mess when Paraguay, Paysandu, Chile elsewhere called for aid under passing afflictions. All that is requisite for the realization of the present project is, to procure the names of five or six respectable men who will consent to act as 'padrinos' for launching it.

AN OLD FRIEND. Last week we had news of an old and dear friend, no other than Robinson Crusoe, of whose island Professor Agassiz gives many interesting particulars in an account recently published by him in the Chilean newspapers.

called the National Reformer, edited by the notorious Mr. Broussard. Mr. Monsell's judgment in regard to the infamy of the journal may have been correct, but a censorship of the press was not within his province, and the Times and other papers have brought him to book.

The directors of the City of Buenos Ayres Tramways Company have issued their report to June 30th. The total receipts up to that date amounted to £232,175, and the net profit to £8,039, out of which the directors recommend an interim dividend of 6s. per share on the old shares, and 3s. 8d. on those of the second issue, free of income tax, being at the rate of 12 per cent. per annum on the amounts paid up.

Buenos Ayres concessions are still floating about, but without takers. People here think you have got enough tramways for the present. They would like to see the sanitary measures carried out. Tramways may only be a negative advantage if they are made to pay by carrying fugitives from a pestilence-stricken city.

What in my letter, per Republica, I said of M. Gambetta is more than confirmed. The telegrams published by the Times have been corrected or contradicted. The speeches of M. Gambetta at Grenoble and Annecy are beginning to be rightly estimated in England. He took occasion to announce to pay a high compliment to M. Thiers. His fury was directed and well directed towards the Orléanist sessionists, and he has checked them.

A correspondent of the Telegraph at Berlin announces a change of policy on the part of M. Bismarck on the Eastern question. He is said to be drawing towards Russia as a counterpoise to his enemies Democracy and Ultramontanism. Herr Kendorff, his 'alter ego', is to be appointed to Constantinople.

I give you the facts as the Telegraph gives them, but I quite believe there is something hot brewing in the process of fermentation. It will depend upon the lives of emperors and statesmen, upon the wisdom of republican France, the patience of religious and fanatics, and causes we cannot foresee.

My only consolation, in view of England being engaged in a great war, is in reading the reports of meetings of agricultural laborers and miners' associations from Lanarkshire to Lanarkshire. In the men who there come to the front, and who are as bold, so moderate, and yet so bold, I see the Old England of the seventeenth century. If our upper classes were as our bishops tell us, enervated with a love of wealth and luxury, the old England would be still preserved in the lower orders, brutal as some of them are, and harsh as they are of persons and game keepers.

The Church Congress at Leeds, of which so much is expected, opened today. Blessed are they who expect nothing. Archbishop Manning has formally forbidden women singers to be employed in the Catholic Church Service.

The presidential election in America is beginning to be interesting. By the latest accounts the chances are in favour of Grant.

The late Bishop Goss was buried today at Liverpool. The funeral ceremonies were conducted with great pomp. The flag at the Town Hall was half mast during the day, as a token of respect. In consequence of the great stature of the deceased the coffin was 6 ft. 5 in. long and 2 feet deep.

The ball opened yesterday morning with a startling telegram from our Montevidean Office announcing a fire on board the steamer Saturno, which succeeded, however, in reaching the Mount without any of her passengers being injured. At first people were afraid that another horror like the America catastrophe had occurred; but the coolness, bravery and skill of the Captain of the vessel were in decided contrast to those of the commander of the America, and saved both his passengers and ship, though the latter is slightly injured. All the particulars we are in possession of are published in another column, but the mails this morning will do doubt bring us the fullest details. In consequence of the accident there were no papers or letters from the sister city yesterday, nor was the Araucania's mail received, all being on board the Saturno.

A bilious subscriber, a miserable unwedded Bohemian, who has been trying to get married ever since attaining what he is pleased to call the use of his reason, sends us the following lines. We only insert them to show our lady readers what some bachelors are capable of. Oh! those men!

Sí el Cielo fuerá piadoso, La mar fuerá tibia, Los peces serán buenos, El agua será mansa, No escribirán en cien años La maldad de la mujer.

The writer of the above ought to be tried by a feminine court martial and sentenced to be married.

"Nothing in the papers" yesterday morning, the STANDARD, of course, excepted: They were all as dry as tooth powder or a miller's wig. We make every allowance for the facts that this is a dry season, Congress has risen, the Colon is shut, the "gran mundo" going on, the camp, and various other purgatorial difficulties in the way of editors, but the papers yesterday morning were really too bad, shocking bad, editorial chloroform in fact; not even a big strawberry or double tailed cow mentioned in any of them.

Buenos Ayres was done up. "Up a tree," or on some other unpleasant elevation. This will never do. Wake up gentlemen! Guttenberg was the most active man of his century, and it won't do at all for his followers to go to sleep. He only slept once a week.

A grand banquet will be given next week to Mr. Clarke, of Chile, by the merchants and other leading men of this city, previous to his departure for Bolivia. During his stay here, Mr. C. has won legions of friends.

The following story is a caution to ladies who still wear those odious steel buckles and garters on their "dresses," to hide ugly feet and spoil pretty ones—

A lady on a street car in San Francisco, a lady carelessly raised her dress to the top of one slipper, that its ornament might not be lost to view, or that it might not become loosened. It so happened that the straw in the bed of the car enveloped the Cinderella member, and the buckle alone was visible.

The National Government intends giving the National Guards of Junin a Christmas-box of two months' pay to compensate them for being worried and called out so often lately to repel the Indians. We like gratitude, particularly when it is in fashion. About a year and a half ago "gratitude" was the correct thing to accuse one's bosom friend of.

The aristocratic Volunteer Fire Brigade has ended in smoke, though none of its fashionable members ever saw a fire. The corps has "burst up" finally, and to-morrow or next day will tell the public the reason why. The thing never got beyond the uniforms, swords and feathered cocked-hats of the officers; indeed the whole business at present is a miserable and ludicrous attempt to ape the London and New York (chiefly the latter) Brigades.

We have just received from the States a new machine for printing the addresses of our camp and foreign subscribers, who have increased so much, we are happy to say, within the last six or eight months, that we found our old machines quite inadequate to print the addresses on the wrappers of their papers. The new machine throws off 30,000 an hour, so we are in a position to address the whole River Plate, and have now vacancies for any number of new subscribers. Come one, come all, we have stomach for them. Our printing and consumption we expect will soon be on a par with that of the New York Herald—two tons weekly.

The Standard publishes some highly interesting statistical comparisons between the salaries paid to officials in the United States and in the Argentine Provinces. Our North American cousins have a much milder idea of the value of a Provincial Governor and his Ministers than we have here, and pay them much less. Our colleague declares this to be one of the reasons why the States go ahead while our provinces up to the present have only shown a cow's tail progress. The Governor of California enjoys the biggest salary of any of his peers in the States—7,000 hard dollars annually—while his Ministers get 4,000 each; then comes New York whose Governor gets 4,000, and his Ministers 2,500 each; the other States paying their chief magistrates from 3,000 to 3,400 and Ministers in proportion. Contrast with this economy lavishing 9,600 pats yearly on the Governor of B. Ayres, and 7,200 each on his Ministers, while none of the provincial Governors get less than 2,400 pats yearly and most of them 3,000. The difference is spent in Education in the States, whereas here— "That's the way they money goes, pop goes the weazel!"

In the beginning of March next the Right Rev. Dr. Amoros, Bishop of Ancon, will make a visitation to the principal towns in the south and north of that province.

This was an interesting event, as Mr. G. was the only native who entered, and it was suspected that a snorter would be picked out to compete with the Volunteer. The Rosario horse ran well, but was evidently not up to thirty quadras. Volunteer was held in hand, and for twenty quadras jugged quickly along 170 yards in the rear, when Mr. Dickson's horse, who rode him, gave him a hint, and the Rosario beast, to the surprise of its rider, was left behind fully twenty lengths at the winning post.

EMIGRATION TO THE RIVER PLATE.
No region of the earth's surface offers stronger inducements for the settlement of industrious people with small capitals than the plains of South America, which are drained by the rivers whose united waters form the River Plate, at the mouth of which lie, on opposite sides, the two cities of Buenos Ayres and Montevideo. The vast level area of this country is exceedingly fertile, and offers unusual facilities for internal communication by the large navigable rivers it contains, and the comparative ease with which railways can be formed, several of which are now in full operation, whilst others are being made. Two months ago telegraphic communication was completed from Buenos Ayres to Chili, on the Pacific coast. A telegraph line is being constructed from Montevideo to the capital of Brazil, and another line to Europe, so that very soon the country will be in immediate communication with the world.

To assist in the occupation of part of the vast area of the Argentine Republic, Messrs. Thomson, Bonar & Co., of 57, Old Broad-street, London, in the year 1870, obtained the cession of about 150,000 acres of land in the province of Santa Fe, situated on the west bank of San Javier river, a tributary of the Parana, 90 miles from Santa Fe and 150 from Rosario. The new settlement has been named the name of the Alexandra Colony. In its vicinity are colonies of Americans, English, Spaniards, Italians, and Swiss. A French settlement is located on the southern border of the Alexandra Colony, a settlement of Welshmen lies further south, and beyond that is the new Californian Colony. The deed under which the Provincial Government sanctioned the sale of land exempted the colony from the payment of all local and federal taxation for ten years from the date of the concession, viz., 11th October, 1870, and gives them a free right to the public lands adjacent to the property for the purposes of grazing cattle and cutting timber, so long as these public lands are undisposed of by the Government, while their baggage and implements will be admitted duty free.

Major F. Ignacio Rickard, Government Inspector-General of Mines for the Argentine Republic, has consented to become agent for the reception and establishment of the colony, and in a recent report he states that the settlements already made on the San Javier district have been most successful. He describes the climate as one of the healthiest in the world, showing from observations at Buenos Ayres, that whilst the temperature only fell below 55 degrees for twenty days in the year, it only rose above 85 degrees for fifty-eight days. The soil is described as a rich black vegetable earth, averaging about some eight to ten inches in depth, resting on a substratum of clay, which is excellent for making bricks. Maize, wheat, barley, vegetables of all kinds, tobacco and fruits are cultivated with luxuriance, and timber, game, and fish are all plentiful. There is a bi-weekly communication from Buenos Ayres to Santa Fe, and from there to the new colony a steamer plies once a fortnight, and other means of communication exist.

The new settlement is designed for industrious families, having a small capital, who have saved money by farming pursuits. The cost of 100 acres of land is £10, or 8s. per acre, provided half the purchase money is lodged with the bankers as trustees before sailing, and the second half paid on arrival in the colony. But to meet the case of those whose capital is small only £5 need be paid before sailing, £9 10s. after being in the colony for twelve months, and the remainder in the next four years, the total of this being £50 10s. Mr. Rickard, who has been referred to, recommends that a family of four persons should not be provided with less than from £150 to £200, which would carry them through the first year, when, by the cultivation of a third of the farm, they would have secured sufficient to meet all future claims. We commend to the notice of intending emigrants the pamphlet issued by Messrs. Thomson, Bonar & Co., which contains a great deal of information on the subject— Derby and Chelmsford Reporter.

All French enamelled leather does. As regards enamelled cow hides for seats of carriages, Holm's is superior to French. It is from 10 to 15 per cent cheaper, and though not quite so good as the latter, is carefully treated. The articles required by shoemakers and saddlers are all imported from Buenos Ayres.
At the Exhibition of Cordoba, Martin Amel pil, of Buenos Ayres, obtained the grand prize of 1,000 francs, together with the great gold medal of the Emperor Napoleon III. for the best kind of curried and manufactured leather, and tanned cow and horse hides. His manufactory is one of the principal ones in the Argentine Republic. Founded in 1850, it supplies now all branches of tanning and currying, as well as the dyeing and enamelling process. Its produce is greatly esteemed in Buenos Ayres and throughout the province, on account of the care bestowed in the manufacture. Hatcher and Co., of Buenos Ayres, obtained the gold medal I and the second prize of 500 francs. Of English exhibitors, Messrs. Wadsworth and Co., of Manchester, received a silver medal for the excellence of their sole leather and their leather for machine stirrups.
The news of the fire on board the Saturno was a melancholy surprise to the Bolas this morning; no further details than those supplied by the STANDARD telegram came to hand, but it was satisfactory to know that there were no lives lost. The Saturno leaves Montevideo on Saturday night, and goes up as usual the Uruguay on Sunday.
The wool markets were better attended this morning than of late.
