BRITISH HOSPITAL, Notice is hereby Given, that, in accordance with the Resolutions passed at the General Meeting of Subscribers to this Institution, the Committee of Management for the ensuing Twelve Months has been formed as follows, viz:—

MADAME FARNESI, Has the honor to inform Parents and Guardians that she has now opened the above College for Young Ladies upon the plan of the first European College, and has spared neither trouble or expense to have over efficient French and English Governesses, and with the aid of Masters to give such a finished education as to do away with the necessity of sending young Ladies to Europe.

MADAME FARNESI takes this opportunity to thank her Friends for the kindness and patronage they have shown her, and for the satisfaction they have expressed for her past efforts, she begs to assure them that nothing will be spared in the future to render the education perfect in every respect.

THE only Language allowed to be spoken in French. The greatest attention is paid to their manners and deportment, that they may not only be well-educated, but have the refined and elegant manners of a Lady; and that, if necessary, on leaving the College, they may be able to take their place at the head of the household.

THE Young Ladies are never left alone Night or Day, a Governess sleeping in each Room.

TOWN IMPROVEMENTS.

The city of Buenos Ayres is stretching out so much on all sides, that we doubt if the Governor himself knows of all the improvements going on in the town.

English people, and foreigners in general, are so ceaselessly employed in their various occupations, that they know little of town improvements, save those which meet their view in the street leading from their residences to their houses of business.

Take, for instance, a German gentleman living in Broker's-row, at the Socorro, whose office is in the centre of the city, and whose business rarely calls him beyond the precincts of the Banks and the Bolsa: he knows as much of what is going on at the south and west ends of the city, as does the resident of Ludlam-terrace about the Bola de Oro, or the Cinco Esquinas.

The city of Buenos Ayres, for its population, probably stretches over a greater area than any city in Europe, and if due attention was paid to its Municipal requirements it would, owing to the roomy and airy formation of its houses, be one of the healthiest in the world.

Buenos Ayres, in all its public departments, is, 'par excellence,' the city of neglect, and every improvement of which it boasts is due solely and exclusively to individual enterprise. More than six years ago we called the attention of the public to the necessity of rounding the corners of the streets. This is a measure eminently required in this town of lanes. Of course, like everything else, the thing was lost sight of, until Mr Green commenced building his new Bank. Now, all the world admits that the "Standard" was right. The streets out in the direction of the Once de Setiembre are wide, airy, and well-paved, but the houses, for the most part, are miserable, twopenny concerns, and built more to sell by auction, when neatly plastered over in front with stucco work, than to serve as comfortable domiciles for families. Still, out in that direction, we notice many and great improvements; rents range from eight hundred to a thousand dollars per month, and houses, with about ten yards on the street, and 'fondo completo,' can be bought from £1,500 to £2,000.

In the south end of the town property is beginning to rise, notwithstanding that rents in that direction are still somewhat cheaper than in the north. It is probable that, on the return of Mr. Gonzales Moreno from Europe, some charming crescents will be built on the hill-tops overlooking Barracas and the Boca. The city in this direction is going ahead; wide, open spaces which for years have been the receptacle of city offal, are now being walled in and converted into barracas. Messrs. Ocampo's barraca, in Buen Orden, is a stately edifice of the kind; the old Plaza Concepcion is being neatly trimmed up, fenced round by a handsome railing, and will be soon dubbed with the ubiquitous paraiso.

The grandest improvement which this city can boast of, and the noblest establishment ever attempted in B. Ayres is the great Sanitary Rotunda which, at the foot of Calle Buen Orden, caps the hill overlooking Calle Larga. We have recently inspected this unequalled establishment, which is now fast approaching completion, and have no hesitation in saying that it is every way fit to rank with kindred establishments in the finest cities of Europe. Built, evidently, with an utter disregard of expense, supplied with all the modern improvements, with the most especial regard for sanitary arrangements, the establishment will doubtless prove a boon to the inhabitants of Buenos Ayres. The taste and adaptability of the architectural design has met with the most unlimited praise from all who have seen it, and we advise our readers, both town and country, to call and visit it.

The grand entrance faces on Calle Buen Orden, and is back from the street about twenty yards; on either side in the garden in front there will be a handsome 'jet d'eau'; ascending the steps the stranger enters a stately portico, with Corinthian pillars, and on entering the hall, finds on one side the apothecary department, and on the other the telegraph office, which connects with the central office in Calle Tacuari, No. 31. The outward hall or passage which circumvents the building leads to the various chambers of sickness, convalescence, and health; the space intervening between this hall and the round room in the centre, which is the chapel beneath the dome, is occupied by various saloon dormitories for the patients, each and all opening on the chapel in the centre, the altar of which revolves at will on its axis; and the beautiful stained-glass windows of the various departments opening on the chapel inspire the stranger at once with a sanctimonious idea of this rotunda church. Ascending to the second flight we find the rooms, the hall, and the dormitories precisely in the same order as on the first floor, with the exception that the halls open upon a charming terrace, which commands probably the finest view in this city. Aloft in the dome, which is an immense iron cistern, containing several hundred pipes of water, pumped up by steam from the premises in the rear; each room is supplied with hot and cold water baths, gas, and telegraphic bells, with lofty windows looking out on the gardens, and stately doors, that would make our city carpenters gaze; whilst Mr. Lassance, who is the founder of this establishment, with a soul for sanitary arrangements, has armed each room with a patent ventilator. The consulting office is fitted up with a luxury for a Governor or a President; and to render the establishment more complete, a capacious kitchen garden in the rear caters to the vegetable requirements of the patients;—and as it is a privilege to be a subscriber to this palace of wealth, we have no doubt Mr. Lassance will meet with the fullest support from all our readers. The following is the program, which gives all the particulars:—

THE MODEL SANITARY INSTITUTE.

PROSPECTUS:

Thanks to the development of commerce and evident industrial progress, the Argentine Republic is favored to-day by a respectable number of foreigners, who, with the laudable object of securing the welfare of themselves and families are daily bringing to bear upon us the resources of their scientific industrial, and mechanical researches. It is not always, however, that they are permitted to follow the straight course laid out. Numerous are the rocks which stem the way of their onward march and dissipate their cherished dreams. Amongst the most formidable of these may be ranked the infinity of diseases to which we are exposed, either from the effects of the climate, the condition of our food or the peculiar nature of our employment.

Hitherto this city of Buenos Ayres has been destitute of any establishment which combines the two greatest helps to science in overcoming sickness, viz.:—Convenience and cheapness.

Buenos Ayres required—nay, imperiously demanded—the creation of a hospital for the care of the ailing member of her vast native and foreign population, whose simple mode of living prevented their proper treatment at home.

The Gran Instituto Sanitario Modelo—constructed on the best and most salubrious site in the city, with less regard to cost than beauty and comfort—is destined to fill this want long felt. In order to give an idea of the advantages this establishment offers to the public, the undersigned respectfully lays before them the various forms of subscription, in the hope that they may be found convenient for the residents of the camp, provinces, or city.

The grand cosmopolitan institute receives all as subscribers, on payment of $30 mpc monthly, by which they are qualified, when sick, to enter and remain until cured, to effect which promptly a clean, airy apartment, with suitable food, medical adviser, physio, and attendance, peculiarly adapted to the wants of the patient, are supplied. The immense advantages thus offered to the unfortunate sufferer, are obviously far beyond anything to be had in the most comfortable homes; far apart from the ordinary arrangements, constant care, and great amount of science, there are hot, cold, or vapor baths, electric machines, hydropathic apparatus, and a long list of other appliances of modern practitioners.

The proprietor, fully persuaded of the fact, that the artisan who can gain an honest livelihood for his family, whilst able to work, in the day of sickness must cease to earn it; does not charge anything to the subscriber whilst convalescent. Who cannot afford thirty paper dollars a month whilst well, to procure for themselves every care and comfort, when prostrated by sickness?

In order not to exclude the wealthy from advantages which are intended for all, we have, whilst catering to the poor in spacious saloons, fitted up in another part of the building, several small rooms for the accommodation of one or two patients. Honorary tickets will also be issued, by which any subscriber for more than one is empowered to transfer the extras in favor of as many sick friends. The name on the tickets can be changed but once a year.

Parties not wishing to be troubled by the collector, can pay one or more months in advance. Those desirous of saving should pay cash, three hundred dollars, for one year's subscription. No pensioner, of less than two months' standing, can be admitted when sick; but, in return, no special entry fee is collected.

In a large port, without the commonest attempt at a sailor's home, the proprietor has thought fit to make special provision for the unfortunate 'toilers of the sea.' 1st. Every vessel, on entering port, can have her crew insured, provided always that she can show a clean bill of health. 2nd. Each number of the crew shall pay $50 mpc for one single occasion. 3rd. Every individual taken ill eight days after will be admitted. 4th. The $50 above mentioned only pays the mariner for three months. 5th. If the vessel brings sick, the doctors attached to the establishment shall classify them into—"Positive short cure," "Doubtful long cure." THE "STANDARD" ABROAD.

Brussels, March 21st.

Yesterday morning I proceeded by train to Groenendael, and there took my seat on the top of the Waterloo coach, just beside a young Englishman who at first shunned conversation. With my usual good fortune I found we had mutual friends, he being intimately acquainted with Mr. Prodroust of Montevideo: we were both going to see the field of Waterloo, and my comrade, although brought up in Germany, was the son of an Irishman.

The forest of Soignies lies on both sides of the road almost till you get in sight of the Village of Waterloo; then you have a fine rolling country for some miles, as you approach the scene of the great battle.

We leave Waterloo on our right; it is a long way from the battle-field but has given name to the fight from the mere fact that Wellington wrote his despatches from there after the victory. At the village of Mount St. Jean the coach pulls up before a neat wayside inn. Here we engaged a Belgian youth, who has every feature of the battle in strict accord with Allison's history.

We passed a thatched cabin, and learn that here the Duke of Wellington was regaled with a cup of coffee by some officers, the morning of the battle. Now we are in view of the pyramid of the Lion, which marks the centre of the English position. The guide leads us to a cross-road, where formerly stood a tree, under which Wellington for some hours directed the fight. We are on the crest of a slope, and have a capital view of the field.

Just before us, not more than 300 yards off, is La Haye Sainte which formed the advanced centre of the English position. Half a mile to the left is Papillote, where the English line terminated in a hollow among brushwood, and a thousand yards on our right is the Chateau of Hougoumont, which was regarded both by Wellington and Napoleon as the key of the British position, the lines being drawn in half-moon concave form, the Mount St. Jean as centre.

The battle began at 11 o'clock by the French artillery opening fire on Hougoumont. About noon the tide of war raged fiercest at La Haye Sainte, which was at length taken by Napoleon, after great losses, and only when the courtyard was ankle-deep with the blood of the Dutch defenders; you see a tablet to their memory on the gable-end of the old farmhouse, which still shows numerous marks of balls. This place remained in the hands of the French till near the close of the day.

On the roadside, a little higher up, are two monuments, to the Hanoverians and to Col. Girdou, and on the left is a bush near which Gens. Picton and Ponsonby fell.

Our guide leads the way to ascend the Lion's pyramid; there are over 300 steps and the monument is about 200 feet high; the inscription is simply "June 18th, 1815." The whole battlefield lies at our feet: it is now sown with wheat; and rich crops are reaped where the soil has been fertilised with the blood of 70,000 men. The little church steeple yonder marks the village of Planchenois, and a short way further left is the wood where the Prussians first appeared under Blucher—the village was three times taken by the Prussians, and as often recovered by Count Toban, who finally set it on fire.

The white house on yonder slope, in front of us, in La Belle Alliance, with the thicket of Quatre Bras in the rear. As the eye runs along the positions of the armies the story of the battle comes clearly and vividly to your mind. The French line was about a mile and a half long, the English a little less, and whatever numerical superiority Napoleon had, this was more than balanced by the strong position of Wellington, who was entirely on the defensive.

Those old walls of Hougoumont and orchard adjoining were witnesses of the most gallant daring on the part of the French, and the most indomitable pluck on that of our countrymen. Napoleon battered down the walls with his artillery, and launched his battalions to the assault; but all in vain: the chapel was in ruins, the out-houses in flames, the garrison still held their ground. The place in some way turned the fortune of the day against the French.

The high-road of Nivelles runs behind Baryannont and Mont St. Jean, bounding a corn-field which rises, to a slope and overlooks the chateau and orchard. This slope was held by Wellington's artillery, behind which were lying the regiments of guards. Some of Napoleon's finest regiments were cut to pieces in endeavoring to charge up this slope, through a ploughed field, under the fire of the English guns.

It must have been a thrilling sight to see the flower of the French army deploying in heavy columns, bearing down upon the English squares, and then recoiling in defeat; to form again at the foot of the slope, again rush upon the serried mass of British bayonets, and again fall back discomfited. Nevertheless, if Grouchy, instead of the Prussians, had come up at the close of the day, the English must have been defeated.

At yonder sand-pit close to La Hage Sainte, when the fortunes of the day had grown desperate, Napoleon took his last stand and watched the advance of the Old Guard (which had never yet known defeat) in a last attempt to break the English lines and turn Wellington's flank.

The rest of the story is easily told: by sunset the French were in a complete rout, and the Prussians pursued them with dreadful carnage during an unclouded moonlight night.

Descending from the Lion, we pay a visit to the museum of Major Cotton's piece, who certifies her relics to be genuine. Will it be believed that not a day passes without the ploughshare turning up remains of the fight. In crossing the ploughed field to Hougoumont, we pick up, in less than an hour, three bullets, a grape shot, and a piece of a man's jaw, with two teeth in it.

We walked round the battered walls of Hougoumont, looked in at the farmyard, and plucked some violets in the orchard.

We had not time to visit Waterloo Church, where Picton, Ponsonby, and Lord Anglesey's leg are buried. As a souvenir of the field, our guide gave me a blackthorn, cut from the spot where "young gallant Howard" fell. I remarked some Americans and Germans visiting Waterloo at the same time as ourselves. We got back to Brussels before night.

EDITOR'S TABLE.

The only mails received yesterday were from the Uruguay. Our somniferous correspondent in Paysandú allowed the steamer to pass without sending us his letter. Things, however, in that part of the Banda Oriental are beginning to assume a quieter aspect. The Government people are trying to recruit hard and fast, whilst further in the country the rebels are recruiting with equal energy; the same old South American story; and the unfortunate country people and peones torn from their estancias and puestos to fill the ranks of either side. Neither is there any prospect of a speedy termination of the present struggle, since Perez is sweeping from one partido to another to pick up recruits and horses; and the latest from the Mount is that Caraballo has been sent for to bring his men back to defend the city. This looks bad; but it appears that the Government can place but little reliance on the Guardia Nacional.

From Entre Rios we received our exchanges. The whole press of the Province insists on the election of General Urquiza as President; and it is urged that if the electors cannot return the General they should not vote at all. At Gualeguaychú, and along the coast, everything was quiet: the estancias thriving, and things doing well; the sheep farms were never in a more prosperous condition; the jaunting season excellent.

Such has been the effect of Governor Alsina's speech, that it is currently rumored it will lead to a fusion of the Urquiza and Buenos Ayrean party; and a paper is going the rounds in the highest circles in this city, obtaining signatures by the thousand in favor of immediate peace with Paraguay, and the nomination of General Urquiza as President, with Governor Alsina as Vice-President.

Dr. Rawson, we are glad to see has accepted the post of Senator for the province of Buenos Ayres. This gentleman stands so high amongst us that his presence in the Chambers will add dignity to the Legislature.

The last news from the war, silences the rumours which for some days were so current; it appears that the statements of passengers from Rosario respecting the attack on the foreign Legion is what gave rise to the report that there had been another fight.

The Kepler left yesterday taking a number of passengers, amongst others a gentleman from Dublin who arrived by last packet with the intention of settling in the Banda Oriental; found the country in a revolution, and at once took the steamer to leave the country.

On the 25th the great foot ball match comes off. We understand that the new Club we received some splendid foot balls from Rugby, and the game promises to be exciting.

Smokers of paper cigars are most indignant at the cigar makers having reduced the number of paper cigars in a bundle to seven; formerly there were 14 in a bundle, then nine, and now only seven. The only relief seems to be to give up smoking paper cigars in toto; they are very bad for the health, and much more injurious than the pipe. Havannah cigars are getting so dear that their consumption is daily diminishing.

The mails from Montevideo may be expected this morning. Owing to the rough weather we have been two days without a steamer. The storm down there has been very severe. Here we have had nothing save heavy frost and a refreshing pampero, but we want rain badly.

There is at present on view at Messrs. Fusoni's picture gallery a splendid portrait of our renowned countryman Admiral Brown. The likeness is striking and reflects much credit on the clever artist Sr. Manzoni, who has destined it to adorn the halls of the Club Progreso.

The splendid new building for the Western Railway terminus is now almost finished. The glass roof will be put up in a few days, and then there will be no railway station in the country of equal beauty or capaciousness. These improvements have been suggested by the enormous increase of traffic, and have been instituted by the active Inspector.

A sufficient number of Congressmen having now arrived, and the preliminary Sessions held, it is believed that to-day President Mitre, accompanied by his Ministers, will formally inaugurate his sixth and last Congress. This important annual act, which should have taken place before now, has been delayed by the want of punctuality in the Argentine legislators, and well might the President complain like Governor Alsina.

Since the disappearance of the cholera, and the return of the Municipality, the city has been gradually receding to its former filth, and now, as of old, the streets are so neglected as to be almost intransitable. Notwithstanding all the late rules for vehicles, which opens a wide field for increased filth, there is positively no such thing as driving through town. Within the short distance of a few squares of the Plaza how often must the respectable coach come to a standstill until the common cartman takes it into his head to make way. The negligence of the city police makes the law a dead letter, and often exposes the person in the coach to the rudest language; and if the passenger be in a hurry for the train, or otherwise, he is compelled to make the best of his way on foot.

Gibson's 'Agua Secutums' are now all the rage. The new Senators and Deputies of Congress are known through town by these superb overcoats; now the foreign ministers have adopted the new style; and Gibson & Murray are now the legislative and diplomatic tailors of the day.

On the 7th June the finest suburban property around Buenos Ayres will be sold by auction—Santa Catalina; its near proximity to the railway station makes it one of the most desirable country properties in Buenos Ayres.

Since the lamented death of our famous correspondent, "Sinbad," we have been completely thrown on our colleagues for news, of which we cannot, of course, vouch the truth. Some days ago we were surprised to find in the columns of 'one a rather unflattering allusion to the conduct of the Foreign Legion in the last fight in the Chaco. By all accounts the poor mercenaries were roughly handled, but the Argentine commander has gone so far as to attribute it to their own cowardice. In refutation of this serious charge on the character of a foreign brigade, we gladly give place to this correspondence from the German paper:—The battalion detached 10 scouts to feel the way in front. These fell into an ambush, and were received with a round of grape from two small mountain pieces; the corps coming up charged with the bayonet and captured the guns. Elated by the signal success of this gallant dash, the commander sent the band and flag to the coast to announce it to the ironclads, and without consulting the General, pushed boldly forward to complete the rout of the retreating foe. Not having taken any precautions to cover the rear, in a few minutes the devoted band was entirely annihilated but for the prompt assistance of Ivanowski, who at the head of two companies of the 3rd of the line, charged the Paraguayans in flank, killing many, making several prisoners, and rescuing the few survivors of the once renowned Military Legion.

We are glad to see that our French colleague and the Patria have taken up the cause of the foreign Legion. There is no doubt that the legion has behaved badly at last, but we must remember in justice to the gallant corps what it was. At the outbreak of the war there was no finer battalion in the Argentine army than the foreign legion. The commander as everyone knows was the former band-master, Signor Giuseppe Giribone, commonly known as Pippo, and who disclosed talents for the command of a regiment, which all his comrades acknowledge, and the Argentine war Department had the good sense to utilise. Unhappily the cholera came and twice decimated the corps. By the pestilence the commander Giribone lost nearly all his non-commissioned officers, who are, as all military men are aware, the soul of a regiment. The corps was subsequently recruited by the sweepings of foreign immigration, men who had been either rejected for European service, or who had been engaged in pursuits quite opposite to the military calling. Finally the commander Giribone was killed in the surprise of the 18th of February. Commander Matoso, a very gallant soldier, but perhaps not remarkable as an officer, succeeded to the command of a disorganised corps, and the late result was nothing extraordinary, and certainly should have been treated in a less insulting tone by General Gally y Obes.

If one were to state that the career of an auctioneer is strewn with dangers and imminent risks, the statement might be met with an ironical smile; yet our friend, Mr. Billinghurst, in the prosecution of his calling a few days ago, had the narrowest escape for his life imaginable. In his last trip to the South, to sell an estancia in the Partido of Tandil, as he, in company with five other gentlemen, was proceeding in a carriage to the spot, where he was to wield his ivory hammer, the coachman who was, as is vulgarly called, 'drunk as a lord,' began first, by unnecessarily urging on his horses, and ended by falling off his box, leaving the infuriated animals to career unchecked along the open country. They made straight for a big ditch that yawned a few hundred yards in front. The consternation of those inside the carriage may better be imagined than described. Whilst the fright deprived some of the power of speech, it suggested to others the idea of throwing themselves out of the carriage. Our friend, Billinghurst, alone preserved his usual 'sang froid,' and by declaring his firm resolve to cling to the last board of the imperilled vehicle, he was able to inspire his frightened companions with some courage. Little hope, however, was left to them of being saved, except by a miracle, when the horses, on reaching the edge of the ditch, gave a sharp swerve, by which, fortunately, both the hind wheels of the carriage went smash, thus rendering impossible any further progress. When our friend and his companions had somewhat regained their equanimity, with the aid of some excellent sherry, a bottle of which had providentially escaped intact from the catastrophe, they proceeded to look for the coachman, whom they expected to find a lifeless and mangled object, but were surprised to see him get up by his own accord, having only received a few bruises. We felicitate our popular auctioneer, Messrs. A. Fernandez, J. Elizalde, and his other companions, on their miraculous escape.

The Bonfies Parisiens repeat to-night the "Canotiers de la Seine," which was performed for the first time, and we hear, with great success, on Friday last. The company that performs at the Franco Argentin has been powerfully reinforced, and we shall not fail to go there to-night, recommending all those who wish to spend an agreeable night to do the same.

A new Board of Management of the South Plaza Commercial Hall was elected yesterday—Mr. Trolles, President; Mr. Cantar, Treasurer; and our well-known friend Mr. Otero, Secretary. We are informed that the Manager ex officio of the Great Southern Railway, our esteemed and active friend Mr. Ezcurra, and the Comisario of the Market, have been unanimously elected honorary members of that distinguished association, being the first and only ones that have been honored with this distinction. The outgoing Board received the most full approval for its management of the concerns of the association for more than three years, during which they have been able to create a reserve fund of more than $20,000, after paying off all expenses. The above sum has been deposited in the bank to provide for any eventuality of the Corporation, or to aid any philanthropic object that may be deemed deserving special attention.

COURSE 'EM ALL.

Soliloquy by an eminent British Importer, after Tennyson.

At the request of several Montevidean subscribers, we publish the following verses, which, as an Oriental composition, stands alone and needs no comment:—

Now, old fellows, clear out! will you?—for as sure as I was born I must vent my wrath on that man;—I will squeeze his tenderest corn! Since I first came to this city 'tis now forty years ago. Gracious! how the fleet years travel! How the seasons come and go! 'Tis the same in all appearance; as of old the night cats equal! And the lazy dogs lie snoozing in the shadow of the wall. Yes, old town, you're not much altered: there are still the sandy tracks And when rain falls don't it run down, roaring into cataraets! Oft I've wandered when a youngster round about the bleak 'reinto' Thinking, dreaming, till my best friends wonder'd where on earth I'd been to Then I dipt into the future far as human eye could see, Wond'ring 'twixt if I should ever merchant-prince or banker be. When I gazed upon the specie then brought in on nigger's back Little did I ever dream then things would take a different tack And I said "My own dear silver, 'tis as true as true can be— Trust me, specie, all the current of my being sets to thee."

Everything went well and happy till that horrid nine years' war, When we lost our poor dear silver and were well-nigh on the floor; But the gold came to replace it with a colour and a light Like the rosy red that flushes often in the northern night. And I took it to my bosom, never thinking I was wrong, And I hugged the base deceiver, crying "I have loved thee long!" O my specie, snaky-hearted! O my specie, mine no more! O the dreary, dreary paper! O the notes that rack me sore!

Falsar than steam fancy patterns, falsar than all songs have sung— You've left me for mere paper! Ah, I'd better hold my tongue. How on earth can I be happy! having known thee—to decline To a range of beastly paper! Was there ever fate like mine!

Paper, say you? It must lower in its level day by day Till it comes down just to nothing—never mind what Bankers say. It must sink until its value is as nothing—O my choler! Till our poor dear peso's quoted like a Buenos Ayres dollar— Cursed be the day we dreamt of setting up that horrid thing Call'd the 'Sociedad de Cambios,' little dreaming what 'twould bring!

Cursed the 'Bancos Libres'—nothing but a base deception, Curse them, blast them, hang them, sink them, every one, 'without exception!' Yes! I'll cut thee, Montevideo—never more lienzos sell, Nor the fine fast 72 reeds which your fair ones love so well—

No more 'paño de la estrella'—no 'bayeta de pellow' Shall I sell your ragged soldiers—that you may depend upon! I shall start for distant countries, where, when comes the British flag, We're not flouted off with paper, but get dollars in a bag. Yes, I say it and I mean it! I must leave this once-lov'd shore, O! I'll never, never, never see a silver dollar more!

How my brain reels! How I quiver! 'Via crucis—via sacra!' I shall die if I stay longer—Faith! I'll start off for the 'chaeca.'

HASTA LUEGO.

The Philharmonic Society is proposing another concert for the month of June. We are requested to inform the members that the next rehearsal will take place on to-morrow evening, at half-past seven o'clock precisely. The ladies and gentlemen are requested to attend at the said hour.

THE OPENING OF CONGRESS. We were very generally supposed yesterday afternoon that President Mitre would open Congress on Monday, and the decree to that effect was signed late last evening. The Congress hall is so small that parties who wish to attend must go early in order to secure a seat in the visitors gallery. No tickets required—admission free, and as this will be the last Congress which President Mitre will inaugurate, it is possible that increased interest will be attached to the ceremony.

A band of music and a few soldiers are usually placed in the street for the occasion, who strike up the National anthem and present arms when the Committee of the house brings over the President and his Ministers to inaugurate the session. As is usual on such occasions there will be a profusion of gold lace and cocked hats. All the foreign Ministers are expected to attend "en grande tenue," and the Argentine officers and Generals have an opportunity to display their epaulettes. Respecting the business of the Session, that is a heavy question, which for the moment we eschew. Deputy Ocampo, who was excluded from the house last year, has now been admitted. Old influences are evidently on the wane and new ones in the ascendant. Our special reporter will be in attendance to give us a summary of the proceedings, which promise to be more than usually interesting from the efforts of public men trying to swim against the current of public opinion.

THE WAR IN THE NORTH. LATEST INTELLIGENCE. From a letter of General Gelly y Obes to President Mitre, dated Paso Puen, May 11, we learn that on the 8th, on the occasion of a reconnaissance, the Allied expeditionary division, under General Rivas, had a brush with the enemy, in which the latter was routed, leaving on the field a great number of killed and a quantity of arms. Two wounded Paraguayans, taken prisoners, have declared—that the enemy's force on that day consisted of 600 infantry and two regiments of cavalry, of which they think barely 50 came off sound—that Lopez, with his three Generals, and 6000 men of all arms, is at present at the Estancia Rosario, five or six leagues from the River Paraguay, and four from the Tebicuarí—that he intends attacking the Allied positions on their flank, trusting in his cavalry, which is said to be well mounted—that the heavy artillery taken from Humaita has been buried under ground in the Chaco—one of the prisoners having helped to inter the famous gun General Diaz—that in Timbu there are four battalions and two regiments, with several field pieces, and fourteen heavy guns on the river's side—that there is a great scarcity of men for the army—and, lastly, that a battalion had lately come from Asuncion, composed exclusively of children from ten to eleven years old, and also 150 men from the frontier of Brazil.

Gelly says nothing about the girls!

THE PACIFIC MAILS. CHILI. We have dates from Santiago and Valparaiso to the 24th April. On the 16th of the same month the Chilean Government issued a decree declaring that from the 1st inst. the traffic with the Argentine Republic would be subject to the general regulations that affected the trade with the rest of foreign countries, on account of the expiration on the 30th April of the special treaty of free trade ratified on the 30th of April, 1856—in consequence of this all cattle and articles of all kinds introduced into Chili by the Cordilleras will have to pay duty as if introduced from beyond sea. Merchandise purchased for the Argentine provinces will be despatched from the Custom-house as if destined for the consumption of the interior, and will no longer be despatched in bond as formerly.

The Government has destined the lands in the Department of Naemiento to the formation of a colony. All families going to settle there will receive 20 hectares of land and all travelling expenses, and freight of baggage defrayed as far as the colony, board and lodging free till they enter into possession of their property, daily rations and a subsidy of 15 silver dollars per month for a year. All their tools and machinery will be free of duty—they will be exempted from taxes for 20 years, and will receive seed, a pair of oxen, wood to build huts, medical assistance and medicines gratuitously for two years, and free schools for their children permanently. The colonists are bound to pay for the value of the land in the course of 50 years by yearly instalments of 2 per cent.

PERU. The yellow fever continues making great havoc both in Callao and Lima. In the month of March the mortality in Callao had reached the figure of 566, of which 400 were of yellow fever. Among the latter 21 were natives and 43 foreigners.

In Lima the deaths in the same month amounted to 563, of which 161 were of yellow fever.

The election for President had closed, and it was believed that Balta had obtained the majority.

The Government had issued a decree appointing a commission, which was to proceed to Arica and convey from thence the mortal remains of General Castilla to the capital, to be interred with funeral honors.

WORDS OF COMFORT TO THE WEAK. In addition to the ailments common to both sexes woman has special ailments of her own, which demand our sympathy, and should receive relief if possible. IT IS POSSIBLE. In her peculiar trials she needs strengthening and sustaining, and the functional derangements to which she is subject can only be removed by a preparation combining the properties of a tonic and regulating medicine. Alone among remedies of this nature stands BRISTOL'S SASSAPARILLA. Which vegetable perfectly innocuous, especially adapted to delicate and over-susceptible organization, it will be found invaluable in all the peculiar physical exigencies of the sex. Used at the same time with the Sarsaparilla BRISTOL'S VEGETABLE PILLS will be found a powerful help in effecting a complete cure, carrying off from the system the vitiated and depraved humours set free by the Sarsaparilla, and thus enabling the organs to resume their healthy functions at the proper and natural seasons.

ON CHANGE. May 16, 1868. Ounces, $400 Sovereigns, 12 1/2 Patacons, 25 National Bonds, 4 1/2

Bonds rise very firm, and the general feeling is, that they are going up. The large holders are not selling, and it is said that the chief bank in the market has oversold, and will be compelled to purchase largely for the end of this and the next month. There is a slightly improved speculative tone in the market, and, as money grows easier, the National Securities improve. Political influences, slight as they are, have had some effect, these few days past, on the market, as the speech of the Governor inspired many with serious distrust; but to-day it was said openly, that in view of the position of the country some highly influential parties had taken up the matter, and a paper, calling for the fusion of parties, the nomination of Gen. Urquiza, as President, with Governor Alina as Vice-President, was receiving the signatures of the most influential people of Buenos Ayres. This had a salutary effect on the market, and gave a stiffer tone to Bonds; and, indeed, many affirm that it is the only solution possible which will give a guarantee to the public. The statement of the Provincial Bank, as published this morning, attracted notice, and as the Bank paid out to-day in ounces, which but a few days ago commanded two dollars premium, there was much said on the subject. The total amount of specie held by the Bank is slightly over two million and a-half patacons, whilst the deposits against are little short of eight millions. The amount of paper money on hand is seventeen and three-quarter millions against two hundred and forty-nine millions on deposit. Exchange for the packet has not yet opened. The Bank paid out to-day in gold over 70,000 ounces. The following charters, by Woodgate, Brothers: American barque Waldo, to load in the River Uruguay, for orders, tallow, at 30s. and 5 per cent.
