CRICKET.

The return match between Notts and Middlesex, played at Nottingham on Aug. 8 and following days, was the most important fixture of the week ending on Aug. 13, of a season almost at a close. Rain spoilt the first part of the match, but the weather cleared up on the second and third days. Notts opened the batting with Shrewsbury and Mr J. A. Dixon, who scored 32 and 44 respectively, the best scores in the innings, which finally closed for 191 runs. Middlesex could only score 97 in their first attempt, but following on scored 202, which left the home county 109 runs to make to win. This number was speedily scored for the loss of two wickets, leaving Notts winners by eight wickets.

Scores—Notts: A. Shrewsbury 32, Mr J. A. Dixon 44, W. Gunn 10, W. Barnes 26, W. Flowers 25, F. Schacklock 14, W. Attewell 2, H. B. Daft 19 not out, Mr J. S. Robinson 8, Mr A. O. Jones 1, M. Shewin 2, extras 8, total 191.

Middlesex—Mr A. E. Stoddart 21 and 15, Mr P. T. Henery 6 and 34, Mr S. W. Scott 4 and 6, Mr M. R. Jardine 32 and 7, Mr T. C. O'Brien 4 and 15, Rawlin 0 and 6, Mr T. G. J. Ford 14 and 25, Mr G. McGregor 2 and 19, Phillips 6 and 46, West 6 and 12, Hearne 1 and 14, extras 1 and 3, totals 97 and 202.

In the second innings of Notts A. Shrewsbury scored not out 41, Mr J. A. Dixon 3, H. B. Daft not out 43, Mr A. O. Jones 17, extras 7, total 111.

The return match between Sussex and Yorkshire was played at Brighton on August 8th and following days, and resulted in an easy win for Yorkshire by nine wickets. The wicket Sussex commenced batting on was a decidedly bad one, their first innings closing for 173 runs. Yorkshire followed with 240. Sussex could only score 99 in their second innings, 40 of which were made by Mr. Newham. The twenty-three runs required by Yorkshire were quickly hit off by Lord Hawke, Tunncliffe, and Ulyett and a nine wicket victory scored.

Scores—Sussex: Bean 44 and 7, Marlow 19 and 6, Mr W. G. Heasman 25 and 12, Mr W. Newham 5 and 40, Mr G. Braun 35 and 2, Guttridge 0 and 2, Mr W. H. Andrews 6 and 6, Mr C. J. M. Godfrey 7 and 17, W. Humphreys 5 and 2, Butt 11 and 0, Tate 4 and 1, extras 12 and 4, totals 173 and 99.

Yorkshire—Lord Hawke 14 and 12, Ulyett 11 and 12, Tunncliffe 1 and 10, Mr E. Smith 25, Wainwright 34, Peel 66, Mr R. W. Frank 58, Moorhouse 0, Whitehead 13, Hirst 5, Hunter 0, Extras 12, Totals 240 and 34.

Surrey played a strong side against Derbyshire in their return fixture at the Oval. The batting of Derby was disappointing, greatly due to the success of Richardson's bowling. As will be seen from the following scores Surrey obtained the victory by 93 runs.

Surrey—Abel 48 and 16, Mr W. Read 4 and 16, Lockwood 17 and 0, M. Read 16 and 47, Mr J. Shuter 34 and 11, Henderson 11 and 6, Lohmann 9 and 11, Baldwin 10 and 16, Brockwell 0 and 0, Richardson 0 and 0, Mr R. P. Lewis 2 and 1, Extras 1 and 1, Totals 156 and 125.

Derbyshire—Mr L. G. Wright 1 and 7, Bagshaw 41 and 0, Chatterton 28 and 42, Davidson 0 and 14, Mr S. H. Evershed 0 and 5, Storer 0 and 9, W. Sugg 1 and 0, Stubblings 4 and 8, Mr F. Evershed 4 and 1, Malthouse 5 and 0, Porter 6 and 0, Extras 3 and 9, Totals 93 and 95.

Oxfordshire found themselves quite unequal both in the batting and bowling line to play Hampshire. Fifty-nine was all they could score in the first innings, and 117 in the second, so that, as Hampshire totalled 434, they were defeated by an innings and 258 runs.

An interesting match was played at Richmond during the week by two elevens representing the Public Schools and Gentlemen of Surrey respectively. The Schools won by two wickets.

The concluding day of the Canterbury week when Notts and Kent were finishing their match commanded an immense amount of interest. Notts since their victory over Surrey reported by us last week is now the leading first-class county, a fact which of course would be sufficient to attract a large number of people to witness their play. Notts scored 226 in their first innings, Shrewsbury going in first, carried out his bat for a splendid 111. Kent replied to this with 164, but Notts scoring 178 at their second attempt, left them the heavy task of making 241 runs to get to win. Their Captain, Mr Merchant, and Mr Weigall both made capital innings, but they could not save a defeat, and Notts eventually scored a victory by fifty six runs.

Scores—Notts: Shrewsbury 111 not out and 13, Mr A. O. Jones 7 and 10, Gunn 8 and 35, Barnes 27 and 23, Flowers 0 and 11, Shacklock 14 and 31, W. Attewell 1 and 8, Mr J. S. Robinson 10 and 16, H. B. Daft 13 and 10, T. Attewell 4 and 1, Sherwin 29 and 16, extras 2 and 4; totals 226 and 178.

Kent: A. Hearne 6 and 3, Mr F. Marchant 2 and 34, Mr G. Weigall 10 and 63, Mr W. L. Knowles 12 and 8, Mr W. Patterson 35 and 1, Mr L. Wilson 6 and 30, Mr C. J. Fox 34 and 4, Mr M. C. Kemp 3 and 12, Martin 3 and 12, Wright 23 and 5, W. Hearne 21 and 2, extras 9 and 10; totals 164 and 184.

The feature of the return match between Gloucester and Sussex was Mr W. G. Grace's innings of 99, his best score in first-class cricket this second.

Sussex were obliged to leave early on the last day which unfortunately necessitated the match ending in a draw. Sussex scored 482 in their only innings to which total Marlow contributed 98, Mr G. Brann 147, and Mr W. H. Andrews 67. Gloucestershire scored exactly 200 in their first and 242 for five wickets in their second innings, the best scores being Mr E. N. Grace's 62 and W. G. Grace's 99.

After a capital match Yorkshire beat Essex at Leyton by 106 runs. The performance of the Essex batsmen against the bowling of Yorkshire was worthy of all praise. Yorkshire scored 255 and 248, and Essex 222 and 175; no less than 83 extras were scored in the match.

Gloucestershire played a strong team against Lancashire in their return match, which commenced on August 11 and of which we have not yet heard the result. Lancashire could only total 69 in their first innings four of their men making the historical duck's egg, and Baker's 20 being the highest score. Gloucester replied with 106, Mr Rice's 21 not out being the best innings for his side. Lancashire up to the end of the second day had totalled 287 for the loss of seven wickets, Smith (96), and Sugg (89) helping greatly towards the score;

The return match between Surrey and Middlesex was played for the benefit of George ("Farmer") Burton, and he must have been well contented with the result, as the attendance at Lord's during the contest was almost as record one. It is a note worthy fact that the first match Burton played for Middlesex was against Surrey, and it was also against Surrey that he made the remarkable performance of taking all the wickets in one innings in the year 1888. Surrey batted slow all though. They took a day and a half to score their 294. Middlesex making 112 and then 180 just lost the match by an innings with only two runs to spare. Scores:

Surrey—Abel 57, Mr W. W. Read 15, Lockwood 36, M. Read 18, Mr J. Shuter 20, Henderson 54, Baldwin 14, Lohmann 45, Brockwell 26, Wood 0, Richardson 0, extras 9; total 294.

Middlesex—Mr Stoddart 3 and 27, Mr A. J. Webbe 0 and 0, Mr S. W. Scott 49 and 5, Mr M. Jardine 0 and 6, Mr T. C. O'Brien 0 and 65, Mr P. J. T. Henery 25 and 0, Rawlin 7 and 12, Mr F. G. Ford 16 and 9, Phillips 0 and 6, Mr G. McGregor 0 and 23, Hearn 8 and 10, extras 4 and 17; totals 112 and 180.

Yorkshire and Somerset commenced their match on a very bad wicket with the result that scoring at first was very slow, Somerset totalling only 74, and Yorkshire 110 at their first attempts. Somerset put a different complexion on the match in their second innings, and totalled 248 runs, Mr S. M. J. Wood's 76 being the best innings. Yorkshire failed to reach the 213 required to get to win by 87 runs, by which number they were defeated. Scores:

Somersetshire—Mr L. S. Palairret 6 and 32, Mr H. T. Hewett 1 and 17, Mr J. B. Cullen 7 and 39, Mr W. C. Hedley 30 and 15, Mr W. N. Roe 5 and 23, Nichols 8 and 5, Mr S. M. J. Woods 4 and 76, Mr C. J. Robinson 9 and 11, Mr A. S. Newton 3 and 6, Mr C. E. Dunlop 0 and 1, Tyler 0, extras 1 and 23; totals 74 and 248.

Yorkshire—Lord Hawke 0 and 16, Ulyett 0 and 12, Mr E. Smith 12 and 16, Mr F. S. Jackson 31 and 14, Wainwright 2 and 0, Tunncliffe 17 and 2, Brown 15 and 13, Moorhouse 15 and 17, Hunter 3 and 0, extras 14 and 4; totals 110 and 125.

The following interesting table shows the number of first-class county matches won, lost, and drawn by the eight first-class counties (excluding Somersetshire) for twenty-two years up to the end of 1891, and the points obtained by each county calculated on the principle now employed:

	Played	Won	Lost	Drawn	Points
Notts	210	101	45	64	56
Lancashire	169	85	52	32	33
Yorkshire	237	98	78	61	20
Surrey	258	113	100	45	13
Gloucestershire	194	66	71	57	-5
Kent	176	59	83	34	-24
Middlesex	193	38	63	97	-25

WINNERS OF THE HURLINGHAM POLO TOURNAMENT — JULY, 1892.

BUENOS AIRES FROM DAY TO DAY

The following ordenanza was discussed and passed by the City Fathers in the meeting of the C.D. on the 7th inst.: "From this date all boxing exhibitions are prohibited." Short, sweet, and definite. Messrs Ball, Davis, and Co. are now like Othello, "their occupation's gone."

On the 8th inst. there was a review and sham fight at Santa Catalina in the presence of the President, Minister of War, and President-elect. The fring was pretty vigorous in the sham fight, but according to all accounts the training of several of the regiments leaves much to be desired.

Much sympathy is expressed with young Brown Arnold in connection with the unfortunate shooting case in the National Theatre. It is well that said theatre is not in England, or Arnold would have had a short shrift. Unfortunately, as was ably pointed out in a "Times" leader, a very different rule prevails here, and all the Argentines to whom we have spoken on the matter say "Bien hecho." It seems to have been untrue that there was a woman in the question, and Gennassini really deserved his fate, for he was evidently a brutal bully, who simply because he thought he knew how to shoot wished to force Arnold into a duel.

The additional Ministers in the new Saenz Peña Cabinet are S. Calixto de la Torre, who will take the position of Minister of Justice and Education, and Dr Torrent or Dr Bermejo is spoken of for the post of Foreign Minister.

The people of Belgrano are so grateful to Lord Mayor Bollini that they are going to present him with a bouquet and a gold plate to mark their sense of the improvements in that neighbourhood during his reign.

General Mansilla of "causerie" fame, the Sir Wilfrid Lawson of the B.A. Senate, has applied for his discharge from the military command which he holds. The worthy General has evidently had some "disgusto" with his comrades. The President has refused to accept his resignation and threatens to lock him up if he persists in it.

Those who have any favourite little dog should take care of him. A "mad dog" scare is on foot, and it is quite possible that mistakes may be made. Dr Thibou wants to get municipal sanction for a proposal made by him to collect all unclaimed or wandering dogs, and if not claimed by their owners in three days let them into an artificial "grotto dei cane," where the fumes of carbonic acid will speedily put an end to their wanderings.

The assailants of Mr Williams have not yet been found, and the Judge has decided that in the absence of a prisoner he has no one to try, and therefore he is going to "sobre-seerse," or forget all about the matter for the present.

The Vice-President-elect, Dr Uriburu, has returned from Chile, and like a wise man refuses to commit himself to newspaper reporters on either political or financial questions. The only thing he will say is that the Chilians don't want to fight the Argentines, but love them with more than a brother's love.

The Congress have decided to waste $500,000 on killing locusts. This will be about one dollar per head of locusts destroyed by Government means, and will not do much towards decreasing their invasions. It was at first proposed to divide the money amongst the provinces, in proportion to their representation in Congress, really so much per deputy; but this was thought to be too barefaced, so it was resolved to spend it in proportion to the necessities of the respective provinces.

An amusing incident of the debate in Congress on Friday was the accusation by one of the members for Cordoba that Sr Varela, the quondam Chancellor of the Exchequer, has ruined the country. This from a Cordobese was sublime. Far worse than any locust invasion was the invasion of Cordobeses under the Celman reign.

What is "sarna" in sheep is "itch" in man. This fact should be borne in mind by all travellers in trams, and all who have their clothes washed by Porteña washerwomen, as tramguards and washerwomen form a large percentage of sufferers from an epidemic of itch said to be very extensive in Buenos Aires.

We should suggest a small pocket microscope to be carried about in our readers' pockets, and used carefully in examining stamps, change, and tickets from the tramguards, and before putting on the spotless linen so conspicuous in the subscribers of S. and P.

Of course we have had a "caso sospechoso." That goes without saying, but it turned out to be cholera nostra and not cholera morbus, so the poor sufferer, after being quarantined and "incomunicado" for two days, was restored to life and liberty none the worse.

A poor clerk, or poor clerks, have been trying to do the Home Office out of a few dollars by some juggling with emigrants' tickets. In the polite phraseology of the country, they have been placed at the disposition of the police.

A copy of "Tit Bits" is not a bad thing to have about you. One of our subscribers was recently getting off a tram when in motion, or some equally serious crime, for which he was requested to pass by the comisario, and there he was further desired to part with a small fine of some $30. Being near the end of the month, our worthy subscriber thought twice before paying the fine, and sat down on a chair, like Micawber, waiting for something to turn up. The comisario continued his enquiries into other cases, and amongst them was one in which a member of the female persuasion was engaged, and whilst a warm dialogue was going on between the latter and the comisario, our subscriber sat reading a "Tit Bits" which he had in his pocket. Something extra funny made him lose sight of the comisario and everything else, and he roared with laughter. The comisario thought he was laughing at him, and in an angry tone told him to get out of the office at once. Our friend needed no second telling. Fervently praying for $30 worth of extra subscribers to "Tit Bits," he rushed into the open air, and was some squares off before the comisario had time to miss the expected fine.

This experience was nearly as good as one we heard of some time ago, when a pushing insurance agent got locked up and, on requesting an interview with the Chief of Police, he not only got off scot-free but got a proposal filled up for insuring the Chief's valuable life against revolutions and other causes of mortality.

Col. Santiago Baibiene (va y viene) has been asked to succeed Dr Donovan as manager of the well-known "Hotel del Gallo," Moreno esq. Zeballos, otherwise Chief of Police.

The building in the Plaza San Martin for the Spring Chantz Fiestas is going on rapidly. What with this and the rebuilding of the Argentine Pavilion of the Paris Exhibition to contain the exhibits for Chicago, there will be plenty to look at in that direction next week.

Sr Lowry, the Fiscal in the Rosales enquiry, seems from all accounts to be pushing his enquiries very closely, rather more so than is said to be pleasant for the gallant (?) officers of that boat. The report will be sensational when it appears. The missing sailor has been found. The interview with Admiral Solier, reported in the week's papers, does not place his share of the matter in any better light. He seemed more bent on thinking how he could best spend his holiday than of the fate of those in his charge.

The Congress seem bent on putting the Executive of the country in the wrong on every possible occasion. They have disapproved of their action in the celebrated Grunbein contract, and also in the question of the arrest of Dr Molina, under cover of the state of siege.

There is certainly no love lost between the P.E. and the Conscript Fathers, and it is just as well the President's term is nearly at an end, or, as the immortal schoolmaster in Percival Koenig would have said, "It would have ended in a blow up."

In view of the forthcoming 12th of October a number of gentlemen languishing in goal have petitioned the President to let them go that they may sin no more. The document in question is unique. It says "The laws chastise with excessive severity certain offences committed without premeditation, and so deprive the industries, the sciences, and the arts of their most important factors," and the petition goes on to suggest that if these offences were punished more equitably, the unwearied labourer would return to the hard task of that work which exalts and dignifies, the merchant unfortunate in his enterprises would renew his operations to raise again his lost credit, the student would return to the halls of his alma mater to terminate his career, etc., etc. Then follow some 30 or 40 signatures of these worthy labourers, merchants, men of science, and students, withdrawn by an unjust law from the prosecution of their ennobling occupations and placed at the disposition of the Juez de Crimen.

On Wednesday last Mr Albert Blanchard delivered a most interesting lecture to the members of the English Literary Society on "Alexander Hamblin and Socialism." There was a good attendance.

The missing sailor, according to the "Nacion" of yesterday, has turned up at La Plata, and the revelations made by him justify all the strong remarks made in this paper and others about the conduct of the Rosales' officers. It seems that when the latter saw that all was lost, they decided on escaping themselves and drove back the crew, who begged not to be left alone, with revolvers in their hands. The quartermaster begged to be taken with the officers, and the only reply he received was to be shot by one of the officers. The poor sailor Batalla himself was wounded by a hatchet in trying to get on board the boat. It is now very probable that all about the raft was untrue. At all events, after these disclosures, the authorities cannot afford to let the matter sleep.

In the "Nacion" of this morning is a statement that the Bataglia or Batallo who made the assertions referred to is not the real survivor of that name of the ill-fated crew. The latter is now a prisoner in this city, and he says that he has made no assertions to anyone but the Fiscal. We can make no further comment until the whole truth comes out, if it ever does, except that from all appearances the officials of the Rosales appear to be like Cromwell, "Damned to everlasting fame," as no amount of explanation does away with the plain fact that their duty was to share the danger with their crew and not escape in a body.

The "Times" does not want any more advertisements, vide leading article of Sunday last.

RACING

HURLINGHAM—SEPT. 8

In spite of a lovely day and one of the best programmes the club has arranged, only a very few people witnessed the racing at Hurlingham last Thursday. The long spell of dry weather had made the going rather hard, which was felt more on the steeplechase than on the flat racecourse, especially on the landing side of some of the fences. With regard to the fences, they were rather bigger and required more "doing" than last year, though nothing was at all troublesome to a horse that had received a fair amount of schooling.

The two stiffest fences coming first in the Ayrshire Cup spoil the race to a certain extent, as two horses resolutely refused to have the first, the open ditch, and the wall with ditch each side, the second obstacle, disposed of a third competitor.

The racing commenced with the Polo Scarry, which Macuco carried off from Whitelegs fairly easily. The Paddock Stakes was a good race, Daiman and Baby making a close finish of it, the former winning by a head only. The Vayo Stakes resulted in a runaway victory for Linterna, nothing else in the race making her gallop. It appears that Linterna is a daughter of old Stone Cross by Peter, which will account for her fine turn of speed. The Hurdle Race was won easily by White Legs from Popsy Wopsy, who found the distance too much.

The Ayrshire Cup promised to be the race of the day, but although six went to the post only two were really in the race. Isis refusing badly at the first fence left her jockey in the ditch, and Rama Negra also got no further than this point. Torcasa, who went off at a tremendous pace, came to grief at the second fence. These mishaps left only The Lamb and Laddie, who ran considerably in advance of Christopher; at the sixth fence the latter fell, and at the last hurdle, Laddie gained a good two lengths lead of The Lamb, which he increased to three at the winning post, and scored a most popular victory.

The St. Leger Stakes were reduced to a match between Brujo and Enchantress. The pair ran together the whole journey, Enchantress on the inside, and coming down the straight were locked together in the middle of the course, Enchantress, who had held a slight lead in the last few furlongs, maintaining her advantage to the end and winning by a neck. Immediately after the race an objection was lodged by the jockey of Brujo against Enchantress on the ground of boring, and the stewards of the meeting, after taking evidence, decided to uphold the objection, and awarded the race to Brujo. Being the second year Brujo has won the cup, his owner keeps it in his possession.

The Pony Steeplechase brought the meeting to a close. All except Laddie went to the post, where, as he usually does, Rama Negra utterly refused to start, and when the flag was dropped was left there. Tilbury Nogo at once took the lead from Sloper and Gil Blas, the jockey of the latter losing a stirrup leather at the second fence pulled up and left Tilbury Nogo and Sloper alone with Rama Negra, who had been set going, some distance behind. Sloper ran out at the open ditch and lost a lot of ground, so that Tilbury Nogo had no difficulty in winning by a distance.

At the first fence the last named's jockey lost a leather and pulled up, meanwhile Rama Negra had started in pursuit of the leaders. Sloper ran out at the open ditch, thereby losing a lot of ground, and Tilbury Nogo came in alone a distance in front of Sloper, who was several lengths in front of Rama Negra.

Dividend—Tilbury Nogo $6.20.

BELGRANO—SEPTEMBER 8.

Although the weather was charming last Thursday, it was not an altogether pleasant day at Belgrano for racing, as the dust was blown across the course into the stands in a most disagreeable fashion. The classic race of the day resulted in an easy victory for Eridan who, since his retirement, has come out a great horse and will probably win some valuable races before the year is out for La Petite Ecurie. Stone Cross went a rare pace at the beginning of the race but he seemed to shut up towards the finish.

On the whole the racing was not particularly exciting. The curiously coloured old gold mare belonging to the Whipper-In's Stud, Siva, won the first race from a very moderate lot; Artichaud had no difficulty in securing the Premio Sunchales, and Chilliarich won the Premio Baradero in very fast time. The Premio San Nicolás was perhaps the best race of the day, Alerta and Santa Lucia making a fine race of it for first place, the former winning eventually, and upsetting the calculations of the majority. Golondrina, in spite of her weight, won a capital race in the Premio Rosario from Sirince, and Robert le Diable's victory in the Premio Zárate brought a pleasant meeting to a close.

PALERMO—SEPT. 12.

The programme of last Sunday was not sufficiently interesting to make the attendance at the race course at all extraordinary so there was only an average number of people present, and betting in consequence was not particularly brisk on any one of the races.

Fields were small all through the day and we still think seven races too many to put in the afternoon's programme.

The Premio Europa was the classic race of the day, but the Premio Camors attracted by far the most interest. San Carlos was made a strong favourite, but he is evidently a queer tempered one and refused to start when the flag was dropped, and Mio, the bottom weight, was able to win fairly easily. Veterano covered himself with glory by winning both the Premio Vendetta and the last race the Premio Estimulo, in both of which he made all his own running. Sport on the whole was poor, and unsatisfactory.

Details:

Premio Consuelo, a handicap for any horse which has not won more than $3000, $1500 to the 1st, 200 to the 2nd, 1500 metres.

IS GOLF AN ATHLETIC GAME?

There is a strong feeling among the non-golfing portion of the population that Golf is not a suitable game for the younger generation. Even the elderly players share in the sentiment. The reason is not far to seek. It is found in the peculiar characteristic of the game. There is no other form of athletics in which the old man and the small boy can attain to such relative proficiency. Hence people think that a game which is fit for the very young and the very old cannot be a suitable exercise for the man who is approaching the prime of life.

Is, then, Golf an athletic game? The answer must be affirmative. Athleticism is but a combination of strength and grace. The various forms of athletics may attach a special importance to one of these qualities, but none can afford, while fostering the one, to neglect the other. Golf emphasises so strongly the value of grace that it conceals from many the necessity of strength. Few criticisms are more common than the remark, "Golf! it requires no strength." There could hardly be a stronger testimony to the character of the game, for the perfection of strength is to conceal its presence.

The nature of Golf is well seen by comparing it with the three other forms of athletics which have the greatest popularity with the younger generation, viz., cricket, football and rowing. Cricket is similar to Golf in that it requires a complete subordination of force to skill. But Golf is the more athletic game; for during the half of a cricket match the player is not engaged in active exercise. Football, again, puts too great a premium upon force. It requires skill; but weight and strength go far to make up for its absence among half the members of a team. Lastly, rowing resembles Golf in its impartial cultivation of skill and force; but it falls short of Golf, as a mode of exercise, in that it cannot be continuously pursued for so long a time. In fact, Golf possesses to a unique degree the prime requisite of athleticism—the harmonious combination of strength and grace—and possesses the additional advantage that it can be played for hours by men of any age.

This is the characteristic of Golf—that it can be played by men of all ages—and it is the expression of its nature. It requires strength and it requires skill; and success depends upon the subordination of the former to the latter. From tee to disc it is an athletic game. The drive appears so easy that no one but a golfer knows, as he watches the flight of the ball straight down the course, that it has been struck at exactly the correct spot. But now the lie is heavy, and the putting green is far away. Down comes the head of the brassy, with every ounce of muscle in the blow, and the ball again springs forward to the hole. To make such a stroke is one of the glories of the game, as it requires absolute precision of aim and as much force as can be combined with it. But the ball has been caught in a small bunker of loose sand. Every bit of strength is required to drive the niblick through the sand, and force the ball up over the bank in front. And now a gentle approach will lay it on the green; but a hazard must be crossed, and the hole is just beyond it. The ball is pitched within six inches of the edge; it runs a short way, stops a few feet from the hole, and a careful putt sends it to the bottom.

"Golf needs no strength!" The idea is absurd. Golf is not like billiards, though it is also unlike the work of a miner. Those who maintain that it is merely a game of skill, have either no experience of it or no power of observation. Two or three rounds in the day of an eighteen-hole course will be enough to fatigue the most powerful athlete, and the better the player the more he will feel the strain. For among the factors of success, the element of strength is as important as that of skill. The best players are to be found among the strongest men.—"Golf."

SPORTING NOTES

It seems a pity that the Quilmes Club could not have raised a team for the Las Rosas Tournament. Now that the two clubs are amalgamated they surely might have raised four men out of the many playing members on the roll of the new club.

I hear that Mr H. H. Lett, the well known manager of the Curamalan stud, who has arrived on board the ss. Wordsworth, has brought out two thoroughbred fillies, which will be sold soon after landing, and two more that will be leased for racing. These latter are for account of the Curamalan Company, as are also five thoroughbred mares and the stallion St. Honorat, which come by the same vessel.

Golf is not the only game at which birds are killed during flight. A singular incident occurred during a game of lawn tennis, on the ground of the Rugby District Club. A player was in the act of serving when a thrush flew across the court, and coming in contact with the ball fell dead.

From the report and statement of accounts presented at the fourth yearly general Meeting of the Tigre Boat Club, held to-day, the club is in a most prosperous condition. On June 30th last the club numbered 63 life, 157 paying, 4 lady, and 38 absent members, or a total of 252, 12 more than last year. The club has purchased in England a half-outrigger single scull, and has also had built in Buenos Aires two canoes; with these additions: the club now has 16 boats, viz., 2 in-rigged fours, 3 skiffs, 10 half-outriggered double sculls, 2 randans, 1 half-outriggered single scull, and 3 canoes. An outrigger clinker-built four has been ordered in England for the club.

The meeting of the club will be held to-night in the Scotch School at 8.30 p.m. A President, Vice-President, Captain, and four members of the Committee have to be elected, the retiring members being Messrs F. Schultz, W. Lamb, C. Manifold, and W. H. Krabbé.

We have to thank Messrs Mackern and Shine and Galli Hermanos for English papers dated up to August 13th.

What I expected for some time past has at length happened. The Municipality has issued an order prohibiting in future all boxing entertainments, such as those held lately at the Doria and Zarzuela Theatres. Being stopped from showing their art here our B.A. pugilists, it is said, have made it their intention to try Rosario, but the Press there are down on them already. One paper says that a "séance de box is a repulsive spectacle, and not fit for a public entertainment; a match between a strong boxer and a beginner, if it does not cost the latter his life, causes him at least to break a rib or two, to get his chest knocked in, and to spit blood and be ill for the rest of his life." Poor beginner.

At a committee meeting of the Amateur Athletic Association held on Saturday the 10th inst., the following records made at the Rosario Athletic Club meeting, held on August 30th, were accepted:

100 Yards—10 $\frac{1}{2}$ secs., A. W. Maclachlan.
220 Yards—23 $\frac{3}{4}$ secs., A. W. Maclachlan.
Quarter Mile—53 secs., E. P. Rowland.
Half Mile—2 min. 10 secs., E. P. Rowland.
One Mile—5 min. 12 $\frac{3}{4}$ secs., F. Davis and E. E. Wharton.
High Jump—5 ft. 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ ins., B. Hume.

It was decided at this meeting to hold the first evening handicap under the auspices of the Association on Sunday, September 25th, at Hurlingham, at 4 p.m. The distance of this race will be 120 yards, and I hope that entries will be numerous, as I am convinced that when once started these handicaps will give athletics in the River Plate a tremendous impetus. An advertisement alluding to the handicap will be found in another column.

The Premio Europa was run for the last time on Sunday. Every year the entries have been getting less, a good sign in one way, as it shows that instead of having to import our racehorses we are now arriving at the time when we shall breed enough for home purposes and sufficiently good ones for exportation. Last year Camors, an imported horse, was top of the tree; this year, perhaps, the best horse is Esperanza, a South American bred one, who has had imported horses as his principal rivals. With the sires now in the country, there should be as well bred horses running on the Argentine turf and bred in the country, as any in the world.

Before causing such a paragraph to be printed as that which appeared after the description of the Hurlingham St. Leger Stakes in the "Times of Argentina" of September 9th, it would have been better if the sporting correspondent of that journal had inquired into the real facts of the case first. Had the "Times" young man even an elementary knowledge of racing affairs, he might have known that the stewards of a meeting have not power to suspend jockeys, trainers, or any other persons beyond the meeting at which they are officiating, although they can report them, if they think necessary, to the racing committee of the club, who are the ruling authorities of the course here as the stewards of the Jockey Club are at home.

As it has turned out, the paragraph referred to has done more harm than any amount of subsequent explanations can possibly rectify.

A meeting of the Racing Committee of Hurlingham was held yesterday to inquire into the decision of the stewards regarding the Hurlingham St. Leger Stakes. The committee agreed with the decision of the stewards of the day in disqualifying Enchantress and awarding the race to Brujo, but on hearing the evidence of the rider of the former, accepted his explanation of his riding of the mare and exonerated him from all blame in the matter. The committee expressed their regret that this explanation had not been made to the stewards of the meeting, as it would have materially helped them in arriving at a decision.

General Bosch has been determined to be first in the field with his two-year-olds, and has them already on view at Messrs Funes and Lagos'. Most of them are by Pan and Pihuen. The sale will take place next Friday week, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Five of Chivalrous' get will be sold at Mr James Casey's sale of two-year-olds, there should be plenty of competition for them. No less than twenty-nine sons and daughters of Phoenix will be brought to the hammer by Mr Kemmis next month; few breeders could show such a result from one stallion.

The annual general meeting of the Lanús Cricket Club was held on Monday evening in the large audit office at Plaza Constitución, kindly lent for the occasion by Mr Huxtable. In the absence of the President, Mr Barrow, and Vice-President, Mr Huxtable, neither of whom were able to attend, the chair was taken by Mr Brayshaw, when reports were read by the secretary and treasurer, and after the same had been discussed and adopted, bats were presented to Messrs Cornwall and Fothergill for having each made more than fifty in an innings. The election of officers for the present season then took place, with the following result:

President, F. W. Barrow.
Vice-President, W. C. Huxtable.
Treasurer, J. Brayshaw.
Secretary, D. Duncan.
Committee—H. Cornwall, F. Fothergill, W. Gregory, A. Lamont, R. C. Osborne.

The first number of "El Campo y el Sport" I quite overlooked on account of its exact likeness to our old and valued friend "The Live Stock Journal." In type, cover, and even advertisements, it is an exact copy of the English paper; whether it will contain as valuable information to estancieros as "The Live Stock Journal" does to English farmers we have yet to see.

An Argentine paper devoted to sport has but a limited scope, as beyond racing there is no sport or pastime that Argentines go in for to any extent. The portion of the paper devoted to camp interests, however, should prove interesting, though at present there is not much of interest in it to the average estanciero.

The Premio Coronel Martinez will be the classic race at Belgrano next Sunday. The race is for three-year olds, 2000 metres, and is worth $8000 added to a cup given by Sr. Emilio Casares to the first, $1000 to the second, and $500 to the third. Most of the best of the youngsters are entered, but writing so early in the week it is impossible to hazard an opinion as to the winner.

At present the filly Manon Lescaut is favourite, with Farandol, Araucano, and Ganadero most fancied next to her in the order named. Farandol, by the way, is one of the few colts sired at home and foaled in the country that looks like turning out really well. He ran for the first time on Sunday last, and ran well too.

The following are the handicaps allotted for next Sunday's meeting at Belgrano:

Premio San Vicente, 1300 metres: Porsenna 56 k., Acclamacion 56, North of Warwick 54, Monk 51, Gitana 51, Van Galen 51, Siva 51, High Life 50, Putú 49, Almirante 49, Arundel 46, Lucifer 46, Liniers 46, Irene 45, Light 43, Lancero 42, Cotopaxi 46, Kleber 40, La Capital 40, Fleurette 38.

Premio Napostá, 1400 metres: Pampa 55 k., Santa Lucia 54, Soldado 52, Remolacha 51, Junio 51, Valiente 49, Vendetta 49, Cábula 48, Sirince 48, Frobisher 48, Buridan 47, Woolf 47, Pillo 46, Nelly 46, Firmin 45, Holland 42, Pertoldi 42, Marionette 40.

Premio Azul, 1600 metres: Golondrina 62 k., Nubifer 60, India Muerta 55, Mariscal 54, Santa Lucia 52, Blackfriar 49, Sobremonte 49, Vendetta 49, Cábula 48, Calandria 47, Email 42, Clovis 42.

Premio La Gama, 1100 metres: Samuel 57 k., Le Torpilleur 57, Ceres 53, Arazá 53, Terminacion 52, Remolacha 51, Junio 51, Buridan 48, Barata 46, Polaina 43, Enchantress 42, Edelweiss 42.

Premio Pigue, 2000 metres: Zangano 53 k., Mio 53, Lego 52, Erato 50, Puygaveau 50, Valiente 48, The McGowan 48, Pharaon 47.

From a telegram received last Wednesday we learn that La Fleche won the St. Leger, but, as usual, although the telegram is careful to tell us the colour and owner of this celebrated filly, both of which are well enough known now by everybody interested in home racing, it does not tell us what was second and third, or if Orme ran or not. Most of the sporting papers at home speak of Orme as a very different colt since his illness to what he was before, and from his running in the Sussex Stakes many predicted his defeat in the St. Leger.

"La carta de catedráticos," or prize competition, has now become worth some $17,000. It commenced in April last and was then worth about $8000, but no one having won it has gone on increasing in value. To win the prize one has to spot the winner in all the races on the programme of the meeting for which the form is filled up. No one has managed to do this, though several have named six winners out of the seven events.

The competition is being run by the Sport Gonzalez, which charges two dollars for every form filled up.

I am afraid it will take a long time to teach Argentine trainers that the fearful long bar curb bits they use on their race horses are the very worst things that they could put in their mouths. San Carlos, like many others, refused to go into his on Sunday last, and though favourite for the Premio Camors did not even give his backers a run for their money. His trainer and jockey, however, would be the last to believe that it was their jawbreaking bit that lost them the race.

Spending Sunday afternoon playing in a cricket match is surely better than loafing, and playing a friendly game of polo can be no worse than going for a ride to which I take it the most strict Sabbatarian could not object. There is always any amount of mischief for idle hands to do, and it is surely better to go in for some healthy exercise or good sporting game on Sunday after six days work in the office, than to stay in bed on that day till the afternoon, and then loaf round cafés or clubs, which, were our games put a stop to, would be perhaps the way in which most of our homeless bachelors would have to spend their Sabbaths.

Let the promoters of the movement first interview Bank managers and heads of business houses and try and get a half holiday on one of the week days, and afterwards, if they succeed in their attempt, see what they can do in putting a stop to Sunday games, but not till then. If men have to work six long days with their heads, they require at least one on which to exercise their bodies, and for this purpose I do not see any harm in using the Sabbath as no other day is possible.

I hear that a movement is about to be set on foot to put a stop if possible to all games on Sundays. Most Englishmen would no doubt prefer to play their games on any other day in the week if it were possible, but in this country it is not. Banks and business houses, which do nearly all their business, at least the greater portion of it, with Argentines, find Saturday the busiest day in the week, so the English Saturday afternoon holiday in Buenos Aires is out of the question. Thank goodness there are few Englishmen who have not got their favourite sport or pastime, and to give up these entirely would be too much to expect, and so long as Sunday is the only available day in the week, with the exception of a holiday or feastday now and then, on which to play games, etc., I am afraid the movement will not meet with much success.

LAWN TENNIS

BUENOS AIRES L. T. C. v. ROSARIO.

The return match between Rosario and the Buenos Aires Lawn Tennis Club was played off at Rosario on the ground of the Rosario L. T. C. on Thursday, Sept. 8; and resulted in an easy victory for Rosario by twelve matches to three, one being left undecided.

In respect of weather play was conducted under much more favourable circumstances than on the former occasion in Buenos Aires. A rather trying cross wind which prevailed for some time in the early part of the day tended to make play a little uncertain and was the only draw back. In the afternoon the weather was perfect, being neither too hot for the players nor too cold for the spectators, who turned up in considerable force and watched the games with appreciative interest. The courts were in perfect order and great credit is due to those in charge of the arrangements which left nothing to be desired.

Messrs. Beaumont, Clarke, Day and others kindly gave their services as umpires and scorers; while members of the respective teams and others acted as linesmen, thus considerably lightening the somewhat onerous duties of the umpire and giving weight and finality to the decisions.

Buenos Aires was represented by Messrs. T. V. M. Knox and V. Ker Seymer; F. M. Still and J. D. O. Bridges; B. Verschoyle and Gumpert; and Keevil and Evill. It was a matter of general regret that the team was weakened by the absence of Messrs. A. P. Boyd and C. Hill who had played in the first match, but were unable to come up to Rosario for the return. The Buenos Aires men had made the dangerous experiment of splitting up the pairs which had played together on the former occasion; and it is questionable whether with an altered combination of partners they might not have done better.

Rosario was represented by Messrs. J. J. C. Daniel and W. O. Lucas; H. M. Rattray and J. S. Sheehan; H. Dale and J. Neil; and E. L. Conder and F. Francis; the team being strengthened as compared with the prior match by the addition of Messrs. Lucas and Dale, who had been unable to go down to Buenos Aires.

Play was started shortly after nine o'clock by Daniel and Lucas v. Verschoyle and Gumpert and by Knox and Ker Seymer v. Dale and Neil. The latter match which was looked upon as a certainty for B. A. proved one of the most interesting and best contested of the day. Knox's play was brilliant but uncertain; while for Rosario Dale played in magnificent form and B. A. only scored the match after set all and four all in the deciding set had been called.

The match, Still and Bridges v. Conder and Francis, also proved an interesting contest, each side winning a set by six to four. The ultimate win for Rosario was mainly due to Francis' excellent back play. Other well contested games were Still and Bridges v. Rattray and Sheehan; and the same pair v. Dale and Neil; while a good example of the curious ups and downs to which the game is subject, was furnished by Rattray and Sheehan v. Verschoyle and Gumpert; the Rosarios winning by 6-0, 5-6, 6-0.

For Buenos Aires the best work was done by Knox and Ker Seymer, Knox's play being especially good; though apparently by an attempt to make a brilliant stroke he occasionally sacrificed a point which more careful play might have made a certainty. F. M. Still who was not quite at his best and was handicapped by his partner being by no means up to his usual form, played a series of losing matches with admirable pluck and good temper.

For Rosario Daniel and Lucas made the record, winning every set they played; and Conder and Francis came out well with six sets to three.

The teams were entertained at lunch at the house of Mr Daniel, president of the R. L. T. C., and at the United Club. Tea was served on the ground during the afternoon, Mrs A. H. Baines presiding at the tea table.

The following is the result of the matches.

Knox and Seymer (B. A.) beat—
Dale and Neil	6-2	4-6	6-4
Conder and Francis	6-3	6-3
Rattray and Sheehan	6-1	6-5
Daniel and Lucas (R.) beat—
Verschoyle and Gumpert	6-4	6-3
Keevil and Evill	6-1	6-1
Knox and Ker Seymer	6-4	6-4
Conder and Francis (R.) beat—
Still and Bridges	6-4	4-6	6-2
Keevil and Evill	6-0	6-0
Verschoyle and Gumpert	6-5	6-3
Dale and Neil (R.) beat—
Verschoyle and Gumpert	2-6	6-1	7-5
Keevil and Evill	6-1	6-2
Still and Bridges	6-4	4-6	7-5
Rattray and Sheehan (R.) beat—
Keevil and Evill	6-0	6-1
Still and Bridges	6-5	2-6	6-2
Verschoyle and Gumpert	6-0	5-6	6-0

Daniel and Lucas v. Still and Bridges resulted in a draw, darkness stopping the match when Rosario had scored the first set 6-4 and Buenos Aires had scored two games to love in the second set.

MILE RACE—ROSARIO SPORTS

Buenos Aires, September 12, 1892.

To the Editor River Plate Sport and Pastime.

Dear Sir,— Referring to "Interested's" letter in your last issue, I have been instructed by the Committee of the Amateur Athletic Association to reply as follows:

"The Committee of the Amateur Athletic Association decide that, as Wharton fouled Davis, the Mile Championship is awarded to Davis; and they consider that the action of the Judges of the Rosario Athletic Club Meeting in awarding Wharton second prize, instead of disqualifying him, was due to the fact that the foul was unintentional, and that therefore in equity he was not disqualified."—Yours truly,

ERNEST A. DANVERS,
Hon. Sec. A. A. A.

BUENOS AIRES CRICKET CLUB—MARRIED v. SINGLE

Although the first match played by the club at Palermo promised to be interesting very few people witnessed it: until about four o'clock in the afternoon hardly any one except the players themselves were on the ground.

The Single men scored an easy win, as after putting together 224 runs for the loss of four wickets they declared their innings closed, and disposed of the Benedict's for the small total of eighty.

Mr D. Stokes, who went in first wicket down, and Mr E. R. Gifford, made a fine stand, 152 runs being on the board when they were finally separated. Mr Gifford being caught by Mr Low. His 76 was a capital innings, though he gave a chance when he had only made five. Only three of the Married team made double figures. Mr A. Boyd 12, Mr A. Calvo 14 and Mr Miller 15. The wicket proved to be in good order, and much improved since last season. Scores:

POLO

VENADO TUERTO.

The following took part in a practice game on the club ground in Venado Tuerto on Sunday, 29th ult.

H. W. St. John	G. Macdonald
Pancho Thompson	R. E. Miles
G. H. Isaac	R. J. Paeknam
H. E. Miles	R. M. Smyth
E. Brouckere	G. E. St. John
A. Turner	E. H. Dormer
W. F. Thompson.

Sides were changed nearly every quarter, thereby rendering an account of the game out of the question. Dormer at No. 2 and St. John back were playing well. The V.T., No. 1, of Hurlingham fame, was treating us to a variety entertainment, blowing a horn out of a one horse trap and schooling ponies over the jumps recently put up on the outside of the polo ground. I had a hideous dream some Sundays back about this same No. 1 and, I believe, the same horn. The No. 1 was driving round the V.T. Plaza in solitary state, blowing his horn, and the sun was high in the heavens. The day I had that dream we were playing polo at La Langosta and we were seven! Verily V.T. might stand for Vale of Tears instead of Wall-eyed Stag.

Telzey and Bridger are unavailable for the Rosas Tournament, and now a note comes from Hinchcliff, who has been weak enough to allow a pony to step on him, where or why I am in ignorance. This is the wording of the letter:—"I am black and very much swollen," (rather hideous to look upon) "and will not be able to leave my bed for ten days."

The following took part in a practice game on Sunday, 4th inst., at the V.T. ground:

1. E. H. Dormer	1. G. H. Isaac
2. G. St. John	2. R. E. Miles
3. H. E. Miles	3. A. de Brouckere
H. St. John (back).	R. Mc. C. Smyth (back).

In the first quarter H. St. John's side scored first, and on the sides being changed Smyth got on the ball and running right up the ground left it in front of goal, Isaac putting it through.

On sides being changed, Smyth's side again scored, after which the game went on pretty evenly, both sides scoring freely.

DERRY.

CORRESPONDENCE

MONTEVIDEO POLO CLUB

Buenos Aires, Sept. 12,

To the Editor of River Plate Sport and Pastime.

Dear Sir,

From Mr Owen's letter, which appeared in your last issue, it would seem that I had been taking upon myself the liberty of arranging club matches, and I shall be obliged by you publishing the following:

My stay at Montevideo coming to a close, and having had some very pleasant games with the members of the Montevideo Polo Club, I was desirous of returning the compliment, and accordingly made arrangements with you for a game in Buenos Aires, as you are well aware. The first gentleman I asked was Mr Owen, who declined my invitation, but four other gentlemen immediately accepted. A few days afterwards two of the members broke off the engagement, as they did not think it right that anyone should play in Buenos Aires. I, however, arranged for two members to come over with me, when a week before the day fixed a challenge was received from the Rovers Polo Club, so the Committee, instead of informing this club of their mistake in thinking us a Montevideo Polo Club team, immediately called a meeting and requested the two members who had promised to come over not to do so, as they might be taken for a representative team of the club. This I considered rather too strong, and I wrote to the Committee asking by what right they interfered in a private affair. And they have since been trying to explain themselves, but seem to have got into a hopeless muddle, as all their letters are contradictory.

Trusting that this will explain the part I took in the matter, and clear me of any attempt on my part of taking upon myself the duties of the Committee of the Montevideo Polo Club, I remain, yours truly,

ERNESTO DANVERS.

El Roble, Rojo, Sept. 11.

To the Editor River Plate Sport and Pastime,

Dear Sir,—

Perhaps you will permit me, through your columns, to suggest to the Committee of the Rosario Polo Club, the idea to run for the "Whirlwind Cup" in Cañada de Gomez as there is apparently no probability of holding polo races in Rosario in the near future.

One of the stipulations made by Mr Coffin and myself on handing over the Cup to the before-mentioned club was "that it should be competed for in Rosario;" but as it is entirely in the hands of the Committee of said club as a matter of course they can pass a bye-law to change the "venue." I think I can confidently be sure that Mr Coffin will coincide with my idea, as I feel certain he feels rather surprised in being the possessor of the Cup for three and a half years without seeing his colours in front a second time.

Why I suggest Cañada de Gomez is—it is more central, being quite as convenient for all the Buenos Aires clubs as Rosario; and equally accessible for the Roldan, Rosario, Petacas, North Santa Fé and Las Rosas clubs. It will also suit Venado Tuerto and Rojas if they wish to send.

The Cup is rather nice, thanks to Mr Coffin, and I should like to see him the final possessor of it; but I feel confident he would value it more if he could see engraved on it some names, such as Robson, Smyth, Even, Parry, Kinchant, Balfour, Ballesty, England, Day, etc., before he took it, and (for the old horse's sake) I would also.—Yours truly,

R. H. LETT.

Buenos Aires, Sept. 10, 1892.

To the Editor of River Plate Sport and Pastime.

Dear Sir,—

In reply to your correspondent's query about white "Tero-teros," I heard from a friend—some eighteen years ago—that he saw a pure white specimen near Bahia Blanca. More recently another one came under my observation in the Tuyu district.

Albinos (as they are technically called) are not uncommon amongst birds. In the South Kensington Museum there is a large case of such, including white ravens, crows, pheasants, blackbirds, starlings, etc., etc.

If I may trespass upon your space, let me add the two following cases. The first is that of a semi-albino female P. rubinus (which your readers will probably better recognise as the "Chirinchí," our familiar little scarlet flycatcher here); this bird in question nested three consecutive years in the same tree, which—as the species is strictly migratory, going north in the winter—presents a hitherto unsolved problem of instinct. That this tiny little waif should have found its way back every year, across the Province of Buenos Aires—if not all the way from Brazil—seems incredible, if its peculiar plumage had not placed the matter beyond a doubt. The other is that of rather a different nature, a Royal Bengal tiger, killed in India last year (it took some killing, too, but "that is another story," to quote Rudyard Kipling). The skin was nearly pure white, the stripes almost undistinguishable.—Yours truly,

F. Z. S.

DEATH OF PALO ALTO

The American papers announce the death, on the 21st of last month, of the great trotting horse Palo Alto, who had achieved the stallion mile record of 2min 8 $\frac{1}{2}$ sec. Palo Alto, bay, was by Electioneer—Dame Winnie, and foaled on Feb. 15, 1882, at the famous stud farm of Governor Stanford. The horse, a lightly-built animal, was broken to harness as a yearling, and at once displayed great promise. Subsequently, and for years, his career on the trotting track was most brilliant, though his trainer all along experienced considerable difficulty and anxiety through a weak fore-leg, and it was not till last year that Palo Alto attained the summit of his fame. Last October, after a year at the stud, Palo Alto was again put on the track, and on the 6th of the month covered a mile in 2min 12 $\frac{1}{2}$ sec. A fortnight later this was improved to 2min 11 $\frac{1}{2}$ sec, and in a week the mile was done in 2min 10sec. On Nov. 3 the time was reduced by half a second, and three subsequent records were 2min 10 $\frac{1}{4}$ sec, 2min 9 $\frac{1}{2}$ sec, then 2min 10 $\frac{1}{2}$ sec on the 16th of the month, winding up with 2min 8 $\frac{1}{2}$ sec on the following day. This was altogether a marvellous performance, when it is considered that the horse had been practically infirm for years, and thus his great achievements in the last year of his career were distinctly attributable to hereditary courage. Only two years ago Mr Stanford refused \$100,000 for his favourite, who died from an attack of pneumonia. Mr Stanford possesses three brothers of Palo Alto.

ESTANCIA AND COLONY.

..* We cordially invite and will be very pleased to receive communications for this column.

A correspondent in the Chaco Central writes that the Colonia Gandolfi is going on very well, the sugar cane being planted in large quantities. A sawmill plant is also about to be erected and the installation is expected to be completed within a month or so. The wood grown in these parts, if properly cut and seasoned, would, for cabinet work, rival any that can be imported into the country, so we look forward to the new industry going ahead. An immense amount of cane is ready to go forward from the colony, which our correspondent states is a particularly pleasant dwelling place.

A subscriber in Pergamino has kindly favoured us with the result of the "Remate-Peria" at San Miguel, Cepeda, the establishment belonging to Messrs Ocampo Bros., which was held on Sunday the 4th inst. As usual the proceedings commenced with an excellent breakfast. As regards animation in bidding, and the prices obtained for the stock sold, this was the worst auction Messrs Ocampo have as yet had. At the same time the prices obtained were good, especially for sheep, when it is taken into consideration that, as at the Las Rosas fair, breeders only sent in the "culls" of their flocks. The principal buyers were Messrs O'Toole, Echague, Echeverria, Doyle, Mooney, Estrugemon, Young, Lorenzo, Pereira, Casey, Fox, Vescia, Dupuy, Juarez and Kehoe.

Twenty-nine Rambouillet rams of the "Steiger" (German) breed, whose sires were awarded a prize medal at the Exposition Internacional, averaged $245 each; forty-six others of the same averaged $88.50 each; fourteen rams of a Rambouillet and Negrette cross averaged $117, and ten others $48; thirty-eight Negrette rams made $35 each, and ten Rambouillets $100 each. Fifty Rambouillets averaged $20 each, and fifty-two more $26.40 each, several other lots making an average of from $16 to 20. Twenty Lincoln (three-quarters and seven-eighths bred) rams sold well at prices ranging $110 to 150, averaging $123 each, and ninety others, three-quarter bred, at an average of $32.60 and 24.25 each. Rambouillet ewes sold at $23, "borregas" at $12 and 9. Some three-quarter Lincoln ewes made $17 and $16 each, a very high price; others sold at $9 and $14.

Only a few of the bulls put up for sale reached their reserve, although some of them were exceedingly good, well shaped animals. Mr O'Toole offered $500 for a red imported Durham bull, but this price was not accepted. A roan and a red made respectively $190 and $150, the latter being worth at least double. None of the Hereford bulls were sold. They were a good lot and all entered in the Herd book. Don Juan and Pergamino were very nice animals, but Messrs Ocampo evidently wanted boom prices, as the reserves on the pair were $800 and $500. Some forty seven-eighths Durham bulls, badly shaped and of very bad colour, made $40 each, but none of them were fit for sires. Thirty-five Hereford bulls, about twenty of which were fairly good animals, fetched $45 each, and fifty half-bred Durham heifers went cheap at $26 each. Forty very thin and stunted Hereford heifers served by thoroughbred bulls, made the high price of $24 each. These last animals were very like Kerry or Scotch mountain cattle in both size and form.

The only horses sold were four stallions and geldings broken to harness, of seven-eighths Percheron blood, sons of imported sires and of half-bred Cleveland mares. A grey stallion made $280, a bay gelding $300, and another $250, a grey 3-year-old horse, which was shown in a very heavy cart loaded with seventy handbay posts, which he started and stopped repeatedly on a stiff incline, went very cheap at $250; he was worth a lot of money. Some quarter and half-bred potros, of which there were two hundred, were not sold; they were unquestionably refuse weeded out for sale. The last lot in the catalogue comprised five hundred novillos, which were not sold. They were in poor condition, and attracted a no higher bid than $25.

The new Meat Market paid Sr. Bernardo Frigoyen the other day $15 each for a troop of sheep, which we should imagine almost a record price for sheep for slaughter. Each sheep gave from 75 to 100 kilos of meat.

Estancia Beef and Mutton

Sociedad Abasto de Carne de Buenos Aires

(BUENOS AIRES MEAT SUPPLY CO., LD.)

Market at Paseo Colon and Venezuela

Meat will be SOLD BY WEIGHT and at moderate prices.

The Company will supply only meat of the BEST QUALITY from animals that have been rested in 'potreros' some days previous to being killed.

The cattle will be slaughtered in special slaughter houses and the carcasses brought to the market with every precaution as to cleanliness, etc.

The Company will sell WHOLESALE and RETAIL. The market will be open to the public from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. and orders can be sent by Telephone direct to the deposit.

Mr Martin Donos has sold 2700 mestizo novillos to Sr. M. Anstee from his establishment in Olavarria. The novillos are from two and a half years old, and were sold at $22 each.

The second lot of the "Plomer" Rambouillet rams belonging to Messrs Lozano Brothers were sold by Messrs Bullrich and Co. last week, and made the splendid total of $15,350 for the twenty sold. The highest price was $2600 and the lowest $350, and the average for each animal was $767.50.

The "Standard" reports a sale of a thousand novillos in the far South at $25 each, and a large "rodeo" of cattle in Bahia Blanca, numbering four thousand head, with ten per cent. of novillos, were sold "al corte" at $10. Good mestizo sheep in the Southern partidos have been sold in various flocks at from $3.50 to $5 "al corte," a price under which no good mestizo flocks can be bought.

During the past week maize has risen again in price considerably, and $7 the 100 kilos has been nearly reached in Rosario. It is the general opinion, however, that the price will fall and $5.50 will soon be nearer the figure.

As an example of the hardihood and fecundity of the Shropshire sheep, Mr W. Eaton, Oakland, Tasmania, relates that the shearing ewes exported by him last November, eight lambs from four shearing ewes, all dropped on board ship, and seven lambs out of the eight reached their destination alive and well, after ninety days quarantine at Hobart.

The dry weather is causing an immense amount of loss in the camp, especially in the south of Buenos Aires. In Azul, Tandil, Juarez, Rauch, and other parts, the "lombritz" is making terrible havoc amongst the sheep, some flocks having lost fifty per cent. of their number, and in the North and West scab is attacking the sheep to a great extent. If rain does not fall shortly the losses to estancieros will be enormous.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL NOTES

"A policeman's life is not a happy one," says the immortal Gilbert, but what a glorious existence is the plee'ceman's when compared to a poor critic who has to give a stony-hearted editor two columns, and it cannot be said that the past week's record has afforded much in the way of news, in fact it has been absolute by blank, and little enough of interest seems likely to be forthcoming in the near future. There is, however, one cause for congratulation: the Nacional Company, which is now in Rosario, will shortly return, when they will produce the much talked of new opera, "Il Leone di Venezia."

On Saturday night, amongst other theatres, I visited the San Martin, "La Bella Elena" being the show on the boards. It may be that the performance, which was decidedly handicapped by evident want of rehearsal, the prompter's voice being frequently to the fore. It was not a satisfactory rendering of Offenbach's opera, but the audience, like myself, were, or appeared to be, distinctly bored, though Razzoli, as Achille in a regulation crush hat and eye glass was, whether singing, dancing or engaged in "business," always to be depended upon as amusing clever and bright.

Sunday night the scene was completely changed. Auber's "Fra Diavolo" is ever sure to attract a good following, and with Pagano in the title role and Sras. Calvé and Fenoglio, as Zerlina and Ladi Pamela respectively, not forgetting Razzoli, who, as Lord Rochbourg, gave a splendid caricature of the Englishman abroad. A full house was the result. The last time I saw this opera at the San Martin, Annovazi was taking the part of the title role, but well as he then played it, the present change is an improvement. The personal appearance of Pagano is a gain to the satisfactory realisation of this light-fingered Don Juan (for as such, rightly or wrongly, I always view Fra Diavolo), and he adds to his beau air a naturally fine voice, well handled. With this and a passing word of praise for the brigands, Sras. Cresari and Migliuzzi, who are extremely comical and brought down the house in the looking-glass duet, I must take leave of what was all through an A 1 performance.

The Emanuel Dramatic Company made their bow at the Odeon on Saturday night and received a warm welcome from a crowded house. The "Dame aux Camelias" went well and deserved the applause it received, Sra. Reiter simply holding her audience spell bound in the death scene, which was almost too realistic, and gave me a creepy and uncomfortable feeling.

Sr. Emmanuel had an uphill task with the thankless task of Armand, which gave him but little scope for the display of histrionic talent.

"Imitation is the sincerest form of flattery" but it is rarely that the genuine-article is improved upon by the imitator such however is the case in regard to nigger minstrelsy, if the performance by real niggers "Composed ob de bestest ob Stars ob de hole Creation ob de Wo'ld," to quote the advertisement, can be taken as a criterion. This troupe gave a performance at the "Teatro Vaudeville" on Monday in aid of the Church of the Pasionist Fathers. Criticism would be unkind, but the troupe that performed at Quilmes can pluck up courage for their show, which was not all that could be desired, was far in advance of the one under notice.

Was there no stage manager who could have stopped the voluble flow of bad language which, proceeding from behind the scenes was audible throughout the hall.

The Fancy Dress Dance in aid of the funds of the British and American Benevolent Society which was to have come off on October 5, has I hear been indefinitely postponed, there being too few subscribers. Well $30 is quite enough for an average dance, especially when one considers that they get three of the best for the same amount at the Belgrano Cinderellas.

The date for the Buenos Aires Amateur Dramatic Club's performance of "Caste" is not yet fixed, but will probably take place between the 25th and 30th inst.

An organ recital will be given at St. John's Church on Thursday the 29th inst., such names as Mme. Dunant and Miss Lumb as vocalists, and Sr. Pini, violin, should mean a large congregation and a considerable addition to the "New Organ Fund" in aid of which I hear a very swaggar concert will be given, the scene of operations probably being "The Odeon."

THE MAN IN THE STALLS.

CHAPTERS IN ZOOTECHNY

(Based on Sanson's "Traite de Zootechnie.")

I.

The word Zootechny signifies the science of cattle; or, in other words, zootechny is the branch of zoology which treats of those of our domestic animals which are used in or in connection with the farm, and are produced by breeders or agriculturalists with the object of getting direct benefit either from them or their work, and in view of the fact that the advantageous disposal of live stock depends on various economic as well as natural laws; zootechny may be looked upon in some sense as a branch of political economy.

The problem to be solved by zootechny is that of producing at the lowest possible cost horses, cattle, sheep, goats, pigs, and similar animals in the best conditions for realizing a profitable result on the capital and labour employed.

Considered in this light, "domestic animals are machines, and that not in a figurative sense, but in the most rigorous application of the word. They are machines just as much as railway engines, distillators, or other apparatus. They are machines giving recognised services and productions. Animals eat, that is, they are machines which consume or burn a certain quantity of fuel. These are locomotives obeying the ordinary laws of dynamics. They give milk, or meat, or force, and in this way give a distinct return for the expenses laid out upon them. These animated machines are constructed of determined elements or organs which bear distinct relations to each other and operate by virtue of certain laws in order to give useful work. The activity, or better, the life of these machines, has, according to physiology, four great functions: nutrition, reproduction, sensibility, and locomotion. These vital functions, therefore, fall within the study of zootechny. But as these machines have been created by other hands than ours, we have not to fix but to learn the laws which govern their existence and their development. If we do not learn these laws we shall lose our time, our capital, and our trouble. The more we know of the construction of these machines, of the laws which govern them, their needs, and their resources, the better results shall we obtain from the efforts which we put forth in their production."

One great difference, however, between ordinary machinery and the living machines is that in the former there is no reproduction but a certain part of the profits has to be set aside year by year to cover depreciation, whereas in the case of animals there is a constant natural reproduction and increase.

The economic functions of domestic animals are those in virtue of which they supply their breeders or the public in general with their production and service as motive force: meat, milk, wool, hair, skins, hides, &c., and, lastly, manure, or fertilizing material.

Very early in the history of the human race they undertook the domestication of the animals, so early, that since the stone age it may be said that no animals have been domesticated, and that those which then remained undomesticated remain so to the present day.

What civilization is to the man domestication is to the animal. The economic functions of domestic animals are, then, as old as the beginnings of human civilization, the earliest men having used their flesh for food and their skins for clothing.

The physiological functions of domestic animals are those of individual preservation and reproduction of the species, and as these functions are absolutely essential to the very existence of the animals, it is the first duty of the student of zootechny to make himself acquainted with the laws which govern and regulate them. An inquiry into the general structure of the animal body is therefore the first step towards a correct understanding of our subject.

The animal tissues are liquid or solid. The former are only interesting from a chemical point of view, but the latter give rise to the various organs of the body, and are necessary to be studied more in detail.

The adipose or fat tissue is not found free in the animal organism. It is enclosed in cells, which are rarely isolated, in the animal, although in the butter contained in milk we have an example of such isolated cells. Adipose tissue is neither contractile nor sensitive, and the properties such as colour, consistence, taste and smell vary in different animals according to the composition and relative proportions of stearine, margarine, &c., which compose the tissue. The suet of mutton and beef contain both stearine and margarine in considerable proportions, hence its consistence; whereas the fat of the horse and the pig contains a large proportion of oleine, which is fluid. Adipose tissue is developed chiefly about the base of the heart, around the kidneys, in the abdomen, in the sub-cutaneous conjunctive tissue, and amongst the muscles. This fat serves to keep up the animal heat, and is carried away by the circulation for that object in the absence of other food.

Muscular tissue, or, as it is commonly called, flesh, possesses irritability and is contractile, a property which it retains for some time after being separated from the body. The flesh is composed of isolated fibres, composed, in turn, of elementary fibrillae. These last united together form secondary fibres, whose further reunion form, when further united by conjunctive tissue, muscle.

There are two kinds of muscles, differing in the structure of their primitive fibres. One kind, forming the muscles of the viscera, are entirely removed from the action and influence of the will; the other kind, transversely striated or striped, contract under the influence of the will and form the muscles of the locomotory apparatus, &c. The striped muscles are red in colour and nourished by the blood circulation and furnished with ramifications of the nervous system. The power of contraction of a muscle does not depend on its size but on the number of its fibres, as mere size may be due to the infiltration of fatty matter. This is the reason that the fattest animals are relatively the weakest.

Cartilage, or gristle, is another kind of tissue of simple construction. Some cartilages are permanent, and enter into the construction of the joints prolonging or completing the bony structure. In advanced age they may become ossified. There are also certain cartilages which are such only in the early stages of life and afterwards become bones. As the cartilages have no vessels they are very difficult and very seldom replaced or repaired in case of injury.

Bony tissue is formed by an aggregation of inorganic elements or calcareous salts upon an organic base of temporary cartilage. The bones contain about 55 per cent of phosphate of lime, 12 per cent of carbonate of lime, 28 per cent of cartilage and 31 per cent of organic matter, the remainder being soluble salts and fat.

The bone ash or mineral constituents reach sometimes as high as 70 per cent. The marrow or bone fat is contained in the medullary cavities of the bone. The bones are generally surrounded by a membrane called the periosteum, upon which the nutrition of the bony substance depends.

The bony structure is generally soft and cartilaginous at birth, and only hardens after birth by the deposit of the calcareous salts referred to.

THE DROUGHT AND MEANS OF OBVIATING IT.

In your issue of July 30 I observe, under the heading Special Correspondence, the following paragraph:

"Prospects of Farmers.—The sheep and cattle breeders for the winter are, I am sorry to say, looking gloomy, owing to the general drought; prayers are being offered in the churches. The mortality in the herds and flocks is not great as yet, but if the 'seca' lasts much longer it certainly will be, as the severe frosts have withered the grass, and there is considerable demand for fresh pastures to save the ovine and bovine property of estancieros."

I may remark that such a state of affairs pertains only to farming when conducted in a very primitive and barbarous fashion, a system that relies entirely on the bountiful and beneficent provision of nature unaided by the resources of art and science. Therefore, when cattle and sheep perish in great numbers from the want of water and food owing to drought, it is owing generally to preventable causes which, under a good and intelligent system of husbandry, ought to be almost entirely within human control under ordinary circumstances. In tropical or semi-tropical countries the rains occur periodically, but when the rain is delayed or deficient, or the summer heat unusually excessive, droughts will inevitably repeat themselves from time to time, as it is well known. They may be naturally expected in the normal course of events, and, therefore, under a wise and prudent system of farming should be provided against as much as possible, or the estancieros will most certainly court disaster. In all such countries possessing any pretensions to advancement or civilisation provision is invariably made for the dry or winter season, and for seasons of unwonted droughts. At the Cape of Good Hope, in Australia, New Zealand, and other countries that could be named, this useful practice is always pursued where the lives of large flocks and herds of cattle and sheep are at stake. Indeed, it is essentially necessary, as the estancieros will find out in time to their cost, unless they have recourse to the same artificial means and measures.

These artificial measures resolve themselves mainly into three, viz.:—(1) Irrigation; (2) the making of hay or silages; and (3) by the cultivation of such crops as pumpkins, potatoes, mangel-wurzel, cassava or manioc, turnips, carrots, parsnips, or such like plants whose roots strike sufficiently deeply into the ground as to reach the subsoil moisture. Amongst others may be enumerated clover, lucerne, and particularly, lathyrus silvestris, the facile princeps forage plant which is indigenous to South America, and whose roots extend to 5 or 6 ft. into the soil. A perennial forage plant which I strongly recommended to the notice of your readers some time ago in great detail in the South American Journal of August 30, 1890.

Now, as I have said before, in all tropical or semi-tropical countries irrigation is essential—a sine qua non for vegetable growth of all kinds in the dry and winter seasons. Nowhere is the fact more strikingly exemplified than in India and Egypt. If it were not for the system of irrigation carried on in those countries the soil would be absolutely sterile and unproductive for a great portion of the year. The water is drawn up from wells, or from canals or rivers; a rude water-wheel of simple construction with earthen pots affixed being the mechanical means employed for the purpose, the wheel being turned by a bullock or horse, moving in a circuit.

In Argentina I believe the subsoil water is stored up in vast quantities at no great depth from the surface—a few feet indeed—in many localities, affording an almost inexhaustible reservoir for the supply of both animals and vegetables. The water being there it only requires to be drawn to the surface. To the ingenious "estancieros" the simple water-wheel may commend itself perhaps, but I want especially to bring to the notice of Argentine farmers the great practical and speedy utility of the Abyssinian tube well, Norton's Patent, for the purpose in preference to all other methods. Its advantages are immense. Le grand and Sutcliff, Magdala Works, 100, Bunhill, E.C., are the manufacturers. Tube wells are specially adapted to such a country as Argentina, where the soil for the most part is composed of vegetable matter or humus, and extends to great depths. These pumps can also be recommended to railway companies, and, indeed, for household purposes generally. The greater the depth from which the water supplies are drawn, the greater the purity and safety of the water, as a rule, for drinking purposes, and the freer it is, without doubt, from all surface contaminations and pollutions, which are the prolific sources of all such fell and ravaging diseases as cholera, typhoid, yellow fever, and many other maladies which could be mentioned. The history of these Abyssinian tube wells is very simple. They were first invented and used by the Government in the Abyssinian campaign, hence the name, and with perfect success, although the soil was very hard and stony and not at all so favourable for their use as it might have been. Indeed, the pumps were put to a crucial test on this occasion. The apparatus consists merely of a hollow tube, which can be driven into the ground to any depth desirable by a mechanical driver or hammer, which is affixed to the machine. The apparatus can be brought into use within a few hours and the supply of water by its means is superabundant. As a matter of course it, is sometimes necessary to prospect the ground in several places before the water is tapped, the tube being easily extracted and reinserted.

My recommendation is entirely of a disinterested character as far as the manufacturers are concerned, but I have an interest in the agricultural well-being of the country, and am desirous of seeing it succeed and prosper, and all I can say, if I were a resident in that country, whether as a farmer or a householder, I should certainly, most unhesitatingly, set up a Norton's tube well for sanitary as well as agricultural reasons. Railway companies would also do well to make experiments of such sources of water supply, not only for its quantity, but quality, as it is possible they would in this way obtain a purer supply and freer from those saline matters which corrode and wear away their boilers so fast. Norton's pump can be worked by muscular power as by the hand, or by an ox or a horse, but it may be made automatic, by attaching an American or other windmill, steam engine, etc.

With regard to making hay for silage this should always be done in order to store up and supplement the forage which always runs short in the winter, and so stints the cattle and sheep in the proper amount of nourishment, that the ordinary and steady growth and development of the system is arrested and checked. So much so that no after abundant supplies of a food ever suffices for their complete recovery and restitution. This remark also applies to the growth of wool, which is but a product of the animal economy. Silage can be made of any green vegetable matter so long as it is well pressed down in a pit or built up as a stack, so as to exclude the air and not allowed to ferment at too high a temperature. Books containing full instructions on the making of silage are readily procurable, if necessary. Silage is always very much improved by the addition of salt, which not only acts as an antiseptic in preventing the formation of fungoid vegetable growths such as moulds, but the forage becomes more appetising to the animals themselves, and also assists very materially their digestion. Silage is also improved by the admixture, either at the time of making the silage or when used for consumption, of such articles as chopped hay, straw, and especially the stalks of the millet and maize treated in the same way. The stalks of the millet, sugar cane, and maize, and, indeed, all grasses, contain a large quantity of saccharine matter, which is very nutritious and fattening.

I have also spoken of the advantage of succulent root crops, especially pumpkins, cassava, ordinary potatoes, yams, the batata or sweet potato, and beet root, or mangel-wurzel. In Australia, New Zealand, North America, and the Cape of Good Hope, pumpkins are extensively grown as winter foods. The cassava is very much used for the same purpose in the Mauritius, and in other countries. It is largely cultivated besides for its economic qualities as a starch producer, from which that article is manufactured in large quantities. Potatoes, beet-root, mangel-wurzel, and the other roots before mentioned, grow in most warm countries, and in many places the carrot and parsnip will withstand a great deal of drought from their deep tap-roots. Such crops as clover, lucerne, rape, and many others, and, indeed, any green crop whatever, can be grown all the year round, provided they are given a sufficient amount of moisture in the way of irrigation, the great desideratum in all hot countries, and the one indisputably and indispensably necessary, if farming is to be successful and profitable in such quarters of the globe.

Before concluding, I would remark that other auxiliary measures are sometimes adopted for tiding over the shortness of green stuff in times of drought, such as carob pods or meal oil cakes of various sorts, such as linseed, cotton, rape, and mustard cakes. Mustard grows like a weed, the oil is roughly expressed from the seed, and used for lighting purposes, and the cake given to the cattle, especially in India and Africa. If the Argentines would only adapt themselves to the circumstances in which they live, use a little prevision, and adopt the same advanced and enlightened measures of agriculture and pastoral operations, we should soon cease to hear such sad lamentations of drought and the losses of flocks and herds of sheep and cattle and the ruin of "estancieros." Let us hope the Argentines will be wise in their generation, and improve their agriculture after the best methods, which is the outcome of long experience by others in cattle and sheep-rearing countries, and riches and success will be their assured reward.—"Agriculturist" in the South American Journal of August 6.

ATHLETIC TRAINING

We have now to see what space of time should elapse after a meal before any hard exercise is taken. It is impossible to draw a strict line, as natures differ materially as regards the conditions of body under which they can best undergo fatigue. A man with a good digestion can take his exercise at a much earlier hour than the unfortunate owner of a bad one; and thin men can generally commence sooner than their stouter brethren.

The state of the stomach is the chief point to be considered; and the time that the practice should be done depends upon the distance to be run. The different results of this analysis of temperament, constitution, and exercise are so astonishing that it would be difficult to find six athletes who, after having dined together, would take their practice at such different times after meals as to cause three hours to elapse between the work of the first and that of the last. It is impossible therefore for me to name any particular time for an athlete to take exercise after feeding, but must leave it to his own judgment, as every one knows his digestive powers best.

The following will be useful data to go upon: Sprint races should be run upon a strong stomach, say a couple of hours after a meal would be the best time to take practice. For distances under 700 yards the time should be between two or three hours, but above that distance at least three and a half hours should have passed.

The reason for the difference in time is that strength rather than wind is required for short distances, and therefore less time is required for digestion, and vice-versa.

If by some unforeseen circumstance you are not able to go out at your fixed time, by say a couple of hours, it will be the best to leave practising alone till the next night, as serious injury to the system may occur.

We have now fixed our food and digestion, so we will go right ahead and get to the hard work, and as it is best to begin at the beginning we will first tackle "starting." How many a race is won or lost by the way a man starts, and I feel it my bounden duty to inform the running men of to-day in the River Plate, that there are not half a dozen of them who know the way to start properly; and why is this? For the simple reason that they don't take any practise at it. Starting requires as much practise as running does. There are two essential points in starting, which are: don't go till the pistol is fired, and then go as if you had come out of the pistol. How few of my readers know how to "stand on a mark," and the exhibitions you sometimes make are really lamentable. How many of you lately have been "put back" by the lynx-eyed and hard-hearted marksmen, and you have only yourselves to blame. Devote more time to practising starts. Professional runners devote three or four hours daily to this one particular, and yet some of our amateurs will only make three or four attempts, and some not one.

In a sprint race from 100 to 150 yards, a good start often foreshadows the victory. When possible it is always best to get some friend to practise starts with and another person to give some signal, such as a clap of the hands, knocking two stones together, &c.

The best way of starting is with the body held in a slightly stooping position, inclining forward a little, with the right foot placed about twelve inches behind the left. Standing thus lightly on the toes the most strained attention should be paid to the expected signal, and every muscle prepared to act at the moment of its delivery. Don't look at your adversaries; keep your eyes in front of you, and don't move because someone else does. Ineffectual "breakings away" only tend to a loss of strength and breath.

This style of starting should be practised most assiduously on every available occasion, particular attention being given to the length of the first three strides. This is a most useful and telling point. One of the best men at starting I ever knew, an amateur champion and record breaker in his day, would cover more ground in his first three strides than in any other three during the race.

The amount of actual practise that a man should take preparing for a sprint race should vary each day, top speed being always adopted for a 100 or 120 yards race. Sharp bursts from 40 to 60 yards, with an occasional feeler at 80 and 100, will soon cause an improvement in form. One should never allow the practise of two successive days to be exactly similar in character, and, above all things, never be sloven in the performance of a single yard, as otherwise you may just as well stay at home.

A quarter of a mile is a favourite race, but how many men turn out efficient for the race? One reason of this is the impossibility of attaining any degree of excellence at a quarter without careful training, as it requires highest speed and some good staying power for its successful performance.

During the early days of a preparation the full distance must be traversed nearly every day but without any racing or trials taking place. Speed must be a secondary consideration at first, form and style being the principal objects of attention. You must work your muscles up gradually before you put them to any severe strain, therefore at first take easy work, but pay particular attention to the correctness in which you run. Always try and run in your best style, as if the eyes of all the pretty girls in Buenos Aires were upon you. After a few days, when you feel yourself getting hard, increase the pace towards the end of the distance. Having got your legs and wind right, shorten the distance but increase the speed at commencement and finish, but above all things study your form.

We will now suppose you to be getting into condition, so go the distance at full speed twice a week, if possible with some kind friend to pull you out; but I will give you a word of warning, that when you feel yourself played out during practice, stop running at once, as one of our best runners in England has stated "that however game a man may be, or however well in health, it takes more of the steel out of him than ten days of careful nursing will restore."

When the day of the sports is approaching go a half or two-thirds the distance every day at full speed and frequently practice starts. In fact, after every evening's spin, a few starts should be practised, as it improves the speed, seasons the muscles, and tends to inspire the athlete with the pluck and nerve so especially requisite.

There is one point I must tell you of now, as I hope the above hints will be useful to some of those who intend running in the approaching handicaps, and that is, after your exercise get a good rub down with a towel, or, better still, get a friend to rub you down with the palms of his hands. Rubbing should be continued until the skin glows. If you cannot obtain the services of anyone for this task, you can easily manage it for yourself by the aid of a long towel.

YUBA DAM, SIR.

A YARN FROM THE YUBA.

(TRANSLATED FROM THE MISSOURI DIALECT.)

Away down in the foothills of the Sierra Nevada, just north of the Central Pacific, lies the prosperous county of Yuba. Yuba was a lively place in the flush times of the Pacific Slope, when gold was plenty and the song of the six-shooter was heard in the land. The Yuba, American, and Plumas rivers were forced to yield up their golden treasures by the hands of the hardy miners who congregated there from all parts of the world. Fortunes were made in an incredibly short space of time and often lost again over the fatal green cloth at Sacramento, Placerville or Frisco. Wages ran as high as $20 a day; $10 a day was paid for board, and most other things were proportionately high.

Thousands of people in the east and in the Great Mississippi Valley broke up their homes, placed their lares and penates in an ox-waggon, and heading out west from the Missouri river to the northern route by the Platte for California, the El Dorado of the far west. Many and varied were the sufferings of this vanguard of civilisation. Hostilities with Indians through whose territory they had to pass; want of water on the arid deserts of Utah and Nevada and the bad lands of Nebraska; loss of oxen through scarcity of feed, were some of the trials of the bold army of argonauts, who, following the star of Empire in its westward course, ever pushed their restless way undaunted towards the setting sun.

Six months were often consumed in the journey from the Missouri river, and often it happened that the caravan, after struggling wearily across the great desert of the interior basin, would arrive too late in the season and would see the snow-covered Sierra Nevada looming up in inaccessible grandeur before them. Many were the sad tragedies enacted in the pine forests and rocky cañons of the Sierra when almost within sight of the promised land, as witness the awful sufferings of the Donner party.

The discovery of gold in Sutter's mill-race was the turning point in the history of California, and from that day the sadly degenerate descendants of the conquistadores steadily gave way before the resistless elements of Anglo-Saxon civilisation. One district after another was opened up by the adventurous prospectors, and its treasures laid bare, and nowhere did they reap a richer harvest than on the eastern tributaries of the Sacramento.

But the glory of Yuba hath departed and the old-time stamping grounds echo no more to the rattle of the pan and cradle, the musical hum of revolver bullets, or the ornate language of the miner. Old timers who followed the free, glad life of the miner in the bonanza times, have retired to the newer fields of Colorado, Idaho, and Arizona, or hang round the old camps still in the hope of "striking it rich," and regale the despised "emigrant" with accounts of blood curdling adventures which befell them along in the fall of '49 or the spring of '50, and when it comes to pure bed rock lying—well, Solomon in all his glory, and so on.

In the early days the miners on the Yuba built a large dam on the river to enable them to work the mines to advantage, and the place being good mining ground, a small settlement sprang up, flourished, and finally became quite a burgh. This town was known unto fame as Yuba Dam.

Now come the harrowing details of my story. A traveller from the gorgeous sage-brush plains of Nevada happened along the Yuba trail one bright and lovely morn as the birds were asinging on the trees, meditating ponderously on the mutability of mundane affairs, the perihelion of Jupiter and the evanescent nature of the American dollar. As he plodded his weary way along the trail into Yuba Dam, he observed by the roadside a small child engaged in the pastime of culling wild flowers and chasing the live gopher and cheerful chipmunk from rock to rock. He accosted the fair cherub with the following accostation: "Small child," quoth he, "can you tell me the name of this here burgh?" The child turned a face of angelic loveliness towards the stranger. Yea, my friends, a look of wondrous beauty and innocence was upon that fair child's face as she answered in the mellifluous tone peculiar to the Californian youth, "Yuba Dam, sir." The stranger started in horror. Could he have heard aright? Was it possible that this sweet babe, apparently in the blooming innocence of childhood, could have used such language? Was this the result of free education, female suffrage, protective tariff, and so on? No, surely not, perish the thought.

He repeated the question in dove-like tones, and quick as the flight of a jackass rabbit came the answer, "Yuba Dam, sir." The hardy sojourner in a foreign clime turned sadly away with tears of heartfelt sorrow pouring down his manly features and dropping with a monotonous plash on the red dust of the mountain road.

He sped onwards. Hard by the wayside was a comly youth engaged in the task of riving shakes from a stately cedar that lay prone upon the earth. Unto him cometh the bold sage-brusher. "Young man," said he, "kindly tell me the name of this town?" and again came the awful stereotyped reply, "Yuba Dam, sir."

A sad, sad look was upon the wayfarers classic countenance as he skipped wildly down the trail towards the town. He turned a corner; lo, tripping demurely up the trail came a maiden passing fair to look upon. Her face was as the wild, wild rose; her lovely form was graceful as that of a rattlesnake. In point of fact, from the glory of her golden hair even unto her dainty feet, she was "all there." The stranger paused in his wild career, he thought of the good old song, "And the red was on your lip, Mary, and the lovelight in your eye." He was sentimentally paralysed. Deffing his sombrero with an air of true western grace, he hailed the speeding dimity. "Daughter of man," quoth he, "wilt thou inform me of the name of this huge city, whose portals I am even now about to enter." The Yuba damsel turned a pair of lovely rose-coloured eyes upon the wild borderer. He thought some more about Mary: Her rose-bud lips parted, and sweet as a Mexican mango was her answer, "Yuba Dam, sir." The stranger reeled wildly and leaned for support on the shoulder of an aged bull frog who had been taking it all in.

Eventually recovering by the aid of some Kentucky medicine that he happened to have concealed about his person, he wended his way onward until he met an aged, aged man; a man whose step was tremulous, weak and uncertain; a man who had seen all earthly joys fade and pass away, and all his old friends go down into the calm and silent tomb. "Aged man," queried the frontiersman, "what under the sun is the name of this town?" In the quavering accents of old age came the mournful reply, "Yuba Dam, sir." The sad, careworn look, faded from the stranger's eye; he raised his mighty arm as if to crush the feeble figure before him, but he bethought him of the old rhyme, "Pity the sorrows of a poor old man," and so refrained.

Within the limits of the town he made yet another futile attempt to get an intelligible reply. Selecting an antique old lady, whose features betokened benevolence, kindness, and a mind at peace, he repeated the well worn question, and still again in cheerful accents came the old-time answer, "Yuba Dam, sir;" and yet again the bard came to his rescue with the old pathetic ballad, "Remember thy mother for tho' she is old, she may be a better man than you," and saved the old lady from a dreadful death.

He fared on. The sad, mournful look had wholly gone now. The contracted brow, set lips and clenched ears showed that he had taken the warpath, and the bystanders shrank from his burning gaze in terror, for there was blood in his eye. The transformation scene was complete. He was no longer a peaceful, unoffending citizen. The long-drawn insolence of the Yuba Dammers had rendered him desperate.

He was a bold, bad man from Bitter Creek.

Lo! he paiteth the town red.

Striding into the Magnolia saloon, he selected the hardest looking citizen in the room, drawing a '45 navy he levelled it his head. "Stranger," said he, in menacing tones, tell me the name of this town, and that terrible quick. Nary civil word can I get from man, woman or child on the whole ranch. I'm going to know this burgh's name right now, and then strike over the range back to the good old silver state again." The Magnolian, a hardy pioneer who hailed from old Missouri and all the way from Pike, shut one eye, looked calmly up at the '45, and drawled out, "Yuba Da-a-am, sir." They were his last words. When the smoke cleared away, the man from Pike was seen huddled up on the floor, and the bold, bad man was standing off an infuriated horde of Yuba Dammers and emptying his six-shooter into the crowd. As the old Hebrew ballad has it:

The coats went off and all went in,
Shots and bad language swelled the din;
The short, sharp bark of Derringers like bull-dogs cheered the furze.

When the picnic calmed they stacked up three cords of gory corpses on the plaza, and among the first they hauled out was that of the bold, bad man from Bitter Creek.

He had gone over the range.

Away up on the mountain side, beneath the sighing pines and spruces, they laid him to rest, and there, far from his home and from the dear ones he loved, with the crisp pine needles as his only covering, lies the bold, bad man.

But they raised no granite obelisk nor gorgeous monument over him, trusting rather to the glorious fame he had earned in ten short minutes in the Magnolia saloon, and when the pilgrim from a foreign clime pauses beside the lonely grave to inquire the name of its occupant, still again on the balmy mountain breeze comes the weird reply,

"YUBA DAM, SIR."
