tes, for the following letter which he has kindly extracted and transcribed for us from his own private correspondence...

Your journal says, in the leading organ in England, in all matters not only relating to the flourishing and interesting Argentine Republic, but to those of South America generally...

the prosperity of Great Britain as a whole, her political position, her social and moral character, her public opinion, her daily and hourly life...

She is the treasury of the Universe—her wealth is republished in Buenos Ayres, Banda Oriental and Paraguay...

It is a great, a magnificent position doubtless. But at the same time that close observer cannot but remark that great changes are gradually operating on the body politic...

My knowledge of France, the country which so much interests South America, ought indeed to be considered as having passed so many years of my life...

These are the most valuable wools, and will always realize a good market price, being fine in quality and strength of staple...

There are in France, within earshot of him, a hundred good men and true, whose talents, irrespective of any social status, have made their mark...

The Queen sent one of her sons, Prince Arthur, to be present on the occasion—for, inevitably, what from a sort of eclipse it has been suffering...

Prince Arthur is 21 years of age; in stature about 5 ft. 9 in. and of slender figure. When on foot his feet appear to me to turn out awkwardly...

hold about so until the closing of the Buenos Aires. The rate on Antwerp is 5.25 5/8. The telegram from Montevideo gave us as follows...

At after hours to-day, there was nothing in the liquidation, but the rates ruled as follows—For end of May 73 1/2...

There are many who have been engaged in the wool trade during the past year were rather surprised by the rapid rise in the wool market in England...

Then in comparison, taking the value of wool we find it nearly decreased in equal proportion:

Table with columns for Wool, Month ended, and Value. Includes sub-tables for Wool, sheep and lambs, and various countries like Britain, South Africa, Australia, etc.

This in like manner shows that England values the preference to colonial wools, and especially to Australian, which in quality is far superior to any other...

The error you have been led into arose from the Minister of Finance basing his calculations on the guaranteed capital of the company only, which is but a small portion of the capital...
