THE BELGRANO FETE. Everything conspires to make the national festival of to-day a brilliant success.

The speeches will not be wanting, for the theme is an inspiring one, and some of the first orators in Spanish America will speak the homily of the day.

The Rio Branco cabinet has not rested on its laurels after carrying the Emancipation law, whereby slavery was gradually die out in another generation.

Belgrano was born in Buenos Ayres, the son of an Italian, and was educated in Spain to the profession of a lawyer.

The statue erected in front of the Government-house has been the subject of critical censure, although to our eye it seems a very handsome monument.

Some people affect to give little value to statues, but it was not so in the days of Greece and Rome, which have indelibly written their history in masterpieces of art.

There are half-a-dozen names we could wish to see placed before the eyes of our citizens in their holiday haunts.

It is a happy coincidence that the very day fixed for unveiling General Belgrano's statue will probably bring Governor Acosta news from London.

At any rate we are everyday making some improvement, and that's a healthy sign. However some few persons may lament that to-day is a holiday.

The Emperor closed the Brazilian Chambers on the 16th instant, and congratulated the country on the important measures that have been carried out.

By virtue of this apostolic rescript you will proceed to take possession with our blessing of the said metropolitan see, and exercise the same zeal, fidelity and prudence as have procured for you so good a reputation.

Nevertheless we hereby require you, before taking possession of the Archbishopric, to make a solemn profession of faith and take the oath of fidelity, as in the enclosed forms.

available military forces; exactly as proposed in the Argentine Republic, but which we are as yet unable to carry out.

The reform in the Customs-law has been to protect coasting trade, and that of the Bank-charter is with the object of enabling people in the rural districts to borrow money on the same terms as those who live in the city.

That Brazil will attain fresh importance from the measures passed this session, and from the new cable with Europe, is a matter that may safely be predicted.

There was a severe frost on Monday night, and somewhat the budding trees have suffered.

The talk about Metz being restored to France is purely chimerical. The following extract from a letter from a correspondent is worthy of notice.

While the streets of the city empty themselves daily, more and more on account of the great heat, the grass activity is reigning around it.

In the floating river baths a proprietor has hit upon a novel means of cooling; for every 30 tickets sold he presents as prizes three live ducks.

An unfortunate citizen was married last April to his second wife; he was, according to report, accused of trying to kill her; he wrote a letter to a bosom friend that he committed suicide because his wife beat him every day.

The ex-Queen of Spain is reduced to such a 'frightful state of misery' that her lawyer asserts 'he must sell her diamonds - valued at 12 millions.'

A disconsolate widow, out of memory for her husband, eats only black grapes at dessert.

The Prefect of Ariège has prohibited the local bands from playing the 'liberation waltz,' the 'fusion polka,' and the 'dissolution quadrille.'

For patriotic reasons, the Figaro declines to name the places where the 22 new forts, which are to defend Paris, will be erected.

The fete of the fifteenth August is the most important in the year; it was instituted about the fifth century in honor of the ascent of the Virgin Mary into heaven.

PARIS LETTER. (From our Own Correspondent.) August 19th. The present is a hard time for dogs, not in reference to the heat, but from their stupidity in taking walks abroad without a collar and an address.

In this epoch of prize-awarding, from Universal Exhibitions to colleges and schools, the 'young sweeps' deserve not to be forgotten.

The boys were well washed, and in correct clothing. Knowing their profession beforehand went far in removing all doubts from appearances.

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has awarded its annual premiums also.

The morning journals continue to regularly announce the death of Dr. Nelaton, and the evening papers to deny it.

than 20 years with Anne of Austria. Many do not despair from this, but the Countess de Chabaud might yet have an heir.

The Prefect of Drome has appointed a commission to inquire into the frequency of earthquakes in his prefecture, likely with the view of suppressing them, or ascertaining if the republicans or free thinkers are the disturbing causes.

No river steamer from the sister city yesterday, and the public will have to wait till Friday morning for the publication of the Britannia's mail.
