps. But the ways of Divine Providence are inscrutible. Canine affection and animal stinct led to the discovery of an
