This rule establishes the fact that there is great danger in calling a man a rogue unless you prove your assertion. Newspaper warriors have an open field as long as they stick to the truth.

An action for damages may be claimed in the courts of civil law and independent of an action in the criminal courts against the same person.

and also suffer the fines and penalties established by that part of the criminal law relating to the case.

A civil action is yet open even if the offended party should have neglected during his lifetime to bring in a criminal action; nor is the criminal action annulled by the fact of having brought in first a civil action; but, if the civil action has been formally abandoned, or an arrangement made respecting damages, the criminal action is thereby annulled.

An action for damages can be brought in against the successors of the offending party, subject, however, to certain exceptions. The following chapter lays down some important rules:— fathers, and in certain cases, mothers, are responsible for harm done by their children while living under the parental roof; this responsibility ceases when the children are in any permanent employment or under the jurisdiction of another.

Owners of hotels, &c. are responsible for the loss or injury of the effects of lodgers. The same rule is applicable to captains of vessels taking passengers, as also to agents of land transport. ON 'CHANGE. Jan. 31, 1871.

This being the last day of the month there was a little more stir in the Bond market. The liquidation of the month's account, was anticipated, resulted in Bonds being heavily oversold, and of the 340,000 Bonds brought on the B. de la Plata, over 100,000 were borrowed, to be returned to the lenders at the end of February.
