with freight to Europe at a ridiculous price, and provisions of all sorts at famine prices...

It is thus, Your Excellency, we call your attention to such a state of things, in the fervent hope that this iniquitous tax on wool will be at once abolished...

We have the honor to remain, Your Excellency's humble servants, Fire Hundred Ruined Sheepfarmers

EDITOR'S TABLE

The Rio de la Plata arrived yesterday morning from Montevideo, and the Saturno from the Uruguay. The Brazilian steam transport Guyaba also arrived from Montevideo with General Osorio on board...

With the Paraguayan war about to enter on one of its decisive phases, we may draw attention to two most distinguished Paraguayan leaders. In 1865 Gen. Caballero, in some respects the Murat of the Paraguayan army...

The last meeting for the season of the Carreras Estranjeras in Montevideo will take place on the 25th and 26th of this month. The principal races are for the grand national prize, consisting of a richly ornamented bridle and whip...

Public opinion in Montevideo is very undecided as to the upshot of the financial imbroglio; meantime paper has taken a decided turn downwards...

We have heard of another very singular and suggestive sign of the times, lately displayed at Barracas del Sur and about which some of our colleagues have expressed strong opinions. It appears that some general dealer in that locality, finding trade rather dull...

If the next generation in the River Plate be not models of all that doth become a man [and an occasional fair one too] it will certainly not be the fault of their paternal ancestors...

Agriculture is now being advocated by those who have the welfare of this country at heart, and anything connected with it must prove of interest. Our indefatigable and esteemed special reporter at the South Plaza yesterday brought us a sample of French wheat seed...

We have been promised another batch of Paraguayan newspapers, of a more recent date. There are letters in town from Piribebui up to the 9th of May.

The Parana is now falling fast; so the islanders will be able to return to their lovely homes. At Zarate there is a crowd of shipping loading horses for the army.

We find in the Montevideo papers piteous advertisements for rat poisons, from unfortunate sufferers by the demolition of the old market in that city. Our brother editor, who is at present leading a nomadic life in the upper Uruguay provinces...

With the Paraguayan war about to enter on one of its decisive phases, we may draw attention to two most distinguished Paraguayan leaders. In 1865 Gen. Caballero, in some respects the Murat of the Paraguayan army, entered the service, and was a corporal at the end of that year.

Another distinguished leader of the Paraguayan forces is Gen. Montealegre, who is of Scotch descent, his grandfather being a cadet of the famed house of Monteth, and emigrated to the Plata in 1755.

At the graseria of Arzati in the Banda Oriental, they are boiling down sheep at a charge of 3rls.; but there is not a say much of this business at present doing on the other side of the river.

The succour sent to the sufferers by the late inundation of the Pirandis has proved quite inadequate, and the poor people are still in great want. Some means of giving them permanent employment would be much more efficacious than any temporary relief can be.

enough to say that he played to announce that his hearers were delighted, We most sincerely congratulate Madame Uberti on the success of her concert.

The cattle disease in the Banda Oriental is said to be of the epizootic class, and the alarm is great. A report to the Junta represents the disease as of very serious proportions already.
