and sweet emanations of a varied vegetation. The Nacional was the first to publish Dr. Gomez's article...

Here we see recorded, forty-six years ago, respect for property, and protection to legitimate industry. The liberal democrat, Dr. Juan C. Gomez, gives advice in direct opposition to the ideas of that enlightened Government.

The five or six saladeros that existed in 1821, consisted of a couple of thatched 'galpones, where hides and a small portion of the meat of the animals killed were salted...

Dr. Gomez's article, the inconsiderate support it has received from the press, and the decree of the Government, would afford matter to fill a ream of paper.

There is now every probability that the Government will be able to consolidate the Exchange-office on a firm and lasting basis.

It is rumored that we are on the eve of stupendous disclosures made by Gen. Paunero in the baggage waggons and small bags of Videla and San.

The news from Cordova is still of a most unsatisfactorily nature; things look out of joint there.

There is a project before the Government for continuing the Northern Railway to Zarate, but we should say without the slightest prospect of success.

From a letter of our worthy Postmaster General's, Sr. Posados, in reference to the remarks on Dead-letter office, made in the cause of our review of the 9th annual report of the Post-office department...

posed to the scorching rays of a summer's sun? Why are dams not made to keep the water at a fixed height...

Why is not a proper dredging-machine employed, since the one now in use is unserviceable? And, lastly, why is not a great aqueduct constructed on the south side of the river...

This would be a work similar to the one made in London. The saladeros might, by a proper system of drains, carry off their refuse into this aqueduct.

As for the magnificent quintas which Dr. Gomez proposes to form there, it is the most absurd project imaginable, because the soil is barren sand...

ably not read the newspapers published here, would remain in ignorance while by the present system, which is the most rational, on the destruction of an old letter any articles of value it may contain are duly published in the locality to which it is directed.

Yesterday a subscriber from Montevideo to inform us of a sale of a large mestiza flock in that partido at $18 by the ent. We hear that sheep in the south still continue at very low prices...

In Chilivoley there seems to have been a fearful row about Madame Mausole. Poor woman, she seems to have been very badly treated, and descending the opinions and prejudices of contemporaries, appeals to Posterity.

We give a prominent place to-day to a very able article sent us on the Saladero question, which cannot fail to attract notice in the proper quarter.

The Cisne left yesterday for Corrientes, taking up heavy mails and a number of passengers. It is a significant fact that the three splendid vessels belonging to the army contractors, the Cosmos, Iron King, and Susan Beirne, are all down here at present from headquarters.

Both the Provincial and National Legislatures are brought to a stand still owing to the non-arrival of the members. We suppose the dread of the cholera has been the cause of all this, which is unprecedented, and a serious inconvenience.

The Argentine Government purchased Captain Harrison's steamer the Sylph yesterday, in $85,000. Messrs. Woodgate Brothers were the brokers who did the business.

American mail bag expected in town to-day from that shut-up port, Montevideo. A very current rumour thrived to-day yesterday, that to save expense no Congress whatever would be held this year...

Municipality divided about the Southern Cemetery. It is generally supposed the Mejias property will be the place.

Total number of deaths in town on Wednesday 19 but doctors entertain grave fears as long as the mortality in Corrientes and Paraguay continues.

Without entering at present on the question so much discussed of late as to the extent to which British industry is now suffering by competition with that of foreign countries, there can be no doubt that every year makes it a matter of increased importance that new markets should be found for the productions and manufactures of Great Britain.

There are, however, important exceptions to the rule, and, as an instance, we would call attention to the case of the Argentine Republic, the facts regarding which have been treated very ably in a report by Mr. Ford—lately Secretary of Legation at Buenos Ayres—which has recently been laid before Parliament.

When it is remembered that the portion of the Argentine territory which may be considered as settled exceeds in size the whole of the territory of Great Britain, Ireland, France, and Spain put together, the figures to which we are about to call attention may seem to be small; but the natural advantages of the territory are so great, and the indications of progress so remarkable, that we shall be doing good service to the public in calling attention to the leading facts.

And first, as to the natural advantages, we find there a territory blessed with a climate proverbially good; with equitable laws, which are stated to be generally administered with fairness; with freedom of worship recognized by the Constitution, and a soil which, whilst it is capable of producing wine, sugar, tobacco, and cotton, is also eminently fitted to bring lucrative returns to the cattle and sheep-farmers.

As a set off to these natural advantages, we find, however, that the natives are wanting in energy—that internal communications are bad—and that immigration from abroad has not as yet had time to provide for the deficiency in the numbers of the native population.

We hear that immense contracts for maize have just been concluded in town for the allied army, and, strange to say such is the increased demand that all the corn cob machines in town have been bought up; none to be had at any price.

Referring now to the financial and commercial statistics of the Republic, we find that the revenue of 1865 (£1,659,000) exceeded that of 1864 at the rate of 18 per cent., and that the imports of 1865 (£5,420,000) into Buenos Ayres exceeded those of 1864 by 21 per cent.

On the other hand, if we examine the amount of the importation from Great Britain, it appears that the importations from England in 1865 (£1,601,000) were in excess of those of 1864 at the rate of 46 per cent., and if textile fabrics alone are considered, at the increased rate of 59 per cent.

In cotton goods the British importation of 1865 exceeded that of France by 231 per cent. But French importation is increasing in a more favourable ratio than British, for the rate of increase between 1856 and 1866 was—British increase, 2 per cent. per annum; French increase, 6 per cent. annum.

In woollen goods, the increase of French importation is still more remarkable, being in 1865 as compared with 1864, at the rate of 65 per cent., and the value between 1856 and 1865, at the rate of 392 per cent., whilst the increase of British woollens in the same period was only 108 per cent.

As regards the export of wool from the Argentine territory, it appears that the greatest amount is shipped for Germany through Antwerp, the value of wool shipped for France in 1865 being, £1,052,556. The value of wool shipped for France in 1865 doubled that of the shipments of 1864; and whilst the value of the exports of wool to France in 1864 was £438,000, or double the quantity taken by France in 1864, the value of the wool exported in the same year to England was only £157,000.

As regards the wool produced in the Argentine territory, Mr. Ford states that nearly all the produce is exported in an unwashed state, owing to scarcity of labourers and deficiency of water. It also labours under a disadvantage from the presence in the fleeces of a native clover seed difficult to eradicate, and which our machinery is not successful in removing.

As the general result, it will appear that the Argentine territory is now a favorable market for British productions, although the competition of foreign production is increasing as in other quarters—but there is every reason to expect that the local advantages, which include a newly discovered, but as yet unworked coal field, may stimulate a beneficial intercourse between the Provinces and European States.

The following has been related to us of Commander del Prado, on the occasion of the Indian invasion that took place this week in Melincue. Commander del Prado, as is well known, has retired into private life, and is engaged in looking after his estancia near Melincue.

On being informed that a body of Indians were driving off horses and cattle from his estancia, he summoned by a red flag, the signal of alarm, the peons that were at work in the chacra and four of them having responded to the summons he armed them with guns and mounted them on horseback.

Del Prado then made his men mount again and at the head of his army, started in pursuit, overtook the Indians once more, and dismounting his men fired another volley wounding again several of the Indians, who this time took to their heels abandoning their prey in the hands of Del Prado and his valiant squadron.
