Field of Battle, Lake Naembé. January 26th 1871.

To the Minister of War. Before entering into a relation of the victory just gained permit me to explain some of the antecedents which obliged me to take the field with forces much inferior to the enemy. Onmy return from Buenos Ayres last Christmas I learned that Lopez Jordan was preparing two expeditions at La Paz to invade this Province in diffe rent directions. At the same time the disbandment of various bodies of National Guards that I was assemblthe enemy. on the enemy's flank.

I hoped in the interim to see Arrefrontier and prevent Lopez Jordan from returning to Entre Rios, while the reinforcements I expected from Buenos Ayres, by water, would enable me to meet the main body of the rebels. I was about 2 leagues N. of Goya when the 7th of the Line arrived, with let-

My left wing rested on the Lake, close to which was my ammunition train, guarded by the Mercedes chasseurs.

On the 24th and 25th I sent out frequent guerilla parties to see if I could draw the enemy into a pitched battle. On the morning of the 26th Capt. Solis, having made a detour by Paso Santillan, brought me word that Lopez Jordan had passed the whole of his army over the Corrientes river

5,000 strong, with 9 pieces of cannon and effected a junction with Evaristo Lopez, whose column numbered 2000 more, both amries being now in front of me. Against the enemy's force of Nevertheless I had such confidence in the strategetic position of my army and the spirit of my troops that I was eager to try the chance of battle.

My guerillas failing to entice the enemy I advanced a field-piece at 7 a.m. and fired at a battalion of the rebels stationed in a chacra, the gun was dismounted at the first shot, the gear being defective. I then held a conneil-of-war and it was agreed to push forward in battle array to meet the enemy, who was stationed on a slope two miles distant, near some lagoons and broken ground. Col. Alsina had command of my right, Col. Calvo my left, and I led the centre in Meantime Roca with the 7th of the line pushed up to the palm-grove where the Goya battalion still gallantly held its ground against the enemy's foot and artillery.

I also sent the Escolta to its aid, for the fight raged fiercely. Lopez Jordan in person defended this part of his line, pouring volleys of grape and musketry, at 100 yards distance, into the two valiant assaulting columns. Major Martinez, who commanded the Goya, had his horse killed and got a ball through his leg: the same happened to Major Gutierrez of the 7th batt. without checking for a moment either their men to the charge. This was the turning-point of the fortunes of the day. The cavalry of the enemy's right had rallied and again come up in battle-order, their left was also recoming into line, and if their centre able in 4 days to land at Goya with a held good they would inevitably fall pany of National Guards arrived from Without a moment's delay I sent Major Parana to reinforce me. I started at Lagrana to the left, and advanced in once for Paso Borda on the River person, shouting 'a la bayoneta', to Corrientes, where the forces from the support of Colonel Roca, who now Abogoreta were to meet me, while the dashed forward on the enemy's guns, vanguard of 720 horses and 100 foot, at the same moment that the Goya under Colonel Insaurralde, was to hang batt. fell on their flank like a thunderbolt, and the day was ours: guns, flags &c. all fell into our hands. > THE UNITED STATES CENSUS. It is one of the signs of the youth of a nation, the Daily News says, that, like a growing boy, it should show considerable anxiety about its growth. The people of the United States measure their national growth just twice as often as we do. Though by the Constitution a census has to be taken every ten years, they manage to get one every five years, though the decennial census is of course the one which the Federal Government has to act upon in the distribution of political power.

There is always a fight over the decennial census. Fast as the American cities grow they do not grow fast enough to suit the wishes of their inhabitants, and the first result of every census is to correct the vague and exaggerated statements which grow up during the interval, and which the realseems almost to justify. measuring from 8 to 9 inches each in length. I consider them a most invaluable remedy, and should be tried by all suffering from worms. Signed, JOHN STENSON, KEATING'S
