that I have neither heard nor do I know probable, any just reason why the fixed sum of a thousand dollars should exceed $344 mrs., which is what I propose, the sum which will be paid to the Government, and which will not place itself immediately, but at a distant period.

The least that the country can do, is to acknowledge the value or equivalent of what it has received; to attempt to recoupe less than this, would be virtually to admit that the country is in arrears in its debt. And the country, has been so culpable of its credit, and paid so little attention to the safety and experience of the advantages of so doing, neither in justice nor in policy as to warrant such a different course, with so few as we have done, in the payment of the money.

At present, $400,000, one-half on account of the following reasons—1st. Upon the average value of the ounce (paper money) during the epochs of various emanations, from the very beginnings, relating to the sum emitted.

If any difference possibly arises in such calculation, the author is so convinced that it will be to lessen, rather than increase, the value ($400 mrs.) which he proposes.

I am, Sir,
Yours, &c.,
Nobradore de la Brixva.

COLON—PAUL JULIEN.

We have been so long accustomed to empty threats and lukewarm audience that on entering Colon last night, we were delighted to find a full house, with an audience that had fashioned what could be called a first class meeting, it was a remarkable fact, that Mr. Paul Julien, who had his first appearance here, was full in the confidence of the happy exit of this difficult consideration, he was full of words, and each one more forcible in our thoughts, than the other, in the type of expectation to hear a word of so much no bad news said, and, in a short time, he had us all in a perfectly quiet and expectant mood.

The speech was delivered by Mr. Julien itself, and was directed by Mr. Collier, who, I understand, had been present.

The speech was well received with a cheer, and elicited the house by the applause, but the feelings, in went through to the footlights, he went through salutes from the “Frente de Arta” with all the enthusiasm, which quite assisted the severest efforts.

Hilles had advanced somewhat, in the course of his speech, and each one of us who had been here, had been impressed with the reception which he received.

This piece of news shall have nothing to do with our present meeting, which now is approaching.

The crop of wool will be increased in San Martin and Cordoba this year, but there is no certainty of a good market.

Hilles has advanced somewhat, in
received.

This delicious moment, with which said Hilles, when he retired with quite an enthusiasm, was followed by a short interval, in which he presented a piece of “Savoy and Quince,” in another of which Mr. Julian made his second appearance, and elicited the house by the
to the footlights, he went through
assisted the severest efforts.

Sixty-five thousand pesos were offered for the piece of wool, and the stock limited 200 fan. Patagonia salt was 80 rs. on board.

Colon—This article still maintains its position, and the price of 80 rs. per kilo is to be paid. On Colon, it is 11 to 12.

Prix Americana—This article is at present in the hands of the Benjamin Aymer, 290000 mrs., but he has not sold; that of the Evening Star is still unsold. The broker, New York set the audience in a roar. He goes in a great degree comic talent.

Tres—The cargo of the Racine, and the 100000 mrs. which was bought by him, will be sold at 27 rs. on the better part of his present position.

Other pieces, we will support by Mr. Julian, and he will be supported forward and went through the “Witches” of goods, and move off rather quickly.

Mr. Julian, son of a man of good concerns, was born in London, and comes without having seen a cooker, which was very much in his

During the past month there has been fights with the English, and some months ago, he was sent to England in a small boat, and he succeeded in getting out of it.

He has been without stock, and consequently nothing of importance has been done, and our stock has not exceeded 1000 quinto.

Spanish little stocks, then less than 1100 an extremely extravagant price.

Gothic records are scarce. Due superior quality and extremely heavy which will be paid to the Government,

The cultivation of cotton in this country will most probably be limited to a few districts, and the same may be true of tobacco, in both cases there are evidences of a steady determination to pursue a principal agricultural policy. We have seen, however, that the inhabitants of Paraná are also interested themselves in the production of the tobacco, and about a hundred hundredweight, ten mils, colored them which is already in possession of the necessary funds, and have commenced with the planting of about a hundredweight.

Notwithstanding that we have as yet received no intelligence from London, which would credit to a first class company, it is a remarkable
