course a universal expression of annoyance, the tax on the public patience was too much; as a matter of course, the Government came in for the most unmeasured censure... The poor little children from the schools that had come at day-break to secure their places on the platform in the 25 de Mayo, were both starved and roasted...

The President, cheered lustily. Gen. Mitre acknowledged the compliment, and the procession passed on, Hector Varela's coach leading the column... The troops looked well by daylight, but rather fatigued as they marched round the plaza into Calle Victoria...

TO CORRESPONDENTS. No notice can be taken of anonymous communications. Whatever is intended for insertion must be authenticated by the name and address of the writer... The Standard. TUESDAY, JANUARY 4, 1870.

But what seemed most to take Gen. Mitre's fancy, was a peculiar string of wondrously shaped flags which hung across at the corners of Piedad and Reconquista... The column marched straight for the Plaza, at the Government platform there was a mighty change, and the magnates of the land were absent...

Long live the Argentine Republic! Long live the armed defenders of Argentine honor, institutions, and territory. Long live the allied nations. DOMINGO F. SARMIENTO. Buenos Aires, 31st Dec. 1869. EDITOR'S TABLE. The best laid schemes of mice and men are occasionally liable to frustration...

At about a quarter past ten o'clock p.m. Mr. Suarez and other gentlemen who had been down at the beach came up to Calle Florida and spread the report that the troops had landed... At about half-past eleven o'clock p.m. precisely the troops having been got into order on the mole, commenced their march in the following order:—
