The committee also thank. America more intimate. The two exed Mr. Crabtree for putting on am tremes of the chain are the snowy peaks of the Cordilleras, pink, very pink with the sunrise or sunset, the lucid volcano, the dark, leaf-hidden river, the peering alligators' heads im picture books of our fathers' horagies : and on the other hand the duller realities of dry-goods and still drier merchants some of us can recall among the reminiscences of our manhood. The true want of this ubiquitous and cosmopolitan generation now growing up is the means of knowing all men and all places as they are, and without the history of the poet and artist, the retouching of the traveller, or the onesided conception of the mere man of business. Any of us who have travelled beyond the limits of our village learn betimes that, whatever be the variety in the natural or artificial surroundings, the distinctions between men are exceedingly slight. The gossip of the Pampa Indian's bivouac is the fac simile of the gossip of a London Club or boudoir. Yet it is, after all, not so much the 'touch of nature' as the shape of the bat which induces us. to recognise our common kindred. The English squire and Highland laird are undistinguishable one from the other. There was, perhaps, a little more ditference between the Saxon hind and the bare-legged ruffian who were their respective progenitors. It will be the grand mission of the South American Club to assimilate costumes and customs, and prepare the way for the millennium which mechanical science has initiated. Even now a trip to South America need not be announced with tearful countenances or preceded by

This was a great day for news on the Bolss The STANDARD telegram of the 15th announcing things a little better in London counteracted to a certain extent the effect of some rumour about the bank rate being 10 per cent; in fact it apat on the 13th there was a panic on the London Stock Exchange, but the bankers pulled through and on the 14th things were better. The better to explain the real state of the London money market we give the following extracts " Saturday Evening.

"There was a general impre-sion this morning

wou dtake place, and in consequence the Stock

The rush of sellers soon brought on a panic which lasted for some time, all kinds of securities being recklessly thrown away. When it was found that the Bank Directors had done nothing a rally occurred, and there was some active buying, perticularly of home railways. Ultima ely a slight relapse followed, and at the close Il stocks, with the exception of Fngli h Railways, showed a fall compared with yesterday. the markets, it is needless to say, are in a most sensitive state, and a very slight cause would produce another panic, but it will probably be native, made the running in fine style found that a 10 per cent rate of discount having been anticipated will not now of itself have much effect. more obvious cause of uneasiness has supervened in the knowledge that the stringency of money imposes a heavy strain on many mer centile houses, and some of the rumours afloa to-day have no doubt a basis of fact. Everything depends upon the duration of the pressure, and while it lasts constant sales, both of produce and securities, must be looked for, to an extent which will prevent any lasting rally in the market. Although the Bank made no movement to-day, everything conc rred to 81 ow that only the immediate arrival of some wholly unforescen source of relief can avert a 10 per cent rate. There was considerable withdrawal of gold, partly for new York, and while there was no pressure for money, the full bank minimum was invariably exacted, moreover, the chances that capital will be attracted hither from the Continent are lessened by the simultaneous rise in the value of money abroad. The Bank of Belgium raised its rate yesterday, and the Bank of Franco followed to-day. As it is necessary for our purposes that bullion should come here pomptly, the significance of such changes need hardly be pointed out. On the favourable side is the large purchase of silver from the German Government on United States account, which may, ; erhaps, lessen the American demands for go d. Under any circumstances it is to be hoped that irrational panic wi'l as much as possible be discouraged. There is no reason to think that serious harm has been done as yet, and the position of the mercantile classes generally, notwithstanding the rumours so, indus triously spread, is believed to be still thoroughly sound.". "The English Funds were dull, at a further slight decline. Consols recoded 1-16, to 912-92 for money, and 92 5-16, 7-16 for December. " For ign stocks showed increased depression
