FINE ARTS IN BUENOS ATRES.

The Athens of South America is for the flue arts, and it is said that a cargo of macaroni or Welsh coal is a safer speculation than the finest works of Roman or Florentine studios. Yet sculptors among us, and the number of English engravings exhibited at Fusoni's, Corti's, and other pictorial saloous, shows that foreign residents are fond of decorating their rooms with such chefe d'asuvre. There is however an ample Geld for native art in picturesque trations of the scenery and habits of the country, and we gladly welcome promise of its development by an artist, whose reputation is pre eminent in this continent, and whose works also favourably received in
