We have always said that Brazil will show the world a 200-year-old, and we repeat it.

The financial question is still the great one in the sister city, and many think it must end in a National Bank. Dr. Sagastume admits that he has a project in his head of what he styles a "Buen Mixto," but he has not yet told the public what his financial hybrid is like.

The death of this well known and much esteemed gentleman will cause widespread and sincere regret in the commercial world. As secretary to the Pacific Steam Navigation Company, by his kindly disposition he endeared himself to all who came within his influence.

Advices from Rio announce the suicide of Captain Hicks, of the English brigantine Mary Frost, which sailed from this port on 29th October. The unfortunate captain threw himself overboard during the voyage to Rio, and his quartermaster took the vessel safely into that port.

THE BOAT CLUB REGATTA. To the Editors of the STANDARD, Gentlemen, The attention of your readers has been called to the advertisement embodying the programme which the Boat Club purpose carrying out for the amusement of the British community on the 11th of Dec. and perhaps you will allow me to make a few remarks concerning the details decided upon by the committee at the meeting held in the Gymnasium on Tuesday evening. I say advisedly by the committee since the meeting alluded to excluded none of the characteristics of a General Meeting, fair open discussion being suppressed and none of the committee's resolutions carried or rendered valid by general voting.

Some dissatisfaction has been expressed in the manner in which the crews have been selected, and I think that when your readers have considered the facts they will allow it is well founded. The Committee have arrogated to themselves the right to choose the "strokes" in all the open races. In this they may be acting wisely and in accordance with the custom followed in England, but in leaving the said "strokes" individually to select their crews from the remaining entries in the open races (there not being sufficient boats to accommodate all the non-stroke men) they act unfairly to the non-stroke men and less efficient members. For instance, it now happens that some of the best rowers have obtained the privilege of taking part in three of the contests, whilst other members who have entered, paid the fees, and expressed a desire to compete in one or all of them are excluded altogether.

As regards the matches, the principle laid down by the Committee might be admirable, but in the open races the selection should have been made by drawing lots, thus affording an equal chance to all.

I imagine it is the wish of the Committee of this popular club to afford equal rights to all its members, be they efficient in the art of rowing or not, but they have from want of foresight fallen short of their good intentions, and caused dissatisfaction—a result much to be deplored. Had the leading performers in the matches "Committee Club" and "Married & Single" or some of them, had the generosity to stand out of the Open Fours and take the "Open Pairs," or take their chance by lot, this unpleasant state of affairs would have been avoided, and every new aspirant to aquatic fame would have been given the chance of taking active part in a Regatta, which is supposed to be organized for the amusement of all the members and their friends.

In conclusion, I will simply add that it is generally believed that one of the crews in the match "Married & Single" was made up and entered into before the entries closed, although the public advertisement announced that the selection of the crews would not be made until the so-called General Meeting of Tuesday night.

I remain, Gentlemen, Your obedient servant, "ALEX."
