THE PLORES BANDINTS band of 80 men, well armed and equipped, under the communit of a retired officer of the Buenos Ayresn army is, according to our information," regularly enrolled for active service on all the highways leading to the capital: its head-quarters is in Flores. Any persons who are sceptical enough to call in questio, our statement may have practical proof of the same by taking a quieta in Flores, or strempting to go out of town after nightfull. Yesterday we gave three cases of house-breaking, which accidentally came off in that neighbourhood since last Sunday, and we expect to make up a formidable list

Sauvedra thinks it is certainly not his business to hunt up banditti; Dr. Acosta is occupied in election matters; Sor. Dominguez is perhaps revising a second edition of his Argentine History; and the other public functionaries leave such disagreeable subjects to those whom it may concern.

Meantime these outrages are committed so openly, that we should at first sight suppose they nad the tacit approbation of some persons high in authority, who derived a percentage from the black mail. It is most disgraceful and unfortunate that a small army of freebootershould establish itself at the gutes of our city, and that both the National and Provincial Governments should be powerless to repress them. Verily, we have 'slipped 'twixt the two stools,' and these conflicting administrations only serve to place life and property in jeopardy. The Robin stood of this Flores' fraternity is a fine, gentlemanlylooking individual, who wears a sword and pistols; his 80 men all wear pistols.
