THE FOOTBALL ASSOCIATION CHALLENGE CUP

We learn from the "Field" that in the second round of the competition played on January 30, several of the results obtained were contrary to general expectation. The defeat of the cupholders, Blackburn Rovers, by West Bromwich Albion, was one of the surprises, but this was not so great a reversal of form as was the defeat of Burnley by Stoke. The closeness of the match between Preston North End and Middlesborough was another case for wonderment; but in these instances, it may be said, that the result was influenced by the fact that the loser in the first two matches and the winner of the other each has one of its best men on the list of players who have been suspended. Saturday's cup matches increased this list, as Gemmell and Richardson of Sheffield Wednesday, ordered off the field for rough play, were suspended by the council of the association for one week. Accrington and Sunderland did not play off their tie, in consequence of the ground's condition.

The following were the results of the round:
Stoke beat Burnley at Burnley, 3-1;
West Bromwich Albion beat Blackburn Rovers (holders) at West Bromwich, 3-1.
Wolverhampton Wanderers beat Sheffield United at Wolverhampton, 3-1.
Preston North End beat Middlesborough at Middlesborough, 3-0.
Aston Villa beat Darwen at Birmingham, 2-0.
Sheffield Wednesday beat Small Heath at Sheffield, 2-0
Notts Forest beat Sunderland Albion at Sunderland, 1-0

POLO

A meeting was held in these offices on Friday, 4th inst., for the purpose of electing a secretary and committee, and for drawing up rules for the Polo Association of the River Plate. A fair number of polo men were present, and the necessary amount of business was done to start the association.

It was decided that the committee should consist of representatives of the different clubs, each club electing one of their members to act on it. Three members of the committee, with the secretary, to form a quorum.

Mr Frank J. Balfour, 559 Piedad, Buenos Aires, was elected secretary of the Association.

It was unanimously decided that the Hurlingham Club's laws of polo should be the rules under which every club should play the game, the following alterations in these rules being agreed upon:

Rule 6 to read: "The duration of games in matches shall be one hour and fifteen minutes, an interval of five minutes between each quarter of play being deducted from the above."

Rule 7. In cup competitions, the game, in case of a tie, must be played on, after five minutes interval, and if necessary in quarters as in preceding rule, till one side obtains a goal.

Rule 9. For "Manager" substitute "Umpire."

Rule 17. Ends shall be changed after every goal, or if no goal have been obtained after every quarter.

Rule 20. For "Manager" substitute "Referee."

The following Bye-Laws for Tournaments were drawn up, and it was decided to send a copy of them to the secretary of every club for approval before they be passed by the committee.

BYE-LAWS FOR TOURNAMENTS

1. Due notice shall be given to the secretary of any tournament proposed to be held by a club affiliated to the Association, and all tournaments are to be held under the rules of the Polo Association of the River Plate.

2. Entries for tournaments are to be made to the secretary, and the captain of each team, if possible, to name his four players at time of entry, and the same four players must play throughout the tournament; but in the event of one of the players being prevented from playing from some bona-fide good reason, the committee may if they think fit allow another man to be nominated in his place, such substitute must not, however, be taken from the players selected in any other team.

3. Any player playing for his club in a tournament must be a bona-fide playing member of such club.

4. Three teams must compete in a tournament or the cup or prize need not be given.

5. In tournaments for cups or prizes the ponies playing must be the bona-fide property of the club, or of a member of the club contending.

6. No spurs with rowels allowed except by special permission of the committee.

7. In the event of any player having a fall, or if, in the opinion of the umpire, any player shall be hurt in any way to prevent his playing, the umpire shall in that case stop the game and allow time for the dismounted man to mount, or the injured man to be replaced.

On play being recommenced, the ball shall be thrown in, where it was when the accident occurred.

8. In case of a tie between two teams it must be played off the same day till one side obtain a goal. In case of a final tie it shall be left to the option of the contending teams whether they play it off or divide.

BUENOS AIRES AND ROSARIO RAILWAY v. SANTIAGO DEL ESTERO

A match was played at La Banda on Feb. 28 between teams representing the Northern Section of the Buenos Aires and Rosario Railway and Santiago del Estero Polo Club.

Teams:

B. A. and R. Ry.	Santiago del Estero
1. D. Monck	1. G. Batt
2. Newman Smith	2. Waring Smyth
3. M. Finlayson	3. P. W. Watts
Follet Holt (back)	G. Pearson (back)

The first quarter was fairly fast, the most notable event in it being a good run down the side of the ground by Holt, from which Monck centred well to Smith, who scored the first goal for the Railway, Watts hitting a goal for Santiago left the score one goal all.

The Railway men, showing superior combination in the second quarter, penned in their adversaries, and as Holt and Smith both scored, the score at the end of the period stood at three to one.

Santiago warmed up after this, and playing up harder the game became fast and even, neither side scoring during the third quarter, but the fourth and fifth quarters were very prolific of goals. Holt scored three goals for the Railway, and Smith and Finlayson once, whilst for Santiago points were notched by Watts (2) and Batt. A good run of Finlayson's ending in a goal was worthy of note. Score—Railway 8 goals, Santiago 4.

The sixth and last quarter was the best and fastest in the game; Holt scored twice more for the Railway men, who were therefore left winners by 10 goals to 4.

The winners showed much the better combination, each member of the team doing his proper share of the work. For Santiago, Watts was always certain on the ball, and Pearson played a fairly steady game at back. Waring Smyth when well mounted worked hard for his side. It is only fair to state that two members of the Santiago team were mounted on strange ponies.

A polo match will shortly be played between the Railway and the newly-formed Gramilla Club.

RACING

PALERMO—MARCH 6

A very small number of people patronised the opening meeting of the Jockey Club at Palermo last Sunday, a threatening-looking morning being responsible for the absence of many who feared a wet return home like that from Belgrano a fortnight before. There was consequently little animation in the proceedings, and the boards showed that the number of tickets taken on the races was very much below the average.

The opening event was the Premio Inauguracion, a race of 1100 metres, which was won by Noel, after having made the whole of the running. The top weight, Liniers, a big muscular son of Philamon, went to the post but was sent back and not allowed to run for not fulfilling the conditions of the race, viz., for any horse 'perdedor,' and as Liniers had never run here he was not considered to be a 'perdedor.' This was, perhaps, all in order, but it would have been better to have worded the conditions "for any horse that has run but never won," instead of simply using the word 'perdedor,' so as to have avoided mistakes.

Midi was made a warm favourite for the second event, and until the last 400 metres he gave his backers great hopes, but the second favourite, Cabula, proved too much for him in the race home, and won comfortably by a couple of lengths. The great event of the day should have been the Premio Apertura, the first of the Jockey Club's classic fixtures, but out of eighteen coloured on the card only three faced the starter. Destructor was installed favourite, and he repeated his performance at Belgrano, but this time not so easily, as when Diaz made his final rush on Mudo, and steadily drew up passing the stands so that at the finish it was hard to say if he had won or not, there was a small amount of excitement, but Destructor's backers breathed again when the numbers went up, the verdict being "won by a head." Athos won the Premio Rivalidad easily from Sombra, and Satanella proved too good for the rest of her field in the Premio Competencia. The start for the Premio Recompensa, 1760 metres, took place in front of the stands, and as there was a fairly large field, which gave the starter some trouble to get away, the crowd had a capital ten minutes' amusement which it made the best of. Myosotis, who had worked herself into a lather long before the flag was dropped, jumped off in front, got the rails and stayed in front there the whole journey. The last race was supposed to be a good thing for The McGowan or Cautivo, but one of the least backed horses in the race, Jefferson, beat them both and paid the thumping dividend of $188.

Details: PREMIO INAUGURACION, a handicap for any horse that has never won a race; $1500 to the 1st, $500 to the 2nd; 1100 metres:

Table listing race results for Premio Inauguracion, including names like Stud La Noria's ch c Noel, Mignonne, and Mr Manton's Valiente.

Table listing race results for Premio Velocidad, including names like Ecurie Titan's ch h Cabula, Aurioline, and Sr Emilio Casal's Midi.

Midi showed in front immediately after the start, which was a wretched one, and led round the turn into the straight where he was beaten, and Cabula coming away won easily by two lengths; three lengths between second and third.

Tickets—Cabula 872 win and 1132 place, Midi 1530 and 1222, Ceres 481 and 705, Lugano 398 and 449, Adjutant 172 and 201, Balmoral 303 and 341, Voyageur 397 and 377, Princesa 126 and 183.

Dividends—Cabula $8.83 win and $3.46 place, Ceres $3.58 place.

PREMIO APERTURA, for three-year-olds; weight 54 kilos; winners of $3000 or less 2 kilos extra, of over $3000 but not more than $10,000 5 kilos, of more than $10,000 8 kilos; $2500 to the 1st, $500 to the 2nd; 2500 metres:

Table listing race results for Premio Apertura, including names like Stud Las Ortigas' b c Destructor, Dalriada, and Sr. F. C. Malbran's Mudo.

Mudo and Destructor ran together until coming round the last bend, when Destructor drew out and held a good lead coming into the straight; at the paddock both Demos and Mudo joined the leader, the former being soon done with, and a good race home resulted in the Ortigas colt gaining the verdict by a head; Demos two lengths behind Mudo.

Tickets—Destructor 4235 win, Mudo 1499, Demos 703.

Dividend—Destructor $2.73.

PREMIO RIVALIDAD, a limited handicap; weights between 62 and 50 kilos; $2500 to the 1st, $500 to the 2nd; 2200 metres:

Table listing race results for Premio Rivalidad, including names like Stud Entre Rios' ch h Athos, and Ecurie Bolivar's Sombra.

San Martin led to the 1000 metre post, where Athos took up the running with Gettatore; entering the straight the latter was beaten, and Sombra took second place, but could not get on terms with Athos, who won a capital race by a length; two lengths between second and third.

Tickets—Athos 2117 win, Sombra 1317, San Martin 1379, Gettatore 2498.

Dividend—Athos $6.21.

PREMIO COMPETENCIA, a handicap for three-year-olds; $2000 to the 1st, 500 to the 2nd; 1600 metres.

Table listing race results for Premio Competencia, including names like Stud Entre Rios' b f Satanella, and Stud La Noria's Noel.

For the first eight hundred metres the field ran close together, but rounding the bend Satanella assumed the lead, which she maintained to the finish, winning easily from Noel by a length, two lengths between second and third.

Tickets: Satanella 1844 win and 1233 place, Lumineux 384 and 447, Santa Lucia 1001 and 716, Clarin 1221 and 824, Pillo 262 and 268, Noel 343 and 548.

Dividends: Satanella $1.93 win 3.50 place, Noel 5.37 place.

PREMIO RECOMPENSA, a handicap for any horse; $2000 to the 1st, 500 to the 2nd; 1750 metres.

Table listing race results for Premio Recompensa, including names like Ecurie Talisman's b m Myosotis, Miss Jamrach, and Ecurie Montevideo's Nelly.

After considerable delay the lot were sent away to a fairly good start, Myosotis at once taking the lead, which she held the whole way; coming into the straight Diaz came through his horses, which he had evidently not been able to do before, and drawing up to Myosotis and apparently gaining on her, appeared from the stand to have made a dead-heat of it, but the Talisman mare gained the verdict by a head, with Carpintero a length and a-half behind Nelly.

Tickets: Myosotis, 663 win and 866 place, Nelly 1258 and 1507, Carpintero 460 and 560, Puygaveau 146 and 267, Araucaria 699 and 1068, Fergus 160 and 228, Falucho 354 and 636, Lumen 860 and 975, Golondrina 119 and 280, Chiquito 32 and 76.

Dividends: Myosotis $12.89 win and 5.30 place, Nelly 4.21 place, Carpintero 3.27 place.

PREMIO EQUIDAD; for any horse that, having run in 1891, has not won more than $5000 up to time of starting; three-year-olds 52 kilos; four or more 84 kilos; winners of one race to carry 3 kilos, and of two or more 5 kilos; $1500 to the 1st, 500 to the 2nd; 1400 metres.

Table listing race results for Premio Equidad, including names like Stud Jefferson's b h Jefferson, Sr. E. Casal's Junio, and Sr. J. M. Villanueva's Cautivo.

THREE MEN IN A BOAT, TO SAY NOTHING OF TWO DOGS

A SHOOTING EXPEDITION

We sat talking late that night discussing our meditated campaign against the fish with the Seine net Huc was to bring with him. That there were thousands of fish we knew, as we could see them rising every morning and evening, and in the middle of the day, when the sun was hot, we could count them by the dozen as they lay basking—and fine big fellows some of them were. With the net in any narrow channels, like the one we were now on, we could simply catch thousands, in fact all there were. But what were we to do with them when we had caught them? that was the question I asked Anton. "Not the least trouble about that," he replied, "All the small ones less than two pounds we will throw back again, and anything larger than that we can salt and dry. Several of the storekeepers in Frayle Muerto have asked me to salt fish for them, and they will buy as many as I choose to take." Well, this was quite a new idea to me, and if they would only pay a reasonable price for them, I had not the least objection to making a few dollars in that manner. We could pay for the boat and stores, &c., and have our fun for nothing and something over into the bargain. If those confounded Indians would only leave us alone we should be all right, and very likely, in the end, make a good thing out of our trip.

Next day, as we were expecting Huc, we determined not to go far away from our camp, so we began to look round for something to kill. Ducks there were plenty of on the laguna, and swans too for that matter, but we wanted something bigger, and our eyes fell lovingly upon a troupe of ostriches that were feeding some distance away. Anton proposed to stalk them, so I told him to do so by all means, and off he went and I lay down on the top of the hill to watch the sport. He presented a curious sight as he went creeping along on all fours through the grass. He had discarded his black hat some days before and made himself a round one without any brim to it out of a grey fox skin, and this on the top of his very short grey hair, made his head look like a huge grey ball. While he was stalking the ostriches I lay still, keeping "cave," as we used to say at school, and every now and then had a good look round. Presently, when Anton was almost within range, I saw to my great delight three wild donkeys coming down quietly to drink on the opposite side of the laguna. Here was a piece of luck, and without losing a moment I slipped down from my lookout and began a stalk on my own hook. By going round the edge of the laguna through the canes, I saw I could get within thirty yards of them without being seen, and at that distance I was sure to bag one. Now my motive for trying to kill one of these beasts was not purely innate "cussedness," but that we actually wanted part of his hide. Anton had used up every bit of string we had to make the four bag nets for catching nutrias, and we were always wanting some for something or other, and a donkey's hide cut into long, thin thongs, like bootlaces, would be just the thing we wanted; besides, the flesh of a good, fat donkey is delicious. When I got to the edge of the canes on the bank of the river and was able to look out, I saw one donkey was having a quiet roll on the sand, and the other two were feeding up towards where I lay hid. In a few moments they were directly opposite me on the very edge of the bank, and as the river here was only fifteen yards across, they could not have been more than twenty from me: so taking aim at the nearest (there was no choice among them, as they were all equally fat), I fired. Down he went, as dead as a herring. The others, on hearing the shot, scampered off a few yards and then turned and stood staring at their dead companion and offering a splendid shot, but I did not shoot again; I had got what I wanted, and left the others, hoping they might come in useful at some future date.

I now made the best of my way back to where I had left Anton, and saw him some way off, but walking towards me; when he joined me he explained that he had fired at the ostriches and missed and had then gone after some deer, but could not get within range. I then told him I had shot a donkey. It did my heart good to see him laugh. "Whose was it?" he asked, as soon as he could speak. I told him it was a wild one. "What did you shoot it for?" was his next question. I told him that I had shot it because I wanted its hide and also to eat it. This seemed to be the climax. He put his rifle down and then lay down himself and laughed. Oh! how he laughed. I thought he was going to have a fit, so I told him to get up and not make a fool of himself. "Pardon, Don Arturo, pardon," he cried, "last night you made grimaces at me for eating an otter, and now you propose eating a donkey."

We rode off as soon as I could get him quieted a bit, to where the donkey lay, and skinned one side, and took the other side whole, skin and all, to roast.

That evening, just about sunset, Huc arrived. He had done very well with the skins, and after buying the stores, ammunition, &c., that we had told him to purchase, he had a surplus of sixty-four dollars, which would more than pay for the first lot of things that I had provided, and only leave the boat to be paid for. This was not bad, and really seemed as though it were possible for three men to make a living out of what they could shoot. The only doubt in our minds was whether the market would hold out. Huc brought us word that the people in Frayle Muerto had got it into their heads that we must have been caught by the Indians, as they were reported to be all along the bank of the Saladillo in great numbers and had killed a number of men and carried off many women and children, to say nothing of several thousand head of cattle. He was immensely amused at our adventure with the saladillo men, and laughed heartily when he saw my piece of donkey roasting on the fire, though when it was thoroughly cooked and he and Anton saw how nice it looked, they were not long in following my example, and pronounced it to be excellent.

The best part of the next day was spent in mending and fixing up the net, so we could do no fishing until the day after. The net was about twenty yards long by four feet deep (just the very thing for our river), weighted at the bottom with lead, and it had good sized cork floats all along the top. At each end we fixed a good stout pole with which to push it along, and one of us would have to walk down either side of the stream in the water, pushing the pole with the net down to the bottom. In this way we could sweep the whole stream.

The place we selected for commencing our operations was at the outlet of the large laguna where I had shot the donkey. The stream was narrow there and pretty deep. Anton and Huc were to make the experiment, and I remained in charge of the boat and followed close behind. When everything was in readiness we started, Anton on the right bank, Huc on the left, and I bringing up the rear in the boat. We soon had plenty of evidence that there were any amount of fish, for before they had proceeded fifty yards the net became so heavy that Anton shouted out for Huc to stand firm while he described a semi-circle with his end of the net and got over to Huc's side. And then we had a tremendous struggle to get them out.

There must have been quite two hundred fish, varying from one to eight or nine pounds. There were only three different sorts: pike, a sort of catfish, and a little silvery fish like English dace. Well, I thought this enough for one day's work, but the other two wanted to have another try and they did, and this time got even more than the first, and then we paddled down to our tent and spent the afternoon in cleaning, salting, and spreading the fish out in the sun to dry. Well, we kept this up for about a week and I began to think it getting monotonous, and began to hope that the supply of fish would give out (and then we would go back to our shooting, which was good fun), but it didn't. Every day Anton and Huc caught as many as they got the day before. Where they came from I don't know, but they were always there. They had fish on the brain. They fished all day. They ate fish with every meal and talked fish at night till they fell asleep. I was sick of fish so I used to leave them to their own devices and go out shooting with Tyke. I soon discovered a large bañado where there was any amount of large partridges, or martinets, as they are called out here. They are as big as a hen, and very good eating. Tyke, too, was a first rate hand at putting them up, so we got some very good shooting besides in the evening. I always got three or four swans and generally about a dozen ducks so I considered that I did my full share of the business, and the others were quite content.

One afternoon I had gone further than I used to, when, on rounding a lot of tall grass, I beheld a sight that gave me a considerable amount of pleasure. In the midst of a broad patch of short grass and with her back towards me, lay an immense lioness, watching a pair of half-grown cubs which were playing about like a couple of kittens a few yards beyond. The cubs were not by any means as active as kittens though, as their legs were out of proportion to their bodies, being too short and too thick. But they made backs and walked sideways, spitting at one another just the same as kittens do.

Well, I sat there for a good half hour, highly amused at their antics, as was Tyke also, and would have been at them before this, had I not got her tight under my arm. Besides, I did not want to disturb them, as I only had my gun, and it was no use shooting at a lion with a gun, for I should only wound her and she would certainly resent that by making things very unpleasant for me, so I determined that for once discretion was the better part of valour and left them in peace that afternoon, though promising in my own mind to look them up in the morning and, if possible, get Anton and Huc to leave their beloved fish for one day and accompany me. I had no doubt of being able to find the lions again, as when they have young they make a nest and rear them until they are able to hunt on their own account.

When I got back to the tent that night I found Anton and Huc busy, as usual, cleaning and salting their last catch, and related to them what I had seen. They both expressed delighted at the idea of a lion hunt, so accordingly next morning we set off on horseback taking, of course, our rifles this time. When we came to the place where I had seen them the day before, Tyke remembered the place perfectly and rushed about with her nose to the ground, evidently knowing what we were looking for. Tigre too began to get interested, and finally they both went off into the long grass. We hunted about for more than two hours, and were just going to give it up, when we heard a bark from Tyke and directly after Tigre joined in, and we knew they had found.

They were right in the middle of the long grass, and it gave us some trouble to get there, but when we did eventually arrive we found the lioness sitting up, with a cub on each side, snarling at Tyke, who was jumping round barking, and every now and then snapping at the cubs. Tigre was a good five yards off barking also, but not daring to venture any nearer.

NOTES

A general meeting of the members of the Lomas Academy Athletic Club will be held at Lomas on Saturday, the 2nd of April.

The first Athletic Championship Meeting under the newly-formed Athletic Association will take place at Hurlingham on Wednesday, May 25. The programme will be published shortly.

We have no less than nine cricket matches reported in this week's issue.

During the absence of Mr A. M Hudson in Europe, Mr J. M. Mullaly will act as hon. sec. of the Rover's Polo Club, Quilmes.

Mr. T. W. Atkinson has been elected Hon. Secretary of the Quilmes Athletic Club vice Mr. T. B. Sinclair, resigned. We hear that this club it getting on well, and that new members are coming in almost daily from neighbouring suburbs.

We are sorry to hear that the Hon. F. Pakenham has resigned the Presidency of the Buenos Aires Cricket Club.

The first of this season's two-year-olds will be seen out on Sunday at Palermo in the Premio Productos, a thousand metre race for mestizo two-year-old colts, in the entries for which most of our best known sires are represented.

The annual general meeting of the Jockey Club was held on Saturday evening, when over two hundred and fifty members were present. Dr. Santiago Luro was elected president of the club, and the following gentlemen members of committee: Srs. A. T. de Alvear, M. J. Marengo, A. Casares, M. Guiraldez, J. Martinez, E. Acebal, A. M. Casariego, B. Acosta, J. Pena, Dr. T. Anchorena, Gen. L. M. Campos, Srs. F. Madero and H. C. ...

According to the report laid before the meeting for last year there was a difference of $90,000 for "entradas" in favour of 1890. The club numbers at present 723 members, of whom only ten joined last year. It was stated that the new club-house, which is only half finished, has cost over a million dollars. Its construction is, for the meantime, suspended.

The Montevideo Polo Club played their first match at Montevideo on Monday, Feb. 29th, against the San Jorge Polo Club, and were successful by eight goals to one. A return match was played next day, the Montevideo team being changed from that of the preceding day, and after a close game it ended in a draw, each side having scored three goals.

The Uruguay News says that there is some talk about getting up a polo tournament for Holy Week, but our contemporary does not say if it is to be an open one or not. If an open tournament, we think that one, if not two, of our Buenos Aires Clubs, might send down teams to compete. Hurlingham and Buenos Aires are going to try conclusions with Montevideo at cricket, why not also at polo?

Those who know how impossible it is to get a good pipe in Buenos Aires will be glad to hear that Messrs. Ravenscroft, Rowland and Mills have had a consignment of Loewe's celebrated pipes sent out to them. They are at present in the custom-house, but will be delivered in a day or two.

Although it is only a fortnight since we published our list of clubs, there have been one or two additions made to it since then, amongst these being the Gramilla Polo Club, with headquarters at Gramilla, F.C. Rosario. At present the club only counts on very few Englishmen and in order to get practice has to make up its number with native peons. Mr. P. Watts is the hon. secretary.

Mr. W. W. Read's team in South Africa won their match against twenty-two of Pretoria, on Jan. 30th, by an innings and 19 runs. The Englishmen scored 196 runs, and then got rid of their opponents for 51. This necessitated the latter following on, and they were disposed of for 126 runs.

Just previous to the match against Eighteen of Pietermaritzburg, which was commenced on February 8th, bad weather was experienced, and the rivers having been rendered impassable owing to the heavy rains, the amateurs, who had journeyed by a different route, had not arrived at the time for play to begin. Consequently the home team were opposed by professionals only. The Pietermaritzburg cricketers went in first, and scored 116. Against this the Englishmen put together 251, towards which Wood contributed 61, A. Hearne 56, and Brockwell 38. The match was concluded on Feb. 10th in a victory for the Englishmen by ten wickets. As they failed to get more than 141 runs in their second innings, the Colonials set the Englishmen the task of getting seven runs only.

Lord Sheffield's team in Australia began a match at Newcastle on Feb. 5th against a local twenty, and going in first scored 269. Before the day's play ceased the locals had lost three wickets for 15 runs. Rain upset matters on the next day to such an extent, after Newcastle had increased their total to 43 for the loss of six wickets, that the match was eventually abandoned.

A match against Twenty-two of Manby was begun on Feb. 10, at Manby; situate nine miles from Sydney. The Englishmen took first innings, and obtained 136. Before the close of the day the local team had lost fifteen wickets for 70 runs. On the 11th the home team completed their innings for 98 runs. The Englishmen then put together 282 runs, the match, confined to two days, being left drawn.

TUCUMAN v. SALTA.

Feb. 27 and 28.

This is the first time that the king of games has been played at Salta, consequently it caused some excitement. Unluckily the first day, when the Tucuman score showed five wickets for 75 runs, a terrible storm of wind, hail, and rain, put an end to all further play for that day, and what was just as bad, completely spoilt the magnificent lunch given by the Messrs. Leach, and which had been so well arranged and laid out by one of the ladies of the family. The following day, the weather having cleared, the match was resumed, ending in favour of Tucuman by 1 run.

On the Tucuman side Mr. Scott put in a well played innings for 30 runs. Messrs. Garland Sutherland and Willis coming in with 19 and 17 respectively. The fielding of Tucuman was worthy of all praise, the bowling of Mr. White speaking for itself, especially when he succeeded in taking three wickets with three consecutive balls.

Salta began very badly by both Mr. Lloyd and Mr. W. Leach being run out, and all seemed against Salta when the fifth wicket went down for 49, but when Messrs. S. and F. Leach got together the tide of misfortune seemed to turn with the brilliant play of Mr S. H. Leach, who, having collared the bowling, made two magnificent hits out of bounds for 6 each, two of 4, three of three, and two of 2, in an innings of 47.

CANADA DE GOMEZ v. LAS ROSAS.

Mr. C. W. Wilding sends us the following interesting account of the above match:—It may be of interest to your readers, as you published the score of the match at Carcaraña, to know that the outcome of that match was a challenge to Mr. M'Naughtan by Mr. Chamberlain, to play a team composed of Cañada de Gomez and district against Las Rosas and district. This match was played at Las Rosas on Sunday last, the 28th. Although both captains were disappointed in their teams, a most interesting and enjoyable game was played. Las Rosas was beaten, but it was never expected that they would win. Their men were without practice and their bowlers weak, while the Cañada men had the laurels of three victories on their brows. For the visitors Bradney and Dickson played well, as usual, and the latter kept wicket like a Pilling. The home team were unable to cope with the bowling of Francis and Bradney, and so suffered defeat, but they played a courageous game throughout, and their fielding was admittedly good. Whish batted well and steadily at a time when steadiness was wanted. G. Smythies took three wickets in his first over, consecutively, and Adams bowled 4 overs and 1 ball for five wickets no runs. Cricket is now quite established here; Cañada play Roldan on Sunday next, and Rosario on the Sunday following.

After their decisive victory over Buenos Aires at Palermo on Monday and Tuesday last week it was not expected that the Montevideo team would collapse as it did at Hurlingham on the two following days.

first two of the Montevideo wickets were down, and only 1 was scored for four, but Hyde made a stand and brought relief to the visitors, who were eventually all disposed of for 45.

BUENOS AIRES v. LONDON BANK.

The above match was played at Palermo on Sunday last, and resulted in a win for the visitors by 44 runs. Mr. James Gifford having won the toss, sent in J. P. Barnes and C. W. Thompson to face the bowling of G. S. Anderson and P. L. G. Bridger. From the first, runs came freely, Barnes hitting hard all round in fine style, getting Bridger for two fours in one over and then placing Anderson over the boundary to square leg for 6. With 30 on the board A. Bowden Smith relieved Anderson and M. G. Fortune went on for Bridger. The change proved effective, and with 42 up Barnes was bowled by Bowden Smith, and two runs later J. Gifford returned one to the same bowler. G. A. Thompson followed, and the score was carried to 65, when C. W. Thompson was run out, having played a very careful innings for 20. Coubrough, who came next, had only made 2 when he went out to a splendid left handed catch to E. R. Gifford. The next three wickets fell in quick succession to the slow bowler, G. A. Thomson, having played a most useful innings for 27, the total score amounting to 109.

As will be seen from the analysis, Bowden Smith was the only bowler who met with success.

E. R. Gifford and G. Harker opened the batting for the home team. G. A. Thomson and J. P. Barnes being entrusted with the bowling. Two runs came from the first over, then Barnes off his first ball caught Harker; W. H. Masters followed and helped to carry the total to 24, when a catch in the long field sent him back. Drabble was the only other batsman who ran into double figures. E. R. Gifford was thrown out when he looked like carrying his bat out, having played a capital innings for 32. Barnes was in exceptional form with the ball, taking six wickets for 30 runs.

The fielding generally was a great improvement on that usually seen at Palermo, the Bank men being particularly smart in this department of the game.

ZOOLOGICAL NOTES

By A. STUART PENNINGTON

(Zoologist to the Sociedad Rural Argentina).

OPOSSUMS (COMADREJAS).

The American continent shares with Australia the presence of a number of animals called by naturalists Marsupials or pouched animals, owing to their having the teats of the female hidden by and enclosed in an extension of the skin of the belly, which forms a pouch. In all these animals the young are born only partially developed and the development is concluded in the pouch referred to, to which the young are transferred by the female at the moment of birth. In Australia the marsupialia are represented by the kangaroos and in America by the opossums.

There are many species of opossums scattered throughout the warm parts of America. In the Argentine Republic, there are five distinct species, which will be described in detail.

All the species of "Didelphidae" (Opossums) are more or less rat like in shape, having a long pointed muzzle, ears naked or slightly covered with down, long whiskers on the upper lip, hair generally of two kinds, the one furry and woolly and the other long and almost bristly, interspersed among the fur.

The feet have five toes, all except the inner toes of the hind feet, armed with sharp claws. The two inner toes referred to are really thumbs, and are used by the female to aid in transferring the young to the pouch after birth. The tail is long, round, thick, naked, and covered with scales. The incisor teeth in the adult are very numerous, being ten in the upper and eight in the lower jaw. The food of the opossum is generally animal, although with the latter it will eat fruits. Their habits are nocturnal, lying concealed in the daytime in holes or on trees, and coming forth at night to prey upon birds and their eggs, lizards, frogs, small snakes, and similar animals. Their favourite food is blood, and this they will suck out of the body greedily, in fact the presence of an opossum is easily manifested in a poultry yard by the fact of the fowls or chickens having their heads bitten off, so as to enable the opossum to suck the blood. The tail is prehensile, and used occasionally to aid in suspending the body from trees.

On the ground, and indeed generally, they are sluggish in their movements. They are not difficult to maintain in captivity, soon allowing themselves to be caressed.

At the moment of birth, the foetus has the form of the adult, except that the mouth is not fully developed. It is quite naked and too feeble to move of itself. There are usually six to eight young at a birth, which are transferred at once by the mother to the pouch, where they hang on to the teats and there complete their development. This takes about six weeks, at the end of which time the hair has begun to grow and the young have their eyes open. They do not always keep to the same teat, but when strong enough change from one to another. For some time after being fully formed they run with the mother, and on any alarm take refuge in their natural cradle.

The body of some species has an offensive smell after death, and after the manner of the skunk some opossums discharge a foul smelling liquid on being attacked.

The largest Argentine species is Azara's opossum (Didelphys azarae), called by the old Guarani inhabitants "Micuré," alluding to the stench emitted on being attacked. The present native name is Comadreja.

It is found in the province of Buenos Aires, Santa Fé, Entre Rios, Corrientes, Tucuman and the Grand Chaco. It is not unlike the common or Virginia opossum of North America, of which it is treated by Oldfield (Brit. Museum Catalogue) as a variety. In colour it is rather variable but the head and neck are white with three black stripes, one median running from between the eyes on to the crown and back of the neck, and two lateral ones almost enclosing the eyes, and running back nearly to the ears. The bristles of the moustache are long. Some are white and others black. The fur outwardly appears blackish, owing to the fact that the individual hairs are yellowish near the skin and black or blackish at the ends. The visible portions of the interspersed hairs are white. The legs and feet are black. A portion of the tail is covered with hair, but the most part of it is scaly, having only a few scattered hairs in the interstices between the scales.

The length varies from sixteen to nineteen inches from the nose to the root of the tail, the latter appendage being about equal to the length of the body.

Another common species found in Buenos Aires and the other eastern provinces is the thick-tailed opossum or coliguera of Azara (D. crassicaudata). This is a more elegant animal than the preceding. It has small rounded ears and a thick tail, so thick at the root as to appear more a part of the body than a tail. The head and feet are small. The fur during life is reddish in colour, with brownish marks on the muzzle and near the eyes. The tail is also covered with short fur for a considerable portion of the length. At the middle of the tail the colour changes to black, and the last two inches are white. After death, the red colour referred to turns greyish yellow. In size the species varies, some reaching as much as sixteen inches without the tail, and others not attaining, although said to be fully grown, more than half the length. The tail is about the length of the body.

The small and delicate species, the Murine opossum (D. dorsigera) is found in Jujuy on the borders of Brazil. It is about the size of an ordinary rat. The fur is soft and short, of a pale red grey on the upper part and sides of the body, the hairs being inclined to reddish yellow at the points. The fur of the underside of the body is yellowish white.

On the Chilean frontier, and especially near Mendoza, is found the Chilean opossum (D. Elegans), which is a small thick tailed species about the size of a large mouse. The hairs are only of one kind, and the colour is a greyish brown.

A native of Paraguay and the Banda Oriental, which is occasionally found in the Province of Buenos Aires, is the red sided opossum (D. Brachyura), which measures, without the tail, about six inches, the tail being about two and a-half inches long. It has a large head. The fur is short and crisp, ash grey on the back and reddish yellow on the sides, lighter on the belly and inside the legs.

The Comadreas form a characteristic feature in the Argentine fauna, and are interesting objects of study owing to the position which the marsupialia occupy in the scale of creation. On this question, however, there is no space to enlarge here.
