THE shades of night were falling fast,
As through a Platine city pass'd
A youth, who bore, 'mid sin and vice,
A banner, with this strange device—
LA VERDADERA HESPERIDINA.

Try not to cure the sick, the scoffers said, Lay not to cure the sick, the scotters said, Lest you bring us about your head.
I can, and must, and will, the youth replied,
No matter how much my tonic is belied—
LA VERDADERA HESPERIDINA. Oh! stay, a maiden said, and rest

Thy weary head upon this breast. A tear stood in his flashing eye; I must cure the sick; I'll try

The six Braziian vessels now above the fortress of Humaita are without coal, and a merchant steamer is at present being fitted out in Buenos Ayres to run the gauntlet past the Paraguay batteries, with the object of supplying coal to the ironclads now lying useless at Tayi. The cost and freight of the coal delivered at Tayi is represented to be £40 per ton. It is calculated that the steamer in question, the Paisandu, an old blockade-runner and a fast vessel, will carry from 400 to 500 tons. H.M.'s gunboat Linnet, which had been sent up the river, ostensibly for the protection of British subjects in Humaita, has not been permitted by the Brazilian Admiral to approach the fortress. H.M.'s Chargé d'Affaires, near this Republic, has, we understand, consulted with the British Admiral on this question.

Let us glance over some fruits attainable by their labors: in metals and minerals—gold and silver are found in every province but Buenos Ayres, Santa Fe, and Entre Rios, while the following are generally distributed throughout the Republic, iron, lead, occupied an entrenched position, on bitumen, lime, coal, salt, petroleum, tin, zinc, nickel, mercury, antimony, marble, various precious stones, &c.; in produce—wheat, barley, oats, maiz, and all other cereals, pears, apples, vals with heavy specimens of fortress figs, grapes, peaches, lemons, oranges, pine apples, sugar, coffee, tobacco, cotton, potatoes, mustard, and an endless list of productions of lesser importance, while among manufactures we notice grease, soap, olive and other oils, sugar, coffee, cocoa, tobacco, mustard, cotton, cotton goods, silks, cutlery, horse-gear, bricks, cigars, wines, flour, cheese, various preserves, &c., &c. Surely the "bill of fare" is attractive enough, and can any one deny that a country possessed of such capabilities is favourable to emigration, for such emigrants as are able and also willing to work? Let only such come out, and they will, by increasing and cultivating, and improving these natural and unequalled agricultural resources, improve the country, augment its prosperity, and what for themselves is more important, their own prosperity also. We do not mean to argue educated men cannot work, far from it; but what we do maintain is this: that those who do come out here, whether gentlemen or labourers, will have either to work long and hard, or else starve; the former will very soon find their English prejudices in their way, and, if wise, will soon cast them over-board, and, with the other class, put chosen body left our lines, and after their shoulder manfully, steadily, soberly and practically to the wheel in real good earnest; but let all who grey light came to chase away the come out clearly and fully understand this country in a few years have passed. never to return, and that now they must all be prepared to work on, hope on, and push on for fifteen or twenty years at least, and even then such as, of either class, as are able to return to the land of their birth may esteem themselves lucky. Work there is for all who can work, and also pay, but the work is hard, and must be long persevered in. More animation was shown in National Bonds;

sales at 501 cash, and for 31st inst.; yet it was plainly evident that the bulls themselves were driving down the market, in order to buy largely.

Several important orders were given to purchase, but the elightest demand sont these securities to 501, at which prices some 25,000 were sold in the liquidation-room.

Exchange is flatter--at 49 on London, and 5.13 on France. Takers are numerous, and would operate more largely if they were to collect outstandings overdue.

A question of paramount importance is now oc-cupying the attention of our most sagacious mer-chants. Why should those who possess and offer good guarantees, be obliged to pay from 12 to 15 per cent. per annum interest for eash ad-vances? The Provincial Bank refuses, or dis-counts only in variance and proposed for the vances: The Provincial Bank refuses, or discounts only in part, documents acknowledged to be good, from a decided want of money. The other banks discount very slightly, owing also to a lack of cash. Now, formerly this yearly stringency was caused by the agio in paper or gold, causing an inordinate demand, but at present there is nothing of the sort, yet still, from the Government downwards, every one is paying a ruinous rate of interest; commerce is crippled, and enterprise blighted by our present monetary position. Is there no remedy, or is the country position. Is there no remedy, or is the country indeed on the decline? So grave a question is more than we can here enter into, still on one Lugger point there can be no doubt, that with the present high prices for land and onerous taxation, an important industry, "the sheep business" is quite of the past; on this, and its effect on interest, we shall call our reader's attention at an Barque Barque early date.

Buyers for Gas Shares at 50 per cent. premium; nothing done.

Large transactions in produce; enquiry for dry and salted hides.

March 23, 1868, Nothing done in National Bonds. The mar-ket for these securities will probably remain in active for two or three days, after which th liquidation for 31st inst. will cause some animation. The sales on time beyond that period are insignificant, and transactions will hardly be worthy of special attention. Those who are even now interested in bonds are very limited.

Exchange was done this morning at 49, falling later to 484, one well known English endorsement passing at 485 for a large amount. Takers are yet numerous, and those who wait till the last moment, for the sake of a few days interest, to obtain exchange will have to accept 483 to 483. On France 5.10 to 5.12, Antwerp 5.13, Montevideo 7 per cent premium.

This decline in exchange looks very ominous. It seems to indicate that not even during an

It seems to indicate that not even during an active produce business is the country able to reimburse importers, for there remain several large takers: and althugoh importers owe more in this market than they have ever done before, yet this indebtedness arises more from overdue outstandings pending here than from a desire to remit under discount. It may therefore be expected that specie shipment will shortly recom-mence, and that sovereigns will again command a premium.

Discounts are difficult, principally from a want
