Mr. Ruding, we regret to hear, leaves shortly for England. He has no ambition to be a broker in Buenes Ayres, like his predecessor.

Awful At ocities in the Banda

We regret to say that we read in the 'Reforma' an unfortunate Frenchman has been staked out alive, at his own residence in Belen, by order of a fello called Fausto Aguilar. The only motive alleged for this inhumin act was, that the unfortunate monsiour 'refused to give up some five or six horses to him.' After staking the Frenchman out in his own paris the rebels took the poor man's horses : ' and yet there is a French Minister in the River Plate.

On the same authority, we learn that a countryman of Admiral Pinzon's named Luis Domingues, a shopkeeper in Palma Sola, has been so persecuted by the Flores' rebels, that he has been obliged to shut up his house, leave his business, and fly to Brazil. As this occurred before the news from Peru was known, it cannot be attributed to American animosity to Spain.

and hories, it cannot be attributed to American nime with to Smith.

A Beatilian, named Michael Bande, and who was proceeding with his carts to Urunguyana, was attacked by a gang to the same of the atroctics perpetrated by the others and men of an ecknowledged rebel. These particulars we have extracted from the 'Reforma,' and as full particulars are given, we have every reason to believe they are correct.

EXTRAORDINARY DEATH

One of the most extraordinary causes of death we have read of, is in a re-cent number of the 'Reformat'

"Maximilian, King of Bavaria, has died suddenly, and it appears his death was caused by his inndvertently dent was caused by his indeverently settling a "gold brosstpin into his skin white dressing one morning." The wound was selight lath to paid northe slightest attention to it. Suddenly his breast betame inflatined, crysipoles set, in, and the unfortunets Monarch was carried away almost instanteneously, as malden, was the attack." People in worthly brosstyling, since it, has cort already the life of a Monarch.
