THE PRUSSIANS IN FRANKFORT.

(From the Morning Star.)

General von Falkenstein, who is occupying Frankfort, seems to have in his disposition something of Sir Reginald Front de Bœuf. He is determined to make the great Hebrew metropolis and money market bleed gold at every nore. On his first arrival Frankfort was ordered to pay six millions of florins (other accounts say sixty, but I will give the General the benefit of the firm name being but slightly altered to the doubt). This makes in round | Zimmermann, Fair, and Co. numbers, if I mistake not. 600.000£: in addition he billeted about 3,000 men on the town, and prescribed a dietary of what the burghers were to furnish to these unwelcome guests; the list is curious :—

and accessories (probably what the Yankees expressively call fixings). At noon soup, boiled ment, vegetables, a round joint, a bottle of wine; in the course of the day a cup of coffee; at night, supper, and 'eight good cigars

"Non-commissioned Officers and men-Coffee and fixings in the morning; at noon, a pound of meat, vegetables, and bread in proportion, and half a bottle of wine; at night, a piece of meat and a glass of beer, and eight eigars a day. The wine and cigars are not delivered by the inhabitants to the troops direct. A requisition is made, and the wine and cigars are delivered over to a quartermaster, who presides over a 'requisition store', and he serves their allowance out to the men."

General von Falkenstein is, however, probably aware that the birth place of the Rothschilds is one of the wealthiest places in Europe, and he is determined to make hay whilst the sun shines. In addition to his first military contri bution and his 'requisitions'-(the estimated value of which is said to be Americans started for the Chaco to tresh military contribution of 25 millions of florins (2,500,000£). The general could hardly say just now with any regard for truth "who steals my purse steals trash." According to the correspondent of the 'Temps' at Heidelberg, Mr. Seinguerlet, who hates a the Prussian privates at Frankfort (mostly laudwehr men) are not exactdable 'menu'. Beyond smashing a few doors they have committed no excesses; but such, a great many of your readers will regret to hear on the same authority, has not been the case at Kissingen.

"The capture of the town (says M. Seinguerlet) was marked by revolting passengers, from the Agency of II. Dowse, Calle Mayo 67 176—1p a30 excesses. The 19th Regimentespecially distinguished itself in that way; and the battalion of Lippe Detmold 'proxime accessit'. Under pretence that shots had been fired from the windows the best houses in the place, among them the Hotel de Baviére, were sacked by

LATEST TELEGRAM.

San Isidro, Aug. 31, 6.20 p.m. The steamer Paysandú has gone aground at San Isidro. She has on board important despatches for the Government.

Specie ruled very weak to-day, but at the closing hour patacons stiffened slightly; still gold is so weak that from the appearance of the market it seems every way probable that the legal value put on patacons will be the price before the busy season sets in. Notwithstanding all the projects for the redemption of the currency so much spoken of last month, to-day nobody thinks of them, and although amongst merchants and outsiders there is little-confidence in the present price of gold, still specie is so superabundant that all who speculate for a rise lose money, whilst the bears are constantly making money.

News from the war was looked for to-day by one of the steamers on Cabal's new line, but sho did not come in, and there is great anxiety as to whether Curupaiti is taken yet or not.
