LONDON LETTER.

(From our Own Correspondent.)

Christmas Day, 1873. There was a time when work-loving Englishmen used to ridicule the church holidays in Buenos Ayres. What would our papers have said to Christmas holidays all but general in London from this day (Thursday) to Monday next; the same thing to be repeated more or less in the following week ? Such, however, is the fact, and as the Times of this morning says very properly, the days are gone bye when people toiled and moiled for forty years that they might enjoy a luxurious idleness in old age, just when they could not en joy it. It will be said that if they cannot enjoy it themselves their families can when they depart. That is a social-economic error. Our slums, our Bohemias, casinos, hells, are strewn with the spoilt spawn of rich men. It we all work the task for each wil be so much less.. Every grand Seigneur we keep for the honour of the house and nation costs us poor wretches on an average half an hour's work daily. As for the grand ladies you have, I dare say, counted their cost before You favoured few are at this mo

Let us see. There is Tichborne. He is not done with. The Observer says-"It the old proverb, 'perito credenfact we mentioned on the day Minister dum in sua arte,' is to go for anything Dominguez visited Point Lara, where and if lawyers are to be believed upon points of law, the end of the Tichborne discharging her cargo with the greatest case is as far off as ever. If the defenease, although on our return to Buenos dant is acquitted, his acquittal will be, according to Dr. Kenealy, but the first step towards a new action of ejectment for the recovery of his estates. Should the jury disagree, the new action of ejectment will be equally possible, and may also be complicated by a new trial for perjury. Lastly, should the defeudant be convicted, it will, according to the opinion of very competent law gers, be open to him to move for a new Ensenada and Punta Lara, as places trial, upon the ground that the frequent adjournments which have taken place-and more especially the adjournment which was allowed to enable safety; depth of water you have found the Crown to produce rebutting eviat low, mean, and full, and any other dence-have tatally vitiated the prointormation you may think proper, ceedings. The point is, beyond doubt, all of which will be very acceptable open to argument. It is clear, on the one hand, that it has always hitherto been held that nothing short of an absolute physical necessity could justify an adjournment in a criminal case. On the other hand, it is urged that a criminal trial has never yet been known to last for 145 days, and that should a writ of error be brought the practice a writ of error lies. "The United States Economist, i. its issue of the 6th, refers in cheerful terms to an extensive revival of trade in the manufacturing districts chiefly, though not entirely, amongst the textile industries; but the revival, it says, was " atttended for the most part by a reduction of wages of from 10 to 20 per cent. To this reduction, however, there are some exceptions, the extensive Wamsutta and New York mills, and some other having increased their operations at former rates of wages. A reduction of wages was inevitable, as goods could not be replaced at the prices at which they are now sa cable, at the former cost of production."
