

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS

WONDERFUL CURES OF CONSUMPTION.—The late dissections performed in the hospital of Paris, prove beyond doubt that the tubercles of the lungs can be permanently healed, thereby curing consumption. The cases in point, were those of persons who had, in years gone by, suffered from lung diseases, but who recovered and died afterward from other causes. The official reports read thus:—“That said persons were cured, by the constant use of pure cod liver oil.” The great difficulty seems to be to obtain the genuine article. Therefore it is of paramount importance that the patient should be sure of using the genuine and Kemp Cod Liver Oil, and none other, since there are numerous imitations sold to the public, entirely worthless. “The best way to take the Oil is to mix one spoonful of it, with two of the Lecetol of Anzambilla.”

THE PEREZ GOMAR MISSION. FAILURE AND RETIREMENT.

When Dr. Perez Gomar went to England he solicited permission to present his letters to the Queen, but the British Government felt that after so many English subjects had been robbed and murdered in Banda Oriental the request could not be acceded to.

My Lord, As Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary of the Republic of Uruguay I have the honor to inform Your Excellency that a “pressing urgency” calls me from England to fulfil duties elsewhere.

With respect to the renewal of Diplomatic relations with Uruguay, H.M. Government will adhere to the terms of the letter which I had the honor to address to you on the 30th of Dec.

Agust 6th. The opening of the telegraph line yesterday was the event of the day. Men of importance of all nationalities were looking round for Mr. Electrical Oldham and Dr. Bottini, who has, with his knowledge of telegraphing, enabled us to learn news within the short space of one hour and a half.

On the 19th a meeting was held to establish a Rural Society at Colonia, D. Manuel Perez in the chair: a committee was duly formed.

On the 21st the estimable Mr. Menevicar took me to Mme. Montero’s municipal female school; 80 girls admirably trained and instructed.

On the 22nd we made an excursion to Lake Potos, but, bless my heart, what roads! The like have never before been seen in any country, and until a bridge is put over the Caballada it will be difficult to cross.

It is a pity the authorities do not prevent the vandals who are now carting away and destroying the islands of San Gabriel, Hornos and Dos Hermanas, which they sought from Government for a dozen sealskins and a Vicuña poucho.

The Calibidos of Colina and Higuieritas are falling to the ground, for want of a few dollars to make repairs.

Yesterday morning a select party consisting of Mr and Mrs Smithers, Mr and Mrs Theobald, Mr Weldon, Mr Henry Fynn, Mr Hille, Mr Petty and others whose names I could not obtain started by the first train on a visit to the Santa Lucia Water Works; on their arrival at Santa Lucia, carriages were waiting to take the party to their destination.

The Legislature having gone into recess I set out for Colonia to open the new Free Library. We had a pleasant run by rail to Santa Lucia, but our bones were dislocated in the Diligence from that place to San Jose. Next morning (17th) having taken a private carriage to make the journey to Rosario Oriental I found the roads truly awful, the creeks much swollen, and although my horses were excellent I got no farther than Nueva Helvetia.

This is a thriving Swiss Colony of 200 industrious families, who have prospered exceedingly. It afforded me infinite pleasure to go over the colony with Señor Luque; the school contains 40 neatly dressed Swiss boys, and as many girls; the school-house is a pretty Swiss cottage, adjoining the Catholic chapel, in which are some oil-paintings done by the colonists in their leisure hours. The utmost security and order are enjoyed by the settlers, who have neither police, prisons, nor judges.

Besides the 200 families here there is another Swiss settlement of 60 families at Cufre, not far off.

Next day (18th) I proceeded to La Paz, a village in the midst of the superb farm-houses of the Waldenses or Piedmontese colony. The school is admirably kept by Don Ruperto Carreras, who has not received his salary for the last 7 months, as this is a Government school. The children say their lessons 3 days a week in French, the other 3 in Spanish.

The same night I reached Colonia, having telegraphed from the colony of La Paz, and many leading citizens of Colonia kindly came out to meet me. As it was our anniversary of Independence the Cura sang a Te Deum in the church, after which the College and Free Library were duly inaugurated.

The Colegio is a magnificent building just erected by D. Diaz Arnesto; it is under the direction of D. José Morera. There were 600 ladies and gentlemen at the inauguration, and they say the institution is well managed.

The Free Library of Colonia was got up by subscriptions, to the amount of 1,000 hard dollars. The hall was given free by the authorities, and is now nicely furnished: it is 45 feet in length; and counts 2,000 volumes on the shelves. The inauguratory speeches by Baudinelli, Obarrio, Morelli, Irazusta, &c, were very eloquent. Some verses were recited by little girls from Mme. Montero’s school.

It is worthy of notice that Payсандú has also opened a Free Library, which shows the march of progress.

On the 19th a meeting was held to establish a Rural Society at Colonia, D. Manuel Perez in the chair: a committee was duly formed.

FINAL PROPOSALS.

1st. The Oriental Government will pay British subjects for cattle &c. carried off by the authorities. 2nd. British subjects on presenting vouchers as to the amount will receive the price either in money or public funds. 3rd. Those who have no written vouchers will have to apply for redress before the Tribunals of the Republic. 4th. The Oriental Government will order the arrest of those who are said to have murdered English subjects. 5th. The British Government will disapprove of Mr MacDonnell’s offensive notes and attempted intervention. 6th. Diplomatic relations will be renewed, Great Britain sending a Public Minister to the Oriental Government.

Accept &c. G. Perez Gomar.

Foreign Office, Feb. 6th, 1873. Sir, I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your two notes of the 14th and 19th ultimo. In answer to the latter of these notes I can only express my regret that, having informed you of my willingness to receive you upon my return to town you should have found it necessary to leave London at the time of my arrival.

With regard to the propositions contained in your note of the 14th ult., I have to state to you that they appear to H.M.’s Government to amount to this: that in consideration of the Uruguayan Government engaging to conform themselves to those principles of justice which H.M.’s Government have a right to expect from every civilized State, and which the Uruguayan Government may or may not have the power or the will to carry out, H.M.’s Government should at once disavow the conduct of their Rep. Mr. Macdonell, and resume diplomatic relations with Uruguay. I need hardly point out you, Sir, that such conditions from such a point of view could not for one moment be entertained.

H.M.’s Government regret extremely that the Uruguayan Government should have thought that they had discovered in Mr. Macdonell’s communication anything offensive in tone, or that implied a right unduly to interfere in the internal affairs of Uruguay. They are convinced that such an opinion can have arisen only from a misconception of his notes. They are, as I have already informed you, perfectly satisfied with the manner in which he executed his instructions, and they have approved his conduct throughout the very trying circumstances in which he found himself placed.

I have &c. (Signed) Granville. Señor Gomar.

TELEGRAPH INAUGURATION IN MONTEVIDEO. Agust 6th.

The opening of the telegraph line yesterday was the event of the day. Men of importance of all nationalities were looking round for Mr. Electrical Oldham and Dr. Bottini, who has, with his knowledge of telegraphing, enabled us to learn news within the short space of one hour and a half.

Your Excellency had the courtesy to say I might wait on you after your return to town, but as that will not be for a long time according to what your secretary tells me, I have to regret leaving England without once being favored with a personal interview.

Three months ago I asked Your Excellency to present me as Uruguayan Minister Plenipotentiary, to H.M. the Queen. Other Ministers have come and gone in the interval, but you have never notified me whether I was to be presented or not. This is contrary to diplomatic usage and international law.

Even the envoy of an enemy is received, and if grave motives prevent it, at least they tell him so, and explain the reasons. Phillimore lays down in Vol. VI., Cap. 3, para. 133 and 134 as follows:—

“The sound opinion appears to be that a State is bound to give audience to an ambassador, and except under most extraordinary circumstances, to receive him for that purpose within its territories and courts.”

“It is in the discretion of the receiving State to refuse the reception of a certain diplomatic agent but it is not altogether arbitrary discretion.” Some reason must be alleged “for the refusal.”

President Ellauri commenced his speech by saying that the inauguration of the line combining us so closely with Europe and other parts of the world, was something that had taken him by surprise, and spoke in warm manner of his good feeling towards all the foreign powers.

He spoke feelingly in the highest sense of the word, and was followed by the Brazilian Minister, who said that the inauguration of a telegraph that brought Brazil in closer connection with the Government represented was to him of the highest importance, and he trusted that it would lead to strengthening the fraternal tie that existed between the two nations.

Doctor Albistur, a man of capacity whom I have not as yet been able to personally acquaint with, made an eloquent and a most classical speech, in which Mr. Oldham’s and Dr. Bottini’s names were very prominently
