

author to change the title of his play at once, or an action would be taken for heavy damages; the aggrieved asserts he does not wish to pass for a fool—after Dumars drawing him a room, and that his wife has nothing in common with Madame Claude. Dumars has altered the title to "Rupert," which not being an uncommon name, may necessitate new alterations.

The academy of medicine is to discuss the malady of his ex-Majesty and the manner of his death; Sir Henry Thompson has been invited to send in observations he may, as a corresponding member, deem suitable. Two pamphlets are already published attacking the eminent surgeon's operations.

Ethnography is being successfully taught in the Higher Schools of Paris, and the most satisfactory reports have been made by the inspectors, that since the reform effected in classical instruction, less Greek and Latin, and more of every day science, the students are displaying a more practical and serious turn of mind.

All Fools Day! The date has nothing to say to STANDARD subscribers, readers, or sympathisers. However, we salute all the rest of the world; the anniversary must suit some one. Many people are not half as great fools as they look, whilst others don't look half as great fools as they are.

Moisture, dampness—may, unlimited wet—was the characteristic of yesterday. The "gentle rain" began about midnight on Sunday and lasted till lunch hour yesterday. The deluge this week was nothing to it as far as good steady downpouring went.

The French mail steamer Gironde entered port on Sunday with Lisbon dates to the 9th ult. The news from Europe, except from Spain, is not exciting. In the Peninsula, things have gone to the dogs, and everyone knows where the next halting place will be (it begins with L).

The Tribune says that the new lyric company for the Colon theatre will arrive here on the 6th and make its debut on Easter Sunday in Rigoletto; see advertisement in another column.

A cigarman at the corner of Cuyo and Florida has just fallen in for the first prize in the last Uruguay Lottery. A prodigious piece of luck. He reads the STANDARD probably.

Mr. Smith, of the Mutual Gas Company, is passing quarantine on board the Portena at Ensenada. Letters to his aquatic address will be attended to up to the 13th inst. when he hopes to see "terra firma" and a decent dinner once more.

Swimmers, gamblers, "stags," burst up welters, and shady people in general, will be rejoiced to learn that a Parisian gambler has completed a tour of "Trente et Quarante" whereby he procures exclusive control of railways, theatres, hotels, and gaming tables at Andorra in the Pyrenees.—Biden est mori, vive Andorra!

The Corporation held a meeting yesterday to consider the pecuniary squeeze it is at present undergoing. Frightful despondency was depicted on the Municipal countenances as Mr. Lord Mayor Urribarria told them in terse and telling phrases that "La Municipalidad" was in about as tight a pecuniary place as it well could be, and that he had never before in the course of his life seen a public body so thoroughly on its beam ends.

The Lord Mayor was just coming to the "deeply affected" part of his oration, and was taking out a beautiful cambric handkerchief when our reporter had to leave, and we cannot say how the meeting ended.

A soldier, telling his mother of the horrible fire at the Battle of Chickamauga, was asked why he didn't get behind a tree. "Tree," said he "there wasn't enough for the officers."

A huckster in Stamford, Ky., has the following warning displayed over his stall: "Any man or boy that takes one apfel without leave is a little roge in his heart."

One of the candidates of the Hawaiian legislature is in favour of the repeal of the kanawai kodakamakama, an unreasonable man!

To elope with a lady doubtless presents itself to the romantic young man as a bold and delicious diversion, but it may be doubted whether it is really an unalloyed pleasure.

At the sale of the Kratzenstein chacs, San Martin, over 600 persons attended. The bidding was very animated, and the sale leaves a splendid profit to the owners, Messrs. Huergo and Villar.
