General Trochu has not reaped any popularity in his letter against Rochefort—the latter applied to the famous "man of the plan," to say a good word, and Trochu replies with a bill of indictment, relating what he has heard not what he knows.

The French nobility are commencing to return to Paris for the season; their "West End" has cruelly suffered by the Communists. A French nobleman generally lets part of his mansion out in furnished apartments; it is one of the sources of his income.

SATURDAY HALF-HOLIDAY.

To the Editors of the STANDARD, Gentlemen,

There is an odd but deep pathos in the appeal made by the British clerk in Rio for some aid in delivering him from those evils of drink and sensuality that are gradually dragging him into the "facilis decessus Avernii."

Should it, however, evoke no response, the edifying spectacle of the employer surrounded by his family, and proceeding in all the odour of self-conscious sanctity to his devotions on the Sabbath morning, whilst the victim to the system of unremitting work he imposes, and whose excesses he is loudest in condemning, is, after the heavy and prolonged sleep of exhaustion, is just commencing a day of dissipation as a welcome relief to the unvarying monotony of everyday life.

The question of having a Saturday half holiday in Buenos Ayres is one which, in response to your invitation, we hope to see thoroughly ventilated and discussed. Meantime it may be observed that the precedent has long existed at home, where the benefits resulting to both employers and employed by the short suspension of toil are universally admitted.

If the English American, and German houses thought fit to substitute the Friday for the Saturday as pay day, the rest of the mercantile community would doubtless agree to the change; so in their hands must be left the decision of a matter in the issue of which to numbers of our fellow townsmen so great an amount of physical and moral well being is involved.

Your obedient servant, L.

EDITOR'S TABLE.

Yesterday H.E. Vice-President Alsiná, accompanied by a large circle of friends, left in the steamer Republica for Rosario, en route to Cordoba. The Vice-President's party was so large that it nearly filled the whole steamer.

From the sister city we have news of that would blister an iron lung—pos another engagement between the contending forces. It appears to have taken place at the Arroyo Grande, where the Government troops, under Aguirre, were surprised by Pinto Barcega, resulting in the total defeat of the former, who, with the brothers Insaurralde, were taken prisoners and shot.

The incapacity of the Oriental Government is something astonishing, defeat follows on defeat so rapidly that we should not be at all surprised to hear one fine morning that Aparicio & Co. had invested Montevideo.

The painting by Sr. Blanes, representing episodes of the late plague, has been purchased by the Oriental Government for the Museum at Montevideo. The price fetched, nearly £2000, is very high for these countries.

The Patagonia meerschmum discovery is causing intense excitement in smoking circles. A couple of thousand 'entrepreneurs' are preparing petitions for concessions, but a slight difficulty has arisen. No one exactly knows in what part of Patagonia the wonderful meerschmum mines are situated.

For the past ten days the countenances of the 'vasura' men have been remarked as looking more than usually 'sicklied o'er with the pale cast of impecuniosity,' and the gin-boxes that ornament hall door steps at early morn have been utterly neglected till a late hour in the day.

We had news of the Transandine Railway expedition yesterday. Mr. Crawford and his party were to leave Chilicoy on Monday last with 44 Europeans and some native peons. At the last moment many of the latter ran away, but Mr. Crawford expected to pick up some more at Bragado.

The fine and commodious steamer Progress, Captain Robert G. Shaw, sails to-day for Victoria. This steamer was built by Mr. John Marshall, of Barracas, and for her size we have not seen her equal on the river for speed and accommodation.

Exporters expect that the value of River Plate produce to be sent to Europe this year will exceed by over three millions of patcons that of the shipments of last year. This figure seems a high one, but we are inclined to think that the prediction will be more than verified.

Letters from Cordoba report the inhabitants brightening up in their estimate of the Exhibition. There were 500 visitors on Sunday last, and on Wednesday also a large crowd was in the building. Great preparations are making to receive the Vice-President.

As some sailors belonging to the guard-ship Moor were coming on shore on Tuesday last in a launch it upset, and the crew would all have perished but for the assistance rendered by the whaleboat Polonus. The 'Moors' were coming on shore to see Hamlet, and fortunately met the Polonus on the way or it would decidedly have been a case of 'not to be' with them.

The Asonia Colony in Corrientes was attacked last week by an Indian horde, two peons being killed. 'By last accounts the settlers were preparing to withdraw from the place.

The fine American steamer Edward Everett is now on the Rosario line. She leaves here for Rosario each Wednesday and Sunday.

The gold speculation in Montevideo has been slightly more active during the past week. The sales both on time and for cash are much larger than in the Bond market of Buenos Ayres.

Advices from Rio Grande announce that next week the saladeristas will commence working there. Cattle are said to be in good condition, and the coming fauna, it is thought, will be a heavy one.
