LATEST FROM PATAGONES. ARRIVAL OF THE STEAMER PATAGONES. ANOTHER INDIAN INVASION. By the arrival of the steamer we have advices from the above distant port, and we are sorry to learn that the Indians have again made a sweep on some of the estancias.

Notwithstanding the heavy failure of the crops this season, two schooners are taking in cargoes of wheat for Buenos Ayres.

THE CASTOR AGAIN. GREAT SUCCESS OF CAPT. DAVIS. We are in receipt of copies of the Ferro-Carril to the 3rd inst., brought down by the Castor, the interesting extracts from which will be found in another column.

The number of English passengers brought down in the Castor this trip we believe exceeds all former experiences on the Parana, very many of them having visited several days in Rosario to obtain the privilege of sailing with Capt. Davis, and sharing in the good fare, comfort, and convenience for which his steamer is proverbial.

We understand that Capt. Davis is about to have a new steamer, built expressly for passenger traffic on this river, and having a splendid accommodation for both first and second class passengers.

SEÑOR BONETTI. It is with artists, we believe, as with young ladies, they seldom know the number of their admirers. Thus we see by a late number of the Courier that Mr. Nerini whose retired nature seeks no vain applause, is not without friends, and men admirers.

The subject of these lines has not had all these advantages, and is in one respect comparatively a stranger; inasmuch as his residence in Buenos Ayres bears no remote date, yet we feel certain that few men have ever made themselves equally popular or so favorably known in so short a period as Mr. Bonetti.

His talents as an artist need no comment, the Public, the best judge has pronounced him unequalled in his roll. His personification of character, not to mention his profound knowledge of music, is positively wonderful. He so thoroughly identifies himself with the part he acts, that what was a mere shadow is now a substance, a creation; not mere imagery, but a living being, a Mephistopheles, or a Fray Meliton.

Mr. Bonetti's successors in his special characters, will certainly have a hard task to undergo; while proudly reflecting on the glories of a brother artist, they will not fail to recognize his triumphs as so many obstacles to a like success. It is indeed only persons well organized, and highly favoured by nature that can ever pretend to so perfect a personification of their part. But it is not only as an artist Mr. Bonetti deserves praise. There are few persons in Buenos Ayres as well educated, and a finer gentleman, we never hope to meet. In good society he is not only well received, but largely sought.

Mr. Bonetti is on the eve of leaving, and we wish him every happiness, and are certain our friends in Montevideo will duly appreciate his attainments.

THE U. STATES AGRICULTURAL REPORT. SHEEP IN JOWA. The following table is copied from the very able address to the Ohio Wool Growers' Association, by Henry S. Randall, LL. D., January 6, 1864, showing imports of wool in 1863.

Table with columns: From whence exported, Pounds, Pounds, Total. Rows include Europe, Mexico, Chile, India, etc.

The value of wool imports into the United States for the last four fiscal years has been as follows: Years ending— Value. June 30, 1860, $4,842,152; June 30, 1861, 4,717,350; June 30, 1862, 7,370,067; June 30, 1863, 11,000,062.

Does the wool-grower in Iowa need further argument than this solid phalanx of figures to induce him to look well to his flocks? The most obtuse in perception cannot but observe that there is no danger of a glut in the wool market just at present.

The Union absorbs an unusual quantity in blankets, shirts, drawers, &c., and when this cause of consumption is removed, it will probably lessen the price a little, but not enough to frighten even the most timid out of his confidence in the profits of the flock.

Instead, then, of following the practice of continued importations, it becomes us to increase the flock, enlarge our manufacturing interests, establish factories all over the land, and clothe our own people more cheaply—because the expense of transportation is avoided—boastfully and thankfully, because our enterprise and industry are sustaining the best government under the sun.

We, the undersigned British ship-masters in this port, having perused an article in your impression of this day's date, strongly reflecting on that day's date, strongly reflecting on that day's date, strongly reflecting on that day's date, strongly reflecting on that day's date.

Having investigated the matter, we find the following to be the facts: That the said captain agreed with a ballast agent to furnish him with 130 tons of ballast. The ballast having been weighed on board as received, turned out 91½ tons, which she was willing to pay for.

place under this law; but so great is the interest connected with the whole question of sheep, that an offender would meet with summary punishment at the hands of the authorities and people. It is believed that the prompt enactment of the law will put an effectual stop to any future attempt to perpetrate so great an outrage and swindle as the sale of sheep affected with contagious disease. In 1859 many persons petitioned for a law to protect sheep from the ravages of dogs; but the bill was ridiculed beyond measure, made sport of, and finally defeated.

Soon after the close of the eighth general assembly, the State Agricultural Society distributed throughout the State blank forms of petitions to the legislature to enact a law against the worthless curs that infested the country. A circular was also issued, under the same auspices, setting forth that a bill had been presented to the previous legislature; that it had been literally laughed out of the house; and calling upon the farmers to rise in their majesty, overwhelm the legislature with petitions, and compel them to protect this growing interest from the ravages of dogs.

The petitions fell thick and fast upon the ninth general assembly, representing fifty-three countries, thirteen agricultural associations, and over three thousand people. Upon no other subject were so numerous petitions presented, and, in obedience to the apparently expressed will of the farmers, a law was enacted, of which the following are the principal features: To register every dog before May 15, 1862, with the township clerk; to pay one dollar for every male, and three dollars for every female dog; to post up a list of registered dogs in each township; to put a leather or metallic collar on every dog, with the number: all dogs without such collar, a nuisance; fine not exceeding fifty dollars to maliciously kill or entice away any collared dog; lawful for any person, and made the duty of every police officer, constable, &c., to kill any dog not registered; lawful to kill any dog worrying any sheep or other domestic animal; fine any officer neglecting to enforce the law, ten dollars; all funds accruing to be set apart as a school fund, to be paid to the township district treasury; took effect by publication, being deemed of immediate importance.

THE SHIP CAPTAINS. Buenos Ayres, April 5, 1867. To the Editors of the Standard, Gentlemen, We, the undersigned British ship-masters in this port, having perused an article in your impression of this day's date, strongly reflecting on that day's date, strongly reflecting on that day's date, strongly reflecting on that day's date.

INDOLENT SORES. Vitality is so weak in some systems, that any ulcerous disease with which we are afflicted, lapses almost immediately from the acute or inflammatory phase into the chronic condition, becoming sluggish and indolent. But they are not the less dangerous on that account, while they are much more difficult to deal with. In no class of cases has Bristol's Sarsaparilla been administered with more signal success than in these. If applied to the system and the constitution the vigor necessary to fight the disorder, while its antiseptic properties exercise a direct and most beneficial effect upon the sores. It is important to use Bristol's vegetable pills at same time with the Sarsaparilla, as they carry off from the system depraved and in this way hasten a cure.

THE VERY LATEST. Major Rickard, of the San Juan mines, has been liberated on Mr. Day going bail for him. No further cholera cases in Rosario; families all returned.

ON CHANGE. April 6, 1867. Ounces $100 Sovereigns 122½ Patagonas 25 Bonds 52

The Bond market, although extremely weak, did not give way to day. The bears sold heavily on time, but liquidation this afternoon was extremely heavy, and at after hours bonds kept coming in from all quarters, which left no room to doubt that the public are realising. It was thought that many who had sold during the week would merely collect the difference, but nothing of the kind; the bonds were brought to the liquidation-room, and several purchasers up to four o'clock had not the money to pay for them.
