

ceiving back rejected ones; at night he was a "chillonneur." He was a fair Latin scholar, spoke French purely, and had the history of his country on his lips.

The hospital doctors of Paris have unanimously decided that the new Hotel Dieu, which is not yet finished, and that has cost millions, is constructed in opposition to all hygienic principles, and that several wings of the building must be taken down before the hospital can be used.

France has been described as a hotbed of champagne, of which M. Thiers is the cork.

I wonder at your reading the history of the French Revolution observed a friend to a young lad; the latter replied, "It is a most interesting novel, and all the heroes are quitted."

The capital sentence on Pedro Luro and the announcement that two more murderers had been condemned in the First Instance to death, by Judge Cuetto, had a slightly reassuring effect yesterday evening on the public mind, which is now kept in a constant state of tension by the appalling frequency of the most hideous crimes, and the impunity of the perpetrators.

The "great victory" of General Rivar over the Indians is being "pared down" considerably by the latest accounts from the scene of action.

The 7th Regiment of the Line came back from Chilivoy yesterday, and the Old Guard whose heroic attempts to reach the battle field of War's Cross were, unfortunately, not so successful as they deserved to be, are expected to arrive this morning.

A census just taken shows that there are no less than 38,794 females in Lima, and it is little to be wondered that a cry should be raised for a remedy for this disparity of numbers.

It is not for nothing that the city of Lima is now growing into a city of magnificent proportion and promise.

A joint stock Tobacco Growing Company is about to start the culture of the "weed" on a grand scale in Peru.

colley is a plagiarism—what are faults in the woman of 20, become virtues at 30, and absurdities at 40.

We received from a friend yesterday the following extraordinary account of a still more extraordinary tramway accident.

On Tuesday, what a serious difficulty calls an American occurred in the M. A. 9 car Central Tramway.

The commercial great ones coming to town were heavily charged with "care" and it was as much as the Balvanera Church, in front of the hill, could draw up the horses in front.

When half way up the ascent, an old lady passenger, with more judgment than gallantry, stopped to let the driver in.

There was no room for time, and the coach stopped the instant. There it must have remained all day, but for the sovereign presence of mind of the horses, who caught the reins of a Scotch merchant, and held the infuriated driver by the head until the old woman got in, the driver got out, the horses got on, and the whole crowd was dragged down the hill, to make a fair start again.

Any reasonable person would expect that the first act of the authorities would be to render assistance to the poor sufferer, but no, he was left in the most awful agony for three-quarters of an hour in the mud.

THE ACCIDENT AT THE PLAZA ONCE.

To the Editors of the STANDARD. Gentlemen, At a quarter past 11 a.m., on Monday, at one of the carriages of the Billinghurst Tramway going to the station outside of 11 de Setiembre, and a square beyond same place, through reckless driving (apparently) knocked down an old man, the two wheels of the carriage crossing the unfortunate man.

It must be understood, that three tramway lines run in the Calle Rivadavia, all of which are passing generally at a frightful speed, and occasionally the carriages on the three lines running "a la par," so it is easily to be seen that accidents will occur as the driver has no means of stopping, and the poor persons who unfortunately cross the street at the time.
