Permitone of Mr. 'Z's' admirers to congratulate him upon the urbanity of and the same person—and that person, his first letter: the second, also, dis- in reality can be no other than myself especial praise, where he says "that a my mantle on the shoulders of some paintings unless intended as a Caféchantant or French theatre." Truly this remark betrays one who has dedicated his life to the study of the fine-

Nevertheless there are many people who believe that the ancient Greeks decorated both the inside and ontside of their temples with figures, and I have heard mention of a certain Apelles who was a great painter in his day.

There was, also, a place called Pompeü, in which all the houses and public buildings were covered with decorative paintings, which modern artists are constantly in the habit of going to see and study. Even Raphael found subjects for imitation among the old occasionally known as but well-preserved frescoes of Trajan's temple, and he had the bad laste to paint the Farnese palace, the Stanze, and Loggie of the Vatican which still bear his name: and indeed I agree with Mr. Z. that those galleries would have looked better with a coat of whitewash daubed great figures on the walls of the Tribunal of Commerce in that city; just as Paolo Veronese, Tiziano, and Tintoretto spoiled the Doges' palace at Venice and several other palaces which are now only fit, as Mr. Z. remarks, for Cafès-chantants or French theatres

Perhaps there is an excuse for these artists of the 15th and 16th century, namely that they were unable to form their taste according to the London model. It is useless to talk here of the Hotel de Ville in Paris covered with figures, which, like all other monuments in that city, reveals the want of taste in the fine arts among Parisians; although, strange to say, nearly the whole of the Continent of Europe is as depra ved as Paris in this particular.

The more I consider the subject, the flatter him for the exquisite finesse of wish Mr. and Mrs. Powell and Miss his artistic appreciations. I am entire. JUVENILE FESTIVITY. On the 16th inst., being the anniversary of the birth of one of Mr. Powell's daughters the annual re-union of the pupils of the Scotch School took place I might add that in Perugia there at his residence 96 'calle Independenflourished a fellow named Perugino who cia'. It is always a pleasure to see children gathered together for the purpose of amusement, but on this occasion it was something more than pleasing, it was really delightful as the children seemed determined to please and he pleased. Miss Stuart's pupils also joined in the festivities of the afternoon. We were both astonished and delighted to see the beautiful specimens of needlework exhibited, being the work of the pupils and really too much praise can not, be given to Mrs. Powell and Miss Stuart's for their endeavours to advance the pupils in this branch of industry as also in every other department of knowledge. The pupils speak highly of the kinduess of their teachers: this is as it should be, as we all know that when the teacher has gained the affections of the pupil teaching is no B more fully I agree with Z., and have to longer irksome but a pleasure. BUENOS 'AYRES.

The immence advantages of Accounts Current are now so generally folt and applicated in the side great emperiume of the River Plate, Montevideo and Buenos Ayres, that there are very fees, Bereleuts who fail to keep one at the bank in which they place the most confidence. The Benk of Beude and Co. in Montevideo has already provided for the working classes in that city a safe and profitable depositary for their savings.

The sum deposited in that most important institution are daily increasing, and already reach a wery large amount.

This desired and not a most important institution are daily increasing, and already reach a weight large amount.

This desired are not hitherto been enjoyed in this city by an immense number of elarm, artistans, working men, and servents of all classes and conditions, who are equally interested in putting their savings out at interest, thus providing themselves with a reserve fund in case of need, sickness, or old age, instead of spending them in the immeral gambling, in latteries, and other friendities.

The Bank of Maua and Co. of this city, following the noble example of their firm in Montesides, now ofer the same facilities in this city, and will open a Savings' Bank at No. 103 Calle Cangullo, from Nine am till Three prison Week Day, and on Sundays and Holidays from Ten am to Tuelon m., for the reception of the savings of the classes already mentioned.

The Bank will deliver to each depositor a pass book, in which will be entered the amount deposited and withdrawo.
