Lighthouse Company will entail a cost of 300,000 dollars...

M. William Macdon died yesterday.

The Minerva, Olympo, and Rio de la Plata sail to-night for Buenos Ayres.

Rosario, 6th.—Col. Cordova received orders by telegraph to present himself at the 'Gafatura' of that department...

The police authorities, in view of the alarming increase of crime, have prohibited the use of firearms.

Several horses for the Villa Casilda have arrived. They belong to Casy, Kemms and others.

The weather is very fine.

Onwards.—The Committee organized for the purpose of getting up a rural fair, here, are hard at work.

Already Mr. Juan R. Lanus has sent in, from his estancia, 30 fine Rambouillet rams, 3 thoroughbred horses, and other fine animals.

The fair promises to be a great success.

As the Southern Railway no longer runs their night trains to Asil and here, it is to be hoped that this will not cause any inconvenience to persons desiring to attend the fair.

The weather is exceedingly cold. Camps and cattle are in first rate condition.

Cordoba, 6th.—The Minister of Finance leaves to-night for Buenos Ayres to sign the loan-contract with the National Bank.

A great ball is to be given on the occasion of the inauguration of the Town Hall.

Concordia, 6th.—Yesterday two gentlemen, Mr. Korta here, to the light and here, it is to be hoped that this will not cause any inconvenience to persons desiring to attend the fair.

nine millions dollars from the province, is it not necessary for the Provincial Government to reduce its expenses?

This semi-jocular comparison between the National and local burdens on the shoulders of the farmers of this province looks funny indeed, when compared with the following figures:

Table with columns for Budget for 1884-1885, Budget for 1885-1886, and Budget for 1886-1887, listing various items like Salaries, Expenses, etc.

The latter total includes $3,388,000, in for banks and railways, which are not embodied in the estimates of 1884.

But, deducting this estimate, we have a budget of over 7 millions for 1885, an increase of nearly a million dollars over 1884.

The report of the financial committee is an elaborately drawn up document to throw dust into the eyes of farmers and may be considered the forerunner of another increase in the very elastic taxation that is burdening the province.

Farmers may not look back to the years that preceded the federalization of the city of Buenos Ayres as the Golden Age.

If we are to judge by the report of the committee, the province is entering an age of Brass and Steel.

The Neva's Mails.

DEPART OF THE CABINET.

London, June 9th.

Last night the Chancellor of the Exchequer moved the second reading of the Customs and Inland Revenue Bill.

Sir M. H. Beach proposed an Amendment declaring the proposed Bill the Beer and Spirit Duties Inequitable in the absence of any addition to the duties on wine, and declining to impose fresh taxation on real property until effect has been given to Resolutions of the House that ratepayers should be relieved of charges for national services.

Sir C. Dilke, in opposing the Amendment, admitted that the Budget was not a popular one; but expressed his belief that if the right hon. Baronet succeeded in defeating it, and his Party were called on to form a Government, they would never venture to submit such proposals as that embodied in the Amendment to the House and country.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer, commencing in his reply upon the amendment, admitted the speech which it was accompanied, adhered to the statement made in his Budget speech that it was untrue to add to the duties on articles of necessary consumption, such as tea and sugar, and that it would be preferable to increase those on articles like spirits. The characteristic of the Budget was that when it became necessary to raise a large sum for such an emergency as that of war, or preparation for war, the Government of the day were bound to have recourse for ways and means not only to taxes on property, but taxes on articles of consumption.

Sir S. Northcote pointed out that nothing had been said by the right hon. gentleman on the subject of wine, although, according to his own doctrine, he ought to have added to the wine duties as well as to the spirit and beer duties. The real reason of the Government for selecting those articles for increased taxation was not a fiscal reason. In fact, it was that they might produce an impression in the public mind that they were in some way forwarding the course of temperance. Then, that, however there could not be a greater fallacy, as that was the last Budget of the late Session of the present Parliament, he was justified in saying with regard to the whole financial career of Ministers that it had been disappointing. Failure had followed failure, and the result was uneasiness and uncertainty as to what they were doing or meant to do, and what would be the consequences of their measures.

Mr. Gladstone, in reply to Sir S. Northcote's charge of fiscal fallacy, taunted him with the fact that out of six Budgets of which he was the author, between 1874 and 1880, not less than four showed a deficit, whereas under the present Government, although there had been serious emergencies to meet, the Budget of this year was the only one out of five with a deficiency. If the day came for the Opposition to take office they would have to report of the step they were taking that night. But the actual cause of this tremendous opposition to the Budget was not the omission of wine or compassion for the drinker of beer or spirits, but the modified death duties, which, indeed, constituted the ground and basis of the entire proceeding.

On a division, the Second Reading was negatived by 264 to 252, or a majority of 12 against Ministers. The result was hailed with protracted cheers from the Opposition. The Amendment was then put and agreed to amid renewed cheers, and, on the Motion of Mr. Gladstone, the House adjourned.

SCENE IN THE HOUSE.

The scene in the House when the announcement was made of the numbers in the division was of a character without parallel in recent years.

Up to the last moment, the result was a matter of great uncertainty. As the members crowded back into the House the Prime Minister was seen to re-arrange his hat and the whisper went round that the Government had won by a large majority. There was a mere than the usual interval before the figures were announced; and while the Clerks at the table were examining the paper intense suspense and complete silence prevailed. When the Conservative Whips took their places to the left of the Speaker, Lord R. Churchill, who was evidently the first to apprehend the situation, cheered, and this led to an extraordinary demonstration on the Conservative side, members springing upon the benches, waving their hats and cheering at the top of their voices. There were loud, exultant cries from the Irish benches of "Bucks!," "Corcoran," "Orange Act."

It was a considerable time before Mr. Gladstone was able to rise, and when he did so the cheers from his own followers for some time prevented any explanation. When he obtained a hearing, the Prime Minister, who spoke calmly and collectedly, but who was evidently under the influence of strong emotion, moved the adjournment of the House. This was carried amid a scene of great tumult, many members of the Opposition and the Irish Party waving their hats and cheering loudly as they passed into the lobby. No doubt was entertained in the House as to the immediate resignation of the Government.

The Irish members voted in a body with the Opposition. But few of the ordinary supporters of the Government went into the lobby with the Conservatives, the defeat of the Government being due chiefly to Liberal abstentions.

At the meeting of the Cabinet yesterday a substantial agreement was arrived at in regard both to the new Crimes Bill and the policy to be adopted with regard to remedial legislation for Ireland. The provisions of the Crimes Bill were not completely settled. It will, we believe, mainly deal with the law affecting trial by jury. The power of changing the venue will be continued, and that of trying cases by special jury will be retained. The Clause with regard to satisfaction will probably also be continued in a very modified form.

The duration of the new Crimes Act will, it is understood, be two years. Lord Spencer wanted it for three years, and two years has been proposed as a compromise.

Lord Spencer is in favour of the introduction of a very comprehensive measure on the subject of Local Government in Ireland. The Bill on this subject, which has been under the consideration of the Cabinet, was drafted by Lord Spencer and is intended to provide, among other things, for the abolition of the Viceroynalty. It is probable that a statement of the provisions of the Bill will be made in the course of the Session. It is believed also that the Bill will contain a provision giving the Lord Lieutenant power by an Order in Council to dissolve the whole or any of its provisions.

A meeting of the Political Committee on Irish affairs was held yesterday afternoon in the Conference Room of the House of Commons, to take into consideration the present position of legislative business as affecting Ireland. It was moved by Mr. Hopwood, and seconded by Mr. Dickson, "That this Committee desire to thank the Prime Minister for the announcement of a Local Government Bill for Ireland, and trust that it will be taken which might endanger the passing of a remedial measure so urgently required." Mr. L. A. Dickson moved, and Sir C. Russell seconded, "That the Committee earnestly deprecates any renewal of exceptional criminal legislation for Ireland."

A third Resolution, moved by Mr. W. Sumner, and seconded by Mr. Bart, was as follows:—"That this Committee desire to impress upon the Government the desirability of bringing forward as speedily as possible a comprehensive scheme for the establishment of Local Government in Ireland, and for the reform of the Irish Executive." These Resolutions were adopted, and it was agreed that a copy of them should be sent to the Prime Minister.

SUMMARY.

The French Chamber yesterday passed, by a large majority, the Scrutin de Liste Bill as it had been amended by the Senate.

The cholera has manifested itself in Madrid. Several persons have been taken to the hospitals with symptoms of the disease, and one death has occurred. The epidemic is spreading in Valencia.

Our Basle correspondent reports the loss of eight lives by the capsizing of an excursion boat on the Rhine.

An explosion of coal gas occurred yesterday morning in one of the bunkers of Her Majesty's ship Inflexible, now at Portsmouth, by which some twelve men were burned. The coal was lit by a match on Thursday and Friday, the work was suspended on Saturday and Sunday, and on resuming work yesterday, after one man had descended to the oil lamp was lowered to him. The explosion followed immediately. The injured men were removed to the hospital.

The Royal Geographical Society held its annual meeting yesterday, at which the medals awarded to distinguished explorers were distributed. Lord Abercrombie reviewed the progress of geographical knowledge during the past year. In the evening the members of the Society dined together at Willis's Rooms, and speeches were made, among others by Sir P. Lumsden and Mr. M. Stanley.

Traffic on the District Railway, eastward from South Kensington, was stopped yesterday afternoon by the flooding of the line at Sloane-square Station. Owing to the heavy rainfall an old sewer in Sloane-square burst, and the water flowing into the works, which are in progress for constructing the Rangoon Relief Sewer, passed into the District Tunnel, flooding the station and the line for some distance towards Victoria on the one side and South Kensington on the other, to the depth of four feet. Strenuous efforts were being made last night to pump out the water in order that traffic may soon be resumed.

When judgment was about to be pronounced in the Coleridge libel case in the Court of Appeal yesterday, Counsel for Mr. Coleridge, with the concurrence of the plaintiff, Mr. Adams, applied for a postponement of judgment till Wednesday next. The Master of the Rolls suggested that it should be postponed until an application was made by either side for judgment. Both parties assenting, the case stands over indefinitely, it being assumed in Court that a settlement had been arrived at.

Yesterday the discount rate was steady at 3 1/2 per cent, and, as prices improved on the Stock Exchange, and closed at the best points touched. Home Railway Stocks and Foreign Government Bonds displayed the greatest advance, and United States Railways were dullest. The fortnightly Settlement begins to-morrow. Consols improved 1/8 to 98 11/16-13 1/8-16. The net result of the gold movements at the Bank was an influx of £21,000.

the longest in South America; it will connect the two oceans and, spanning the mighty Andes, will connect in a fraternal embrace the two most progressive and civilized of all the Latin states of the New World. It is true a long section of the line, that is already finished between Mercedes, in San Luis, Mendoza and San Juan, has been completed by the National Government; but I believe the Pacific company possess the right of purchasing it at its cost price, which, of course, they will do, so as to have the continuous line from Buenos Ayres to Valparaiso under their own control. This is as it should be.

Another important line is the Buenos Aires and Rosario Railway. Here again a great modification of first intention has been made. Contrary to the wishes of our retrograde Government in Santa Fe, the National Government and Congress wisely determined to sanction the extension of this to Sunchales, running through many important colonies, which will then possess the great advantage of having Rosario as their market and shipping port. The rails, of course, will not remain stationary at Sunchales, but what direction they will then take, is not known, probably not yet decided. That capital will not be wanting is evidenced by the fact that the money required for their extension to Sunchales, nine hundred thousand pounds, was subscribed for in London in ten minutes. Some say the line is then to be taken to Cordoba, constituting a rather formidable rival to the Central Argentine; but my opinion is that the National Government intends this road shall open up the Chaco, towards Bolivia. I have suggested this once before, and since that time the Chaco has been better explored, and found to be much more valuable than it was supposed only a short time ago.

As I anticipated, the Government has turned out the 'Gefe Politico' and the Chief of Police, because their sympathies are with the candidature of Juarez Celman. There is nothing in the shape of arbitrary measures we may not expect as long as Mr. Pizarro dominates in the official circles of Santa Fe. This gentleman was of the school of Dr. Frondoso, who had a profound contempt for the people and public opinion. But Dr. Frondoso was not a cruel tyrant; he took his own way, trampling on laws and constitution, but in such a jolly, aimable way that to the last four-fifths of the province adored him. But with Dr. Pizarro "est out auto chos." He has the savage instincts of the times of Rosa. To gain his point he proposes always violent means, as when, for instance, being Minister of War, he assaulted the London and River Plate Bank with a party of soldiers and moved by force a quantity of specie. There is no exaggeration in the fears that Dr. Pizarro's unscrupulous character will bring about some tragic scenes in this province, if he succeeds in retaining as a puppet the unfortunate gentle Cura. I hope, however, the President will keep his word and prevent the return of the system of political assassinations, so common a few years ago.

The new Gefe Politico of Rosario is Dr. Cafarrata, a good man, and although a student, a gentleman. I consider he is very superior to Dr. Vila, who, whatever his private virtues may be, was certainly never out for a magistrate. I never remember crime being so rare in Rosario before, as during the regency of Dr. Vila.

SPORTING NOTES.

The first meeting of the Pergamino race, under the Buenos Ayres Jockey Club rules, was held on Sunday June 28th. The day was anything but what might have been desired, being cloudy and very foggy, yet enabling you to see round the course. "Carne con cuero," bread and wine were provided on the course, for any one who wished to partake of them before the races commenced. The "carne con cuero" being the liberal gift of Señores P. V. Acevedo and J. Boland, the wine of Señor J. Biscette and others. People commenced to go on to the course 3 hours before the first race, and, considering the bad day, there was a very fair attendance, the Grand Stand being moderately well filled, the fair sex not being wanting. The greatest drawback was the few entries, only 3 for each race. Perhaps the stakes were not enough to induce the Buenos Ayres Stud to send horses. The horses all looked well, especially Sr. J. Fox's (hijo) 2 fillies by Garnard. The first race started punctually at 1.30 p.m.

Premio Inauguración of $400 m/n given by the Government of the Province. For two year old colts and fillies (near) colts 110 lbs. 2 fillies 112 lbs. Distance 1000 metres. Betting 3 to 1 on Wellington.

1 J. Fox's (hijo) Derradeira, by Garzard and GYPSY. 2 P. V. Acevedo's Wellington, by Sr. J. Boland's Desgraciado.

Wellington got well away at the start but was soon passed by the filly, who kept the lead until the end, winning in a canter by five lengths, Wellington running wide at the turn home.
