

President, whereupon Colonel Peña, with the readiness of a true courtier, and a bow towards his Imperial Highness, who formed part of the cortejo, exclaimed, "Monsieur le General, si vous avez dejuné avec un President, moi, j'ai dîné avec un Prince"—and we believe Colonel Peña is the only living Argentine who can say so much.

When leaving the Government House, after visiting the President, his Imperial Highness's attention was attracted by the tattered condition of the colours of the guard of honour.—He inquired of Colonel Peña what service the regiment had seen, who replied—"Paraguay-bulleta. Your Highness have reduced every regimental flag in the service to the same state," and added, with a bow that would have done honor to Polonius, "that the Brazilian flags were generally believed to be in the same glorious condition."

We understand that the Prince was greatly attracted towards his aide-de-camp "pro tem," and on his departure took leave of him in a specially cordial and friendly manner, and presented him with a silver toothpick.

We have been informed that an amateur concert will be held at Chacomus on the evening of the 4th of May next, with the benevolent object of adding to the funds of the British Hospital. Tickets can be had from Messrs. Auld and Pettigrew, Chacomus.

It is said that a private company is about to be formed for the purchase of the Women's Hospital, in order to erect a magnificent theatre on the site. It is proposed to run a corridor round the outside of the building, where cafes, confectioneries &c. can be established. If this idea be carried out, it will be a great acquisition to the metropolis.

IMPORTANT DECISION.

We extract the following interesting particulars from the Fiscal's Report on "the attitude assumed by the Chilean Government during the civil war in the Province of Cayo."—Civil war, according to the law of nations, can alone be said to exist, when one of the factions has, through exercising acts of sovereignty, and having a Government whose domination extends over a certain extent of territory, acquired a political position in the eyes of foreign countries. In this case both sides may be regarded as distinct and independent political entities, and the law of nations, justice, pre-existing treaties, and regard for their own interests, are the rules which regulate the conduct of other nations towards them.

The important rising which has taken place within the bounds of the Republic, never attained sufficient importance to constitute itself into a Power or Government, having only extended to four out of the fourteen Provinces forming the Republic, never having gained even one decisive victory; and this is also the view taken of it by the Chilean Government.

Although the revolution never attained dimensions beyond those already pointed out, and those who commanded at Mendoza and San Juan only exercised usurped authority, you cannot hold the Chilean Government responsible for recognising the permits signed by the revolutionary authorities for the transmission of our products to Chile, as long as the forms laid down by the treaty were observed, for the incompetency of our 'employes,' cannot serve as a rule for the Chilean Government.

The Argentine Legation has demanded the restoration of flocks and herds, stolen by the revolutionists, and sent to Chile to be sold; and the right to make such a demand should be recognised to be just, without any special agreement in peace as in war, by both Governments. To admit the contrary would be to sanction the planning within your boundaries of robbery, and hostility towards your neighbors, even in time of peace.

The Legation has asked that an embargo be put on the property stolen, and bail given for the appearance of the present holders, until the case be inquired into, but this demand has not been complied with.

By article 17 of the treaty, ships, merchandise, and property, belonging to citizens of either country, which may have been taken by pirates or robbers, will be restored on the right of possession being proved and the costs paid.

The robberies committed by the revolutionists—land pirates—are of a similar nature, and should have a like solution.

There is also another point worthy of attention—viz., the duties of private rights comprised in the rights of nations. From this springs the obligation of neutrals not to supply either belligerent with munitions of war, nor on the other hand is it permitted to supply them to both, for it would be impossible to do so with the exact equality which neutrality requires, besides it would be like arming two individuals, and fomenting discord, instead of calming it, an essential duty of neutrals.

During the aggression of other nations, besides that of Great Britain, through the "Foreign Enlistment Act." This principle is applied with even greater reason, when the war in your neighbour's territory is simply a rebellion, and those foreigners who take part in it should be punished by their governments when they return to their country, and if taken prisoners, they lose their rights as such, and deserve the fate of rebels.

As a legitimate consequence of these principles, it is admitted that neighbouring nations have a right to ask from each other vigilance on their respective sides of the frontier in looking after those likely to create political troubles.

Chile and the Argentine Republic are so intimately connected by commercial and other ties that one cannot experience internal commotions without their affecting the other.

It is impossible that the Chilean Government can be ignorant of the events which took place within its territories, but the principal question is not as to the precautions adopted, or the silence observed, but the doubt which the Chilean Minister seems to entertain as to our being in accord on the point most essential for both Republics, viz.—the universal law which binds nations as well as individuals, and which prohibits them from fomenting disturbances in other countries.

On this point, considering what has passed, I think the Argentine Government had a right to demand an explanation from Chile, in order that an agreement may be come to for the future guidance of both countries based on general principles, and in consonance with their interest as neighbours engaged in commerce.

RAMON FERREIRA.

BREACH OF PROMISE.

Messrs. Editors, You were so attentive to the interests of our Teutonic friends, when the two German girls fell into trouble at Montevideo, that, as I do not write German, I send through your paper to the public.

A short time ago a young German lady, speaking equally well, both German and French, of good connections at home, was induced to come to this country under promise of marriage.

On arriving here the young gentleman told her that living was so expensive in this country that he could not afford to marry, and after giving her some good advice, he left her to provide for herself. Her money is nearly gone, she has no acquaintances this side of the Atlantic, and on the last day of her voyage her trunks were broken open and nearly all her clothing was stolen. At present she has taken an inferior room, and she lives on the plainest fare, and yet she is so nearly distracted by her distressing situation that she is already incapable of doing anything for her support.

A few days more and her money will be gone, and, unless she can be cheered up by the hope of seeing home again, her reason will also soon be lost.

The young lady has good references, and surely there are gentlemen enough in Buenos Ayres of a different stamp from the one who beguiled her here, to give her the means to return to her home and friends.

I leave my name and the names of my informants, and also the name and address of the young lady, at your office.

Yours truly, G. "FISTIANA."

B. Ayres, April 9, 1869.

To the Editors of the Standard.

As several steamers are chartered for the conveyance of passengers to and from the fight, particulars of which can be had of my Secretary, Mr. Willington, 46 Calle Reconquista, I will, to increase the sport of the day, match John Mulligan against any man at Montevideo at Sat. 10th or 9th, and not particular even to 3st. more; the lads to fight for a purse to be collected on the ground after the first fight, and to fight in the same ring.

I am, Gentlemen, Yours obediently, Cox.

NUISANCE.

To the Editors of the "Standard" Gentlemen,

In the neighbourhood of Calles Independencia and Defensa nearly every night about half past 12 to 1 o'clock, there exists the most horrible stench imaginable, if ten thousand cesspools were to suddenly burst the effluvia could not be more frightful, it is to be had, sleep is out of the question. If the Municipalidad will permit such a nuisance, all I can say is, they ought to live in the midst of it. I have not had time to make enquiries where the nuisance exists, but I am determined to find out and report it to the proper quarter.

I cannot think the effluvia is produced by the Saladeros, it is intolerable for that. Unless the nuisance is stopped, there will be no doubt about the cholera and other diseases visiting us again, Trusting the mere publicity of this will stop the above for the future.

I remain Yours truly, A. SUBCERREDA.

ON CHANGE.

April 9th, 1869.
Oncores, 400
Sovereigns, 122 1/2
Patacons, 25
National Bonds, 56 1/2
The market opened to-day at 5 1/2 for the end of April, and went up to 57 for same date. For cash there were no transactions till a late hour, when a sale was effected by one of the principal bulls at 56 1/2; they immediately fell off, however, to 56, at which price they closed weak. The state of the market is not so extremely critical. The current impression for some time past has been that Bonds have reached their present extreme price, from the legitimate investments of outsiders. It is now generally felt, however, that the rise has been an artificial one as previous ones, and that sooner or later a reaction is imminent.

The great bulk of the Bonds on the Bolsa are said to be held by one or two parties on money borrowed on call. If this be so, there can be no doubt that the anticipated fall must come. It is only bona fide purchases on the part of the public that can cause a permanent improvement in the value of any security. The efforts of speculators have always proved impotent to that end. It was currently stated on "Change" that the principal speculator for some time past was called upon to-day to repay a loan of $200,000 advanced on Bonds. This, of course, will have a considerable influence on the market.

Affairs in Montevideo seem to be as critical as ever. The opposition to the "curso forzoso" has, it would seem, triumphed, and few attach importance to the dream of a national bank. Paper money was quoted to-day at 90. Gold is again being shipped to Montevideo.

The state of the Rosario market also attracts attention. The Argentine Bank has commenced to ship specie to their branch there, and it is feared that the pressure abroad may soon be felt here.

In the produce markets to-day there was unusual activity. Dry hides still keep rising, and sales were made to-day at 141 dollars mpc. in the South Plaza.

In the wool markets there are also brisk sales, which indicates some improvement in the export trade.

The killing at the saladeros up the rivers is for all, more than has been represented. In exchange the rate rules the same, 49 1/2. About $220,000 passed, part of which is said to be Bank paper. The amortisation of the National Bonds was effected yesterday at 56 1/2. Señor Dominguez having taken the whole.

Total sale of Bonds for the end of the month amounted to 330,000 at 57. For to-morrow 55,000 at 56 1/2. In the liquidation room, the market closed firm, prices well sustained.

Owing to the war rumors current there was much anxiety to know the news by the Packet, but at the closing hour of the Bolsa her arrival in Montevideo had not been telegraphed.

Our special reporter at the South Plaza reports to-day the following important sales at the Station and Plaza.
