

French Emperor's efforts promise to be fruitful, for as I write, the following announcement in to-day's 'Moniteur' has been flashed upon the telegraph wires:—'Austria has accepted the proposal of Prussia to abstain from any act of hostility during the five days in which the Court of Vienna will have to notify its acceptance on the subject of the preliminaries of peace.'

MR. GALE'S NEW FIRE-ARM.

A HUNDRED SHOTS A MINUTE. By the processes of riding and sighting we have perhaps arrived at as much accuracy in hitting as can be expected (says the 'Morning Star'). What is now aimed at by all inventors and what is desired by all governments, is speed in loading, so that the greatest number of balls can be scientifically thrown to their destination in the briefest possible time.

MINIATURE OF THE QUEEN FOR MR. PEABODY. A facsimile of the kindly and most gracious gift which Her Majesty offered to the great American philanthropist is now on view at Mr. Dickinson's gallery, Old Bond-street. In the present stage of the work, only the beautiful water-colour, from which the enamel on gold is afterwards to be done, is now shown.

CRICKET. The match of the 1st Eleven against '22' which took place at Palermo on Thursday last, proved a great success, and an event long to be remembered in the annals of the Buenos Ayres Cricket Club, as it goes to prove that it is stronger than ever it has been in any previous year, never before having been able to muster so many players.

gun, the more unwieldy the vessel, Mr. Gale, brings another principle to play. Even where one blow with a big bolt might produce effect upon an adversary, there is at present great difficulty in insuring the chance of hitting, from the unwieldy nature of the guns. Mr. Gale believes in guns less heavy, throwing a multitude of shot with such rapidity as to strike about the same spot when the range has been once obtained; and he believes he has divided means for moving even heavy guns with momentary celerity for the purpose of sighting and elevation.

for the able manner in which he placed his men. The ground was in splendid order, and looked very gay, many people being out looking on at the match, and amusing themselves in various ways, several parties playing quito in different parts of the ground.
