NOTICE. THE Shipbroking Business, carried on in this City, under the name of "Green, Le Rossignol, and Co.," having expired by Contract, a new Partnership has this day been entered into between Mr. Alfred Le Rossignol and Mr. Lumb Green, who will conduct the Business as hitherto, under the name of "Green, Le Rossignol, and Co."

THE STANDARD. Thursday, October 5, 1871. TRANSDANDINE RAILWAY EXPEDITION. Mr. Robert Crawford and staff are making their final arrangements to start to-morrow or next day on one of the most remarkable expeditions of the age.

THE MARKET. Now that the Villa Maria business has gone up like a rocket and come down like a stick, we suppose the reading public of Buenos Ayres may be treated to something of more bona fide importance to the country than the regeneration of that melancholy hamlet.

the necessary supplies, medicine chest, &c., one of the number being an experienced Irish physician. And here let us observe for the information of Dr. Velez, that the leader of the expedition is a native of the little island which gave birth to Admiral Brown and so many others whose names are written in the history of South America.

Mr. Robert Crawford and staff are making their final arrangements to start to-morrow or next day on one of the most remarkable expeditions of the age. At the same time that the United States Government are preparing to cut the Isthmus of Panamá, and the Peruvians seek to open up communication through the Amazon with the Atlantic, it is not out of place that Buenos Ayres should make an effort to overcome the barrier of the Andes which prevents our intercourse with the West Coast.

The Transandine engineers start for Bragado on Monday, Oct. 2nd, and, counting on the offer of the President of the Republic, we beg you will further the ends of the expedition by the following measures: To recommend the Governors of San Luis and Mendoza to lend any necessary assistance.

As the 3rd article of the contract stipulates that the surveys are to commence at both ends, Chile and Buenos Ayres, we earnestly hope that before long the scientific announcement will be made to the world that the difficulty of crossing the Andes is overcome, and that in a few years this brilliant enterprise will be carried out to a happy completion.
