TUESDAY, JUNE 18, 1867.

CONGRESS—DEPUTIES.

ACCUSATION OF HIGH TREASON.

SPEECHES OF ELIZALDE AND VELEZ

BELLIFEROUS DEFENCE OF OCAMPO.

Long before the appointed hour the Congress-hall was crowded in every part, the business of the day being the attainder against Deputies Ocampo of Paraná and Sarmiento of San Luis for alleged complicity in the recent Mendoza revolution.

The Secretary then read some notes purporting to be written by Sarmiento as Minister of Government at San Luis, advising the Mendoza rebels that they had nothing to fear from San Luis.

The staple wealth of the country is admitted to consist in its farming stock, yet the estanciero to-day is like to the unfortunate exporter, whose credit in the market diminishes in an exact ratio with the vessels he clears with wool and hides; and, as a rule, when we want to find out who has done the best business for the year we select the merchant who has shipped the least.

Several Bolivian traders despatched troops of mules via Santa Cruz by the new Paraguayan road to Curumbá, with the purpose of selling same, and if the Brazilians procure these supplies they will be able to assail Paraguay from the rear.

Want of foresight and prudence have compromised the brilliant future which Providence would appear to have marked out for the great monarchy of South America. The cholera in the city is almost extinct, but at Maza and S. João da Barra it is still committing great ravages.

They write on the spur of the moment from a store, more or less extensive of superficial, picked-up knowledge, and as politics is the usual and almost only theme of conversation amongst the educated classes in this country, it is easier for them to write on this subject than on any other.

EDITOR'S TABLE. The National Government has politely invited all parties who hold public documents saved from the fire to return same, and winds up the notice by threatening legal proceedings against any parties who fail to comply with the notice within twenty-four hours.
