"Mr. Editor.—I am glad to see a letter in a late issue of your Journal about affairs of this railway. It is very discouraging to the Shareholders, especially original ones, who have held on through good and through bad report for nearly twenty years, to find their shares worth less now than when first issued.

I think the Directors are somewhat to blame by keeping the Shareholders and investing public in most profound ignorance of the position of the affairs of the Company. We have only one meeting and one report each year, and the last report seemed drawn on the principle of giving the least information possible.

I think we are entitled to expect that they will make some effort to let the true position and prospects of the line be more fully known.
