DISTRESSED SHEPHERDS.

It is to our own interest, and the interest of every one, that we should take the liveliest view of the present condition of the rural industry of the country.

The sheep industry may, and probably will rise again, but pending the day of resurrection are the shepherds to sleep? Those who carry in their veins the Erse and Anglo-Saxon blood will find better things to do...

consumes or could consume of agricultural produce? Do they know that there are gardens not very distant from Buenos Ayres which yield more than cent per cent on the capital invested?

We cannot see what difficulties lie in the way of small capitalists joining with their poorer brethren in once cultivating the lands; for, with ready means of transport, it is not only wheat and maize they can turn their attention to...

The question that most pre-occupies the political world at this moment is that raised by the bill now before the Chambers, by which it is proposed to sanction all the acts of General Flores' Dictatorship from the 20th February, 1865, to the 15th February, 1868.

IMPORTANT FROM MONTEVIDEO.

THE INDEMNITY BILL. MEETING OF MERCHANTS. GOMEZ-LUZBEL. Montevideo, April 2, 1868.

The question that most pre-occupies the political world at this moment is that raised by the bill now before the Chambers, by which it is proposed to sanction all the acts of General Flores' Dictatorship from the 20th February, 1865, to the 15th February, 1868.

A meeting took place yesterday in the house of Messrs. Bates, Stokes, & Co., which was attended by a great number of the representatives of our leading importing houses...

Messrs. Tomkinson, Eastman, Tupper, Daguerre, Folle, E. Bustamante, P. Zumaran." You have perhaps heard something of the Gomez exchambre with the Chamber of Deputies.

The Siglo of to-day announces a change in its Buenos Ayres correspondent, more consonant with the views advocated by the present editors of that paper.

In consequence of the imminent danger incurred a few days ago if the disastrous fire that occurred at Borelli's store had extended to some neighboring deposits of gunpowder...

EDITOR'S TABLE.

To the great credit of the Provincial Government we see they do not forget to spend a part of the funds they grind out of us, in the good cause of education.

The Policia has very properly published a notice reminding bellicose boys and irritable swells, that duelling is not according to law; and that the letters and preliminary arrangements which have lately appeared openly in the newspapers of this city...

A refreshing rain, and cool wintry weather enables us to bear up manfully against the death of news. No arrivals from anywhere except seawards and Montevideo; no new thing in politics; no friends to abuse or allow us to put their names in the paper for other people's amusement...

As Editors, and if I am not wrongly informed, as bachelors, you will not refuse the appeal of a woman against the maudlin trash you have reprinted from the Imperial Review.

would rather trust to the talent of our friends in that respect; and many a good bola we receive; but to-day nothing.

Ferrari & Co. have been heard of in Europe; and as we have before informed our readers the new opera Company may be expected here about June.

The steamer Uruguay of the Astromary Line, sails to-day for Antwerp, carrying a mail for Rio Janeiro and Europe.

The Newton of the same line which ought to have sailed from Liverpool early in the last month is hourly expected in Montevideo, being now overdue.

With reference to the appeal we published yesterday on behalf of the Welsh Colony, we have been favored by Mr. Jones, its enterprising agent in this city...

Yours, very sincerely, A YOUNG MARRIED WOMAN.

CAMP ADMINISTRATION.

The reform of the social administration of the camp is another of those highly important measures to which the present Executive is pledged.

The camp, as an 'estate' out of the pale, has been expected to take care of itself as best it might; camp men might fish for themselves and eat 'asado,' they needed nothing besides land!

We observe in our list of charters in the 'On Change' of to-day a vessel 'placed by Messrs Boyd & Co., and which rejoices in the name of 'Maria Anna Catherina Elizabeth Balls.'

A PLEA FOR MARRIED WOMEN.

Buenos Ayres, April 3. To the Editors of the "Standard." Gentlemen, As Editors, and if I am not wrongly informed, as bachelors, you will not refuse the appeal of a woman against the maudlin trash you have reprinted from the Imperial Review.

deration' for the feelings of others. But we, married women, forsooth, are to deny ourselves the amusement of dancing, from motives of 'charity' and 'self-interest'!

Mr. Gotschalk's farewell concert in aid of the widows and orphans of the soldiers will take place from the 10th to 15th of April. The "Tanhauser" and "Faust" marches arranged for twelve pianos will positively be given.

I shall, therefore, with great deference to Imperial Reviews, and such like, continue to dance as long as I can get a partner; and my husband, who has just awoke from his nap, assures me that he entirely coincides with my views...

Yours, very sincerely, A YOUNG MARRIED WOMAN.

she requires, and cannot herself produce. It is these products, interchanged for the products of manufacture of other nations which constitute commerce: the wealth of a nation is substantially in relation to the value of its products as against and in excess of those of other countries which she requires and has to pay for.

The productive interests of a country may prosper if it is absolutely necessary that there should be efficient protection and security for life and property, that there should be facile redress, swift and rigorous justice, that, in fact, there should be social order.

It must be admitted that these evils, which clog the progress of the country, the development of her industries, the inflow of immigration, and the employment of capital in industrial improvement, do not take their rise in the defects of the laws, but in their defective administration, and the trammels which a low state of moral perceptions oppose to their execution.

A VOICE FROM MAYFAIR.

When we first received a pamphlet with the above title, published a few days since, we thought it indicated some particular kind of distress in the West-end, some matrimonial perplexity in which the venerable Belgravian mothers were involved.

There is a growing desire that women should receive a more effective and intelligent education; there is a wish, faint and feebly expressed, however, and with an utterly inadequate emphasis, that new spheres of employment should be found for them, and that their lives should not be confined to one purpose.

Now we have not a doubt that to whatever extent we succeed in improving the condition of women, men of this stamp will easily have their tastes accommodated. Many women will prefer mental darkness to mental light; but that a nation should accept as a definite proposition the belief that in suppressing female intellect you are making up the greatest happiness of the greatest number, is as absurd as it is ridiculous and dangerous.

tion of women is at this moment truly pitiable. Take, for instance, a point somewhat outside that of mere education; what is more saddening than to see the style and character of the ornaments worn by poor women? There is more than mere vulgarity in tawdriness, in false jewellery, in speering at better. It indicates a low state of feeling and a warped disposition.

The want of other classes of proper employment for women is being sorely and grievously felt. There are very few trades or callings of a neat and remunerative kind discovered for them. In Geneva, most of the watches are made by women. In America, hundreds of avenues of employment are opened to females which are closed with us.

How often does it not occur that a family, say of the middle class, becomes suddenly deprived of its breadwinner, and three or four girls are thrown upon the world not only without education or prepared capacities for work but without a place or standing in which they could work, were they able?

There is scarce a woman who is not fit for a task which would bring money if the task were only found for her; yet there are thousands of old maids, as they are called, in this country who are obliged to live on wretched pittances, hid away from sheer shabbiness, from respectable acquaintances, and wait for death, without an aim or purpose in existence—with cramped minds, and intellects enfeebled by a want of exercise, and tempered sour from rage disappointments, regrets, and a sense of the wrong which society has done them, which they are unable to express or to feel even consciously, but which expresses itself in their shapeless, cheerless, and colourless characters.—(London Review.)

NOTES BY A PIANIST.

NO. II. June, 1863.

I am convinced that some savan will one day discover that time is a fluid which expands and contracts, according as it is exposed to such or such moral atmospheres. No one will ever make me believe, for instance, that Sunday at 12 is composed of twelve such hours as the other days of the week.

This morning after breakfast, I took a nap. Then I went down into the parlor of the hotel where I found two ladies with their Sunday faces on—that is looking as dismal as possible. I also found there a large Bible. I read a few verses and then went back to my room and took another nap. O human inconstancy! The piano which has been a torment to me all week possesses for me to-day an ir-

This reminds me of an incident connected with the Princess de Solm.
