HUNTING

HURLINGHAM DRAGHOUNDS.

On Saturday afternoon these hounds had an impromptu bye-day, and gave a pleasant little run, but it was very hot, and the ground as hard as iron, so the pace was not great. Mr. Thursby hunted the hounds and Mr. S. Willes whipped in to him. The "field" consisted of Mrs. Dodson, Messrs. Dodson, Fitzherbert, Harnett and Lawford.

The meet on Sunday was at Hartford House, Mr. J. K. Cassell's residence at Hurlingham, and after everyone had been hospitably entertained, the hounds were laid on hard by, and a very long run was commenced. The line lay to Leloir's Estancia, where the first check was called; then a big ring nearly to the river to Bilbao's camp, in which there was a second check; and afterwards hounds hunted slowly home to finish in front of Mr. Balfour's quinta. The run was much too far for this weather, and long before the finish hounds and horsemen had got pretty sick of the game. There was a very small following out. Messrs. Preston and Willes looked after the hounds, and in addition we only noticed Mr. Perugia and a friend, who unfortunately got a nasty fall. However, the most exciting part of the day came at the end, as a bagged fox was enlarged in Mr. Ballou's big potrero opposite the Pacific Station, and very kindly ran a line of five of the made up jumps, across Cunningham's, down Moussi's lane to the arroyo in Quirno's camp, where he was run into and killed. The hounds, probably tired after the gruelling they had had, did not seem too keen on Master Reynard, and only two really ran the line, and even when the pack got up to him they did not seem inclined to tackle him. However, Mr. Cassell's terrier, who had joined in the fun, went for him like a good 'un, and then the hounds soon had him worried. Quite a large gathering had collected to see this portion of the fun.

PIGEON SHOOTING

HURLINGHAM.

On Sunday afternoon a small pigeon shoot was held by the members of this club in their grounds at Hurlingham. The chief event was for a prize presented by the club, added to a sweepstake of $10 each. This was won by Mr. F. Bell, who was shooting very well all the afternoon, he killing nine out of his ten birds, whereas all the other competitors missed two out of their three birds. The following are the particulars:

POLO

HURLINGHAM.

At 9.15 on Sunday a match was played on the big ground between the Outsiders and a team got up by Mr. E. D. Drabble, and after six good last quarters the former were victorious by seven goals to five. The game was not quite so good as it should have been, the sides not appearing to play very well together, and continually getting out of their places. The ground was in excellent condition—hard and true—and no dust. The sides were:

Outsiders	Mr. Drabble's Team
1. E. Robson	1. C. Jefferies
2. F. Balfour	2. H. Sanderson
3. B. Bedford	3. E. Drabble
A. M. Challinor (back)	W. Harnett (back)

Everyone of the players scored, the goals being divided as follows: Balfour (3), Bedford (2), Robson (1), Challinor (1), Jefferies (2), Harnett, Sanderson and Drabble, one each.

In the afternoon, owing to the counter attractions there were only nine players on the ground. So the following sides were arranged, and five quarters played:

Tte. Herran	J. Lainez
J. K. Cassels	Stopford
A. Willes	S. Houlder
G. Wilson	F. Balfour and M. Fea

It was a curious game, as there were several beginners, and Mr. Cassels had been an absentee from the polo ground for many years, but, even so, showed us glimpses of his old form. Missing was very frequent, and at times the game was painfully slow.

In the first quarter Wilson scored with a fine shot from the side of the ground at a difficult angle, but as he was palpably off-side, we don't quite know whether it was allowed or not. In the second period Herran made a second goal for the same side.

Balfour and Cassels each scored a goal for their respective sides, in the third chucker, so the score stood 3-1. However, in the fourth, Willes was in tremendous form, and made three goals against one scored by Balfour for the opposite side. Score 6-2. The only point made in the last was by Wilson, who gave his side the game by seven goals to two.

VENADO TUERTO.

The second Handicap Tournament of the season was held on Sunday the 21st of July on an excellent ground at La Estanzuela, kindly lent and prepared by Mr. H. W. St. John, to whom the Club owes a great debt of gratitude for his sportsmanlike conduct, as the Club ground, owing to the severe "seca", is in an utterly unfit state to be played on at present. It was a great disappointment that four teams could not be got together to compete for the handsome silver bowls presented by Messrs. St. John and Jeffray, but at the last minute several members were unavoidably prevented from taking part, so only three teams were available. After most close and exciting games, the C team just managed to scrape through as winners by the narrow margin of one goal, though if the A team had had a little more time they would undoubtedly have won, for they were pressing hard with the worst of luck during the last two chuckers against the C team.

The teams were as follows:—

A	B	C
C. Kennard	C. Eden	R. Foster
J. Jeffray	A. Macdonald	T. L. Bury
C. Hinchliff	H. C. Foster	A. Paull
H. W. St. John (back)	H. J. J. Bury (back)	C. Wilson (back)

The first match was between A and B teams.

First Chucker.—On the ball being thrown in, B team got possession and threatened their opponents' goal, but St. John and Hinchliff relieved. From a good drive by Hinchliff, Jeffrays took the ball down well, and scored a fine goal, Kennard riding off the back for him in excellent style. Score 1-0.

Second Chucker.—The game started very slow, but brightened up considerably towards the end. Macdonald equalized by a good shot from under his pony. Score 1-1.

Third Chucker.—Hinchliff started with a good run, but his final shot just went outside the posts. The game now became much quicker, and Eden scored, but Hinchliff and Jeffray were not to be denied, and the former scored with a beautiful shot from the side, the game ending 2-2.

B TEAM v. C

First Chucker.—The pace in this chucker was fast, the ball travelling up and down at a great pace, both backs being called on to defend repeatedly. Just at the end, L. Bury got away and scored for the C team, the whistle going immediately after score. 1-0.

Second Chucker.—The C team pressed immediately, and Paull scored with a magnificent shot right on the line, and almost at once R. Foster, after a clever run, hit another goal, the combination of the B team not being their strong point in this ten. H. Foster got an easy chance, but hit wide. The B team now worked hard, but hit wide. The B team now worked hard, but failed to score. Score 3-0.

Third Chucker.—C team should have scored at once, but the ball went wide. From a free hit from a foul against L. Bury, Paull saved magnificently, meeting the ball high up as it was going over the top of the goal posts. The B team, pulling themselves together, pressed hard, but on the call of time the scores remained unaltered. C 3-0.

A TEAM v. C

First Chucker.—The play ruled even and fast, both sides doing their best to score, but on the whistle going, no goals had been notched. Score 0-0.

Second Chucker.—After give and take play, Paull took on a good backhander of R. Foster's, and after a good run scored Hinchliff, St. John and Jeffrays now really started to make up lost time, and the C's had all their work cut out to save their goal, but through Wilson and Paull defending splendidly, they were unable to score. Score C 1-0.

Third Chucker.—The A team continued to press, and from a scrimmage St. John scored for them, and almost immediately Hinchliff put the ball through again, but it was disallowed, the whistle having gone for a foul against Paull. Hinchliff took the free hit and missed by inches only. The C team seeing they were being out, played now carefully kept the ball to the sides of the ground, and paying particular attention to Hinchliff, managed to keep their goal intact, the score ending 1-1.

Goals—A team 3 goals. B 2 goals. C team 4 goals.

LA COLINA TOURNAMENT.

The Polo Tournament organized by the La Colina Club, was commenced on Saturday 27th. There were only four clubs competing and they were drawn as follows: "Pasto Puna" v. "Curumalan" and "Hurlingham" v. "La Colina." On the Saturday morning a commencement was made with the former match, and after a close game Pasto Puna ran out winners by 6 goals to 3. Unfortunately Willes who was playing No. 1 for the losers was greatly handicapped by having to play his ponies directly they were landed off the train. Then in the afternoon Hurlingham met La Colina, and another close game was witnessed, so close indeed that at the end of the sixth period the score stood at 5 goals all, and extra time had to be played in which the visitors were enabled to score a goal and qualify for the final. Then on Monday "Pasto Puna" and "Hurlingham" met to decide which should hold the Cup till next year, and after a good game Hurlingham ran out winners by 6 goals to 2.

FIRST MATCH.

Curumalan	Pasto Puna
1. R. Willes	1. F. C. Barry
2. Wilson	2. W. Bell
3. Kelly	3. E. Bridger
Norris (back)	C. Pearson (back)

First Chucker—Norris scored for Curumalan, shortly after the start, from a hit from behind the Puna goal. Pearson next made a good run, and one of the Curumalan men, in trying to save, put the ball through his own goal. After some fast play Curumalan were pressing when time was called. Score one all.

Second Chucker—The Puna men pressed, and cored through the agency of Bridger, and a few minutes later Barry hit another goal for the same side. Score 1 in favour of Punas.

Third Chucker—Curumalan had very hard lines in not scoring, a good shot being stopped by a pony. However, they continued to attack strongly, but could not add a point, and just on the stroke of time Bridger increased the Punas total to 4-1.

Fourth Chucker—Opened with a foul being given against Curumalan, but they quickly made up their lost ground, and Norris, after going near on several occasions, at last scored, and made the total 4-2. A very long quarter.

Fifth Chucker—Bell started by adding a point for Punas, with a good shot under his pony. Then Norris got the ball through from a scrimmage, and made the score 5-3. From a good centre Pearson put it through again for Punas, 6-3, after which Curumalan pressed up to call of time.

Sixth Chucker—Norris scored after having hardnes once or twice, and Kelly made another goal for Curumalan, and the whistle blew with the score 6 goals to 5 in favour of Pasto Punas.

SECOND MATCH.

Hurlingham	Colina
1. H. Oldham	1. H. Glynn-Williams
2. H. Schwind	2. J. James
3. R. S. Moncrieff	3. E. Jacobs
R. W. Anderson (back)	J. Hoare (back)

First Chucker—Hurlingham at once attacked and Moncrieff scored with a long shot. Score 1-0. Hurlingham continued the attack, and the ball being centred, Anderson rushed it through. 2-0

Second Chucker—Colina attacked, and after hardnes once or twice scored through the agency of Glynn-Williams. 2-1. Colina continued to press and Jacobs scored. 2-2. Just at the end of the period, Schwind had a good run and scored with shot under ponies neck. 3-2.

3rd Chucker—Moncrieff on Rama Chica made a good run and scored. 4-2; up and down play for rest of quarter.

4th Chucker—A very fast quarter, Colina bringing the score 4-3. Hoare and Jacobs being specially noticeable.

5th Chucker—Hurlingham pressed nearly the whole of this quarter, and had a lot of shots that just missed. However just at the end of the quarter Moncrieff was successful. 5-3 in favour of Hurlingham.

6th Chucker—Colina now woke up, and carried the ball again and again down the field, and towards the end of the quarter they were successful and just before time was called, and amidst intense excitement amongst the spectators equalised just as the whistle blew for time. Score 5 goals all.

Extra time—On the ball being thrown in Moncrieff almost immediately got away on Rama Chica, and the ball was rolling through when Hoare back-handed, Schwind however met it and with a lucky shot scored the winning point. Score 6-5 in favour of Hurlingham.

FINAL MATCH.

Hurlingham	Pasto Punas
1. H. Oldham	1. F. C. Barry
2. H. Schwind	2. W. Bell
3. R. S. Moncrieff	3. E. Bridger
R. W. Anderson (back)	C. Pearson (back)

First Chucker—Within three minutes of the start, Anderson hit the first goal for Hurlingham, who afterwards continued to keep the Pasto Punas on the defence till the end of the period, Moncrieff scoring a second goal. Score 2-0 in favour of Hurlingham.

Second Chucker—On restarting, the play was very even, the ball travelling from one end to the other without any definite result, till just before time Schwind scored from a scrimmage in front of goal. Score 3-0.

Third Chucker was very even, first one side and then the other attacking. No score.

Fourth Chucker—On the ball being thrown in Punas carried it behind the Hurlingham line, where they practically kept it for half the period, when Bell scored the first goal for them. After this Hurlingham bucked up and attacked, but hit behind. Punas from the hit out, however, ran it back again, but carried it out, and the whistle blew with the score three goals to one in favour of Hurlingham.

Fifth Chucker—At the commencement Pasto Punas pressed their opponents, and Bell made a couple of fine shots at goal, one of which was successful. Score 3-2. But soon after restarting Anderson, from a good centre of Moncrieff's, added a fourth goal for Hurlingham, which he followed up soon afterwards with a fifth, after a good run, and shot under his pony's neck. Score 5-2. Barry then was conspicuous with some good play, after which even play took place till call of time.

6th Chucker—Even play at the start, till Hurlingham ran down and scored from a scrimmage. Score 6-2. And on the ball being restarted, the same side added another goal. Till the umpire blew the whistle, the game remained mostly in the Pasto Punas territory, and Hurlingham retired victorious by six goals to two.

ASSAULT AT ARMS AT THE ST. JOHN'S CLUB.

The entertainment at the Gymnasium of the St. John's Club, at their premises in Corrientes 778, on Friday night, was undoubtedly an unqualified success. The competitions and performances were all excellent, the former being most keenly contested, and the room was full to overflowing, and some people were unable to gain admittance. After the performance was concluded the popular president called for a vote of thanks to all those who had contributed to the evening's enjoyment, which was received with acclamation, and the same speaker made a strong appeal for more members to join, and use this excellent institution.

Mr. J. H. Morton opened the proceedings with a good display of Indian club exercise. Then followed a sharp bout with single sticks between Messrs. J. Waring (H.M.S. "Basilisk") and Pelling (H.M.S. "Cambrian"), in which the former made things very hot for his opponent, and was soon declared the winner. Another bout with single sticks came No. 3, and, after a very close and exciting struggle, W. Chard (H.M.S. "Basilisk") just managed to defeat F. Neild (H.M.S. "Cambrian"), though there was not much in it between them. This contest fairly "brought down the house," and was the best of the evening.

Messrs. Bouwer, Mace, and Morton, of the St. John's Club, then gave an exhibiton on the horizontal bar, which appeared to be much appreciated by the audience.

Boxing was the next attraction, and the first pair to enter the ring were Sub-Lieut. Halahan and Mr. Rodger, of Lomas A.C., and a very good show they gave, the latter being very quick and nippy, but he had all his work cut out to hold his antagonist, and after a very pretty spar the Lomas man was declared the winner on points, a verdict that seemed to give satisfaction to the onlookers. Messrs. Boyce (H.M.S. "Basilisk") and Cummings (H.M.S. "Cambrian") followed, and lost no time in getting to work, and made the pace very hot for three good rounds, when the Cambrian man was proclaimed the winner.

An interval of a few minutes was now taken, when proceedings were resumed with a parallel bar display by Messrs. Bouwer, Mace, and Morton. This was followed by the event of the evening—a six round boxing match between W. Porter (H.M.S. "Cambrian") and F. Fuley (H.M.S. "Basilisk"). The latter was a much older man than his opponent, and evidently in far worse condition, for though he showed better science, the Cambrian man kept on getting in some very heavy body blows with his left, and countering with his right, the result of which was that after a couple of rounds the Basilisk man was hopelessly beaten, and the referee stopped the fight.

Attention was now turned to single stick, in which the naval men proved far too strong for their opponents, Commander Fitzherbert and Sub-Lieut. Halahan easily defeating Messrs. R. E. B. Wall and R. J. Ridley respectively. Though it is only fair to say that the St. John's Club men were only accustomed to hit with a backhand stroke, whereas their opponents attacked on either side, and also used an Italian thrust.

The final boxing competition was between Midshipman Ames, of H.M.S. "Cambrian," and Mr. F. C. Olditch, of the St. John's Club. The first round was very even, but in the second Ames' superior height and reach told, and he kept dabbing his left continually in his antagonist's face with such good effect that the referee stopped the contest after the second round.

The finale was a melee between members of the crews of the men-of-war. An equal number of men were arrayed on each side, and each man carried another on his back armed with a single stick and a fencing mask, in which there was a paper plume; the object being to cut the paper plumes off one's opponent. This caused much amusement, and, after an animated contest, resulted in a win for the reds.

AN ARCADIAN IDYLL.

Mr William Bashford, part proprietor of the Arcadian Billiard Club and Restaurant, was taking an affectionate leave of his two partners—Mr. Richard Traynor, otherwise known as "Dick Deadeye," on account of a defect in one of his organs of sight, and Mr. Samuel Simmons, alias "Roopy Sam," by reason of a corresponding weakness in the vocal cords, which permitted him to speak in nothing above a somewhat gurgling whisper.

The first-named gentleman had been entrusted with the sum of ten pounds by his partners, with which he was to speculate at Epsom. He had not been placed in this fiduciary position on account of his superior knowledge in Turf matters, in which respect, indeed, he was somewhat deficient. Truth to tell, Messrs. Traynor and Simmons were not personæ grates on the racecourse, and therefore it was that the least guileful of the trio had been chosen to represent the firm.

In order that there should be no doubt as the manner in which the ten pounds should be laid out, a list of horses to be backed and the sums to be placed on each had been provided for Mr Bashford, and an oath of a blood-curdling nature had been administered to that gentleman, by which he bound himself not to depart from the letter of his instructions.

The sum with which he had been provided, though small, represented almost the entire capital of the Arcadian proprietors. The club had been founded some months previously by two gentlemen who, owing to unfortunate speculations with moneys that had been entrusted to their keeping, had been translated to "another place" where games of chance are not encouraged, and where, "each in his narrow cell," the late proprietors had ample leisure to ponder over the desagreements which "being found out" entails.

Under the Regime of these two gentlemen (Arcades ambo) the institution over which they presided had enjoyed a somewhat indifferent reputation, but, difficult as the feat appeared, the present arrangement had contrived to go one better than their predecessors.

In place of its always rather misleading appellation the "Arcadian" was commonly referred to as the "Brigands' Cave," and a love of truth leads us to confess that the latter title described its peculiarities more correctly than the name which had been fondly bestowed upon it by the authors of its being.

To establish a reputation of this character among gambling clubs something more than a mere occasional deviation from the path of virtue is required. It behoves the stranger at all of these establishments to keep a wary pair of eyes constantly on the alert; but, as a victim of the Arcadians was heard to remark, "What is the dash use of a pair of blank lamps when you want one for every perisher in the club?" "Plucked!" exclaimed another of its visitors. "Strewth I've been plucked before and the feathers come again: but when skinned and the flesh tore off er yer bones, what price they won't ave yer marrow on toast on the supper menoo, eh?"

These eloquent testimonies of the manners of the Arcadians speak for themselves, and the character of the character of the establishment being so well known it may be wondered why anyone should care to pay it a visit. As a matter of fact, it was this shyness on the part of regular gamblers with money that had occasioned the exodus of Mr. William Bashford to Epsom.

For more than a week previous to the date of our story the dozen or so lean and hungry brigands whose task it was to hunt up game had drawn blank. The billiard box which gathered in the contributions of the faithful punters stood on its shelf with a week's dust on its lid, and the packs of cards might have been chimney ornaments for all the use that was made of them.

It was a sad state of affairs, and the Arcadians gathered round the bar spoke in whispers as befitted the gloom of the occasion, glancing now and then with mournful interest at Roopy Sam, who was attempting to divert his leisure by "packing" a baccarat bank. Even the cheerful tick of the tape-machine was missing, for that ingenious instrument had been carried off by the company a few days previously for arrears of rent. This blow was more apparent than real, however, as the last bookmaker, on shaking the Arcadian dust from his feet, had summed up the value of his clientele in the following scathing words—

"Punters! My oath! I took four 'art-crowns on the Jubilee; three of 'em backed the winner, and the other blighter tried to bung me a snide 'art-dollar for 'is bet. It's gawspel, I give ye me word. Punters! What oh!"

The advent of Mr. Traynor, otherwise Dick Deadeye, bearing with him the afternoon's newspaper, in no way served to dissipate the gloom which hung over the gathering. Roopy Sam's hoarse whisper assumed a sepulchral tone as he demanded news of the day's racing.

Mr. Traynor gazed balefully with his serviceable eye at the racing column. His adjectives acquired fresh force as he bounded from winner to winner, finishing up with a magnificent set piece of profanity as he reached the last race.

"What! not one?" inquired his afflicted partner, dropping the cards, with which he had been keeping his hand in, on the floor in his anguish.

"You 'eard, didn't yer?" inquired Mr. Traynor, irritably. "P'r'aps you'd like me to go over 'em again? D'yer suppose I'm a-keeping the right winners back for fear er killing yer with joy? 'Ere, read 'em yerself," he continued, handing the newspaper to his partner.

"Not one?" repeated Mr. Simmons. "What 'ave we done, Dick? he groaned. "What 'orrible crime 'ave we committed?"

"I don't know what you've done," said Mr. Traynor, pointedly.

"P'r'aps 'e didn't back 'em, Dick," suggested Mr. Simmons.

"Not after the oath we give 'im?" inquired Dick, speaking as though a drug of some powerful character had been imparted to the absent partner.

"'E might 'ave forgot it," urged Roopy.

"You would, I believe," insinuated his companion.

"I'd 'ave tried blooming 'ard to arfter the first two 'ad gone down," admitted Mr. Simmons.

"Well, Bill ain't that sort," said Mr. Traynor. "'E may not be fly, but 'e's true blue, is Bill," he added, with an unwonted amount of admiration for his absent partner.

"Too green, you mean," sneered Mr. Simmons.

"Wot!" exclaimed Mr. Traynor, indignantly, turning his attention to the group of unfortunate club members—"wot the 'ell do they come 'ere for every day? My word!" he continued, with a withering glance of scorn at the gathering by the bar. "I don't wonder we get no play 'ere with such a mangy set er wastars. They're enough ter frighten the pips off er the cards. 'Ere they come every day," he went on, "making a 'ome of the club, wearing out the furniture, and—and using up the oxygen."

"No fear" interposed Mr. Simmons, promptly. "I've stopped that."

"What?" inquired his partner.

"Sickin' up drinks," replied Roopy, who had misunderstood Mr. Traynor's remark.

"Well, any'ow," began the latter gentleman, grinning, in spite of his wrath, at his partner's mistake, "ere's another wasted evenin'; let's close up, and—"

"Ush, Dick!" whispered Mr. Simmons. "'Oo's this?"

The inquiry was caused by the entrance of an Arcadian bringing with him a stranger, a burly individual of opulent appearance.

"What, 'Arris' me boy!" exclaimed Mr. Traynor, genially. "Glad to see yer. Proud ter welcome you to our little show, sir," he exclaimed, after Mr. Harris had introduced the stranger to the partners. "I didn't quite ketch your name."

"My name's Boker," said the stranger.

"We were just a going to start a little game of chemmy," said Mr. Traynor. "W 'aven't 'ad a game for two or three days. Fact is," he continued, "we're rather at sixes and sevens—going to 'ave the club redecored," he explained, hoping that this would account for the absence of the tape-machine and the general air of bareness which characterised the establishment. "Do you play?" he inquired, negligently, of Mr. Boker.

"Don't mind joining in," replied that gentleman.

"We're all friends 'ere," said Mr. Simmons, joining in the conversation and waving his hands so as to embrace the whole of the company present.

"Very pleasant-looking fellows," remarked Mr. Boker, tolerantly, regarding the Arcadians with interest.

"Ahl and as straight as—as they're 'andsome," asseverated Sam.

"Indeed!" exclaimed Mr. Boker, with a show of surprise.

"Law bless yer," said Sam, "so sharpn 'ere, Mr. Boker."

We've 'ad one or two now and again," he admitted, "but we've weeded 'em out."

Mr. Boker looked thoughtfully at the Arcadians who had been tried in the line. He may have speculated as to what manner of appearance the dress presented if these were the fine gold, but he said nothing.

In the meantime Mr. Traynor had provided one or two of the more reliable members with small sums of money with which to start the game, and he himself having laid his hands on the entire remaining capital of the firm, which amounted to about seven pounds, prepared to repair the losses of the afternoon's racing. Shortly after play commenced, moreover, another Arcadian—who for a wonder was possessed of money—appeared, so that there was every indication of an unusually strong game. Mr. Boker, the visitor, was invited to take a seat on the left-hand side of Roopy Sam, who was officiating as croupier. In front of the latter gentleman was the box which absorbed the coup money, and on his right-hand side was the tray which received the cards after they had been dealt from the box.

Had Mr. Boker been able to look round the croupier's left arm which rested on the table and over the box, he might have become aware of the fact that the croupier's right hand was occasionally occupied in arranging some of the cards in the tray into a little subsidiary pack made up of winning banker's coups. That he did not do so is perhaps due to the fact that Mr. Richard Traynor, who sat on his left-hand side, kept him engaged in conversation. To aid Roopy in "packing" the cards it was customary for Arcadians to throw the cards into the tray face upwards, an unusual proceeding, but one scarcely likely to be observed unless one's suspicions had been aroused.

In shuffling the pack the croupier managed to leave out the small collection of arranged cards until the visitor's attention had been distracted from him, and then quietly to place them at either the top or the bottom of the whole pack, so that in either case the final coup would not affect the arrangement of the "packed" cards. The result of this would be that in every deal there would sure to be one good bank for some player. True, the "made up" bank might come to the visitor, but with a dozen players the odds were heavy against such an event; and if, perchance, the unexpected happened, the Arcadians refused to punt with extraordinary unanimity.

As a matter of fact, the bank on this occasion happened to fall to the Arcadian who had last arrived in the room. He had been winning pretty consistently up to the present and after dealing two or three coups which Mr. Boker had called he appeared satisfied with his success, and passed the bank. He had been prompted to this action by Roopy Sam, who signalled to him that the further profits of the bank would be looked upon as club property.

As is usual in such a case, the passed bank became the property of any player who cared to buy it for the sum for which it was passed, and this amount Mr. Traynor promptly bid.

Unfortunately for the proprietors, Mr. Boker, who sat on the right of Mr. Traynor, had a prior claim, and purchaser the passed bank from under the nose of his neighbour.

Things were looking badly for the Arcadians; the visitor appeared to know the game rather too well to please them. Where Mr. Boker should have been a punter he was a banker, and, unfortunately, the bank which he had just bought was only just started. Roopy Sam regretted that he had counselled the passing of the bank, and it was in a fainter whisper than usual that he announced the fact that four pounds odd was waiting to be called. There was a longish pause, and Mr. Boker grew impatient.

"Now then, gentlemen, I've punted to you," he protested. "Who's going to call it?"

"I will!" exclaimed Mr. Traynor, making up his mind suddenly. There was just a chance of his being able to make a false coup, and by doing so upset the bank.

"That's a sportsman," declared Mr. Boker, preparing to deal the cards. Absorbed in the coup, no one present noticed the arrival of Mr. William Bashford, who entered the room at the very moment when the dealer was announcing to the disgusted Mr. Traynor that he held "nine."

The new arrival did not seem at all depressed by the result of his day's racing. On the contrary, his face was wreathed in broad smiles as he stood silently watching his unfortunate partner slowly pulling out the money to pay for the coup he had lost. His head rolled waggishly from side to side as Roopy declared, in heart-broken tones, that there were eight pounds in the bank.

"Now, gentlemen," urged Mr. Boker. There was no response to his appeal. "Perhaps you'd like to call it?" he said, catching sight of Mr. Bashford in the background.

"Oh! I'll call it," exclaimed that gentleman, advancing to the table, "Ow much is it?"

"What! Bill?" exclaimed Messrs. Traynor and Simmons with one voice, and making desperate efforts to dissuade their partner from his rash action.

Unhappily, Mr. Bashford was quite oblivious of their signals. He not only called the eight pounds odd, but insisted on calling again and again until the roll of notes which, to the amazement of his partners, he produced from his inside pocket was exhausted. Then Mr. Boker, finding that there were no more callers, rose from his seat, and made his way out of the club.

"What did yer do it for, ye damned drunken idiot?" demanded Mr. Traynor, wrathfully, when the three partners were alone together.

"I follered your lead, didn't I?" said Mr. Bashford, sullenly. "You were calling it when I come t' ter the club."

"Because I 'oped ter play a false coup on 'im and change the run," explained his partner. "It was our bank by rights," he went on. "Roopy 'ad put 'em up. Oh! you bloomin' fat'ead," he groaned.

"Fat'ead am I? Drunken idiot, am I?" exclaimed Mr. Bashford, indignantly, as the full effects of the trap into which he had so disastrously fallen dawned upon him. "You're a pretty couple of blighters ter call names," he went on. "'Ere I come 'ome with nigh on seventy 'ard-earned quids—"

"You broke yer oath," interposed Roopy, injudiciously.

"My oath!" sneered Mr. Bashford. "'Ow much would I 'ave 'ad if I'd 'ave follered your tips?" he demanded. "I brought up seventy quid to share with my clever pals," he went on "and what 'appens? Blimy! they found nothing better to do but ter put up a bank for me ter fall agin. From ter-night," said Mr. Bashford, contemptuously, "I've done with yer. I ceases ter be a partner in this club. I renounces yer and dissolves from yer, for ever."

RUBBISH.

One of the great secrets of success in life is the power to throw away. Throwing away sounds easy enough, but only those who know the daily necessity of it understand how difficult it may sometimes be. We are most of us unwilling to face the fact that things belonging to ourselves are rubbish. Take a common instance: from time to time we scrutinise our garments with a view to throwing or giving the useless ones away. In imagination we perhaps decide that at least two suits of old clothes, one pair of boots, sundry gloves and ties, and a dilapidated top hat shall go to the dustman. We go, after many delays, to our cupboards and chests and spread the condemned garments out before us. What a pathetic spectacle meets our gaze! An ancient tweed coat calls to mind many a long walk and many a pipe smoked by the fire afterwards. It is still far more comfortable than the newer ones. Why not keep it for an easy coat to wear when nobody is staying in the house? Back it goes into the cupboard. That pair of boots, too, would just do for muddy days; they shall be saved. So we go on until the list is exhausted, and only the gloves and the shabby ties remain. Weeks and months pass by; the old clothes are forgotten because not really needed; newer clothes imperceptibly become more aged and less useable; the next time we ransack the cupboard the venerable articles of clothing that ought to have been discarded last year are found to be moth-eaten, and we burn them in disgust. We are fortunate if no greater loss has resulted from the weakness which prevented us from throwing away rubbish in due season.

More difficult is the case of books. The shelves gradually get too full, and we determine to weed out some of the volumes we now never refer to. Their backs, indeed, are well known to us, and faint associations linger round them. As they are once more opened, and their contents glanced through, these associations are revived and a new attraction makes itself felt. Did not Milton write, "As good almost kill a man as kill a good book; who kills a man kills a reasonable creature, God's image; but he who destroys a good book kills reason itself?" After all, can we honestly say that these books it is contemplated to throw away are bad? May we not some day wish to refer to them? There is a pencil note in one of them, and some marked passages in another. What a pity to throw them away! They are put back on a higher shelf; we refrain later from buying other books we need because there is no room for them. But there is something painful in discarding a book we have formerly felt affection for. Almost as well to follow Milton's simile, discard an old friend.

What, indeed, shall we say of the actual process of getting rid of human rubbish? The thing has to be done at times. Men placed in a position of trust have often to throw away subordinates who have grown useless. Sometimes they, too, can be relegated to a higher shelf. Sometimes they must go to the human dustheap there to grumble and groan till the great Dustman sweeps them away. But men in private stations have to do the same sort of thing. They have to choose between keeping the friends they respect and those they have found to be disreputable. A man who is ready to love you does not always love your shady acquaintances, even though you yourself may tolerate them for the sake of what they were. It is better to be firm and throw away the rubbish than to be degraded mentally and socially by exclusive association with the shady ones. For that is the destiny of the too soft-hearted, and their weakness is visited on the second and third generations. Of course, the vulgar and ambitious man pushes this principle to the extreme. He aims at social success, and to this end he sacrifices all his friends. He kicks away the rungs of the ladder by which he mounts. In novels he falls to the ground and is shattered; in real life he constantly attains his object. We do not respect such a man, far less do we love him; but at least he is logical and has recognised the importance of throwing away rubbish. Friendship with such a one is merely a matter of business on both sides, and most of those who revile his perfidy have clung to him in the past for what they could make out of him.

It was said of a certain great man that there was no rubbish in his head. The same cannot be said of most of us. In the case of nine men out of ten valuable knowledge and useless information are stored together in their minds in one clotted mass. Few have the will power to throw away their intellectual rubbish. It is a question whether anybody can entirely do so, for it is difficult to decide what is rubbish in this connection. In practice most of us unconsciously discard most that we learnt at school. Euclid and Greek accents, Roman History and the dates of Jewish Kings all slide imperceptibly into the intellectual dustbin. They were very important once when our minds were being trained for better or worse they are of no use to us, and we store our minds with other things. And we have to look to it that old age does not find us with the power of throwing away and acquiring new facts paralysed. The faculty of accepting new ideas late in life and discarding obsolete ones is merely a matter of practice combined with a certain humility. A middle-aged man generally thinks he knows all it is worth his while to know. Ten years pass, and his son at the University says something he believes to be untrue. He corrects him, is argued with, and rears defeated. The world has moved. That is a warning which he probably disregards. Another ten years and he reads something in a newspaper which clashes utterly with his preconceptions. He looks into the matter, finds the world has gone on moving, tries to keep the new fact in his mind. But the power has fled; he can remember the old knowledge, now obsolete, perfectly, but he is vain to own that for all practical purposes it is rubbish. Unfortunately he cannot now get rid of this rubbish. He is a man of old ideas, and he himself must soon be laid on the rubbish heap by a severely practical and unrelenting world.

Throwing away rubbish, then, is a great art and one worth study. We can learn something from children. They have infinitely better memories than men and women. Their heads are necessarily filled with all sorts of half-truths and quarter-truths, and untruths, which one might suppose it would be difficult for them to forget. Yet how very easily they put them on one side when the time comes for unloading a fuller knowledge. How the little boy of seven laughs at the antiquated beliefs of the little boy of six when he himself a few months ago believed all that his small brother pins his faith to. A child is able to achieve this mental victory partly because he has absolute confidence in the superior knowledge of his elders and instructors. And we, too, may preserve something of the same faculty if we recognise the fact that every moment untruths die and every moment truths are born. We must in all humility be content occasionally to ring out the false, ring in the true, even though we have to throw away ideas we have long cherished to make room for horrid and intrusively vulgar facts.

NOTES.

The La Colina Polo Tournament, which was played last Saturday and Monday, proved a great success, and all those participating in it, whether as players or spectators, seem to have enjoyed themselves immensely. The Challenge Cup, presented to the Polo Club last year by Mr. Krabbe, of La Colina, was won by Hurlingham, but they had a great struggle with Colina in the first round, and only got home after extra time by 6 goals to 5. Mr. Ballour unfortunately was unable at the last minute to go down for Hurlingham, which naturally weakened the team, but his place was taken by Mr. Oldham, who made an efficient substitute, and as No. 1 stuck to his back most creditably. Last year this Tournament and Cup were won by the Horse Copers, a side consisting of F. Kinchant, R. S. Moncrieff, R. Isherwood and F. Ballour.

On Sunday night after the final the Hurlingham team were most hospitably entertained to dinner at the La Colina hotel, and afterwards the Cup was presented by Mr. C. H. Krabbe to Mr. R. S. Moncrieff, the captain of the winning team, and many speeches of a humorous nature were made. This brought to an end as pleasant a little tournament as one could have wished for, everyone went home pleased and full of the hospitality that had been showered upon them. As for the polo the four teams were so even that were the matches to be replayed any one of them might win.

There was a fine attendance of spectators each day on the polo ground, including a good many ladies, among whom we noticed two Mrs. Hampsons, Mrs. Jacobs, Mrs. and Miss Walker, Mrs. F. Tetley, Miss Sewell, Mrs. Hoare, and Mrs. Glyn-Williams, and the excitement when just on the call of time the Colina men drew equal with Hurlingham in the first round was immense. Also in a match played between Curumalan and Colina, in which the former proved successful, there was plenty of feeling displayed by the audience.

The Committee of the St. John's Athletic Club are to be most heartily congratulated on the success of their assault at arms on Friday night, and we are delighted to hear that they took about three hundred and fifty dollars at the door. The room could not possibly have been fuller, and many people were unable to gain admission. The thanks of all are due to the officers and men of the British fleet at present in these waters for the assistance they gave to the display. The show was as good as one could possibly want, and we only hope it will instil a little enthusiasm into the youth of this city, and incite them to take a little healthy gymnastic exercise these long winter's evenings, instead of loafing "round town" or sleeping peacefully in an arm-chair and putting on fat instead of muscle.

As regards the contests, they were excellent, and Commander Fitzherbert and Lieutenant Trewby were quite the right men in the right place as referee and time-keeper. The former used his power with great tact in stopping the boxing, directly it was evident that one man was beat. Perhaps the best spar was that between Cummings and Boyer, the former, in spite of an extraordinary style, being very quick, and though he won we would have backed the other man to beat him in another three rounds. In the six round contest, Feeley was far too fat to hope to stand up before such a hard hitter as Porter. Mr. W. Rodger showed plenty of science against Sub-Lieutenant Halahan, but the latter, though the heavier man, was very slow. The single-stick was very one-sided owing to the St. John's men being altogether unused to the methods used in the Navy. Mr. Morton gave a fine display with Indian clubs.

Some excitement was caused by a swell mobsman trying to annex the bag containing the cash received at the door, which was in charge of the well-known cricketer, Mr. Denny Stokes. Luckily the latter perceived him departing up the stairs, and giving chase recovered the bag and cash. What happened does not seem quite clear, but we imagine the would-be thief must have run his head against Mr. Stokes' hand, as we noticed the latter's knuckles were somewhat damaged. However, we hope they will soon be alright again, and must congratulate Mr. Stokes on his plucky capture. The thief was handed over to the police.

Our cricketers returned from Rio on Saturday last all, we are pleased to state, in excellent health. They are all loud in their praises of the magnificent reception extended to them in the Brazils, where on all sides they were treated with the utmost kindness. In our next issue we shall publish a full and detailed account of the whole trip, which we feel sure will be read with great interest by all our readers.

Of the four matches played three were lost and one drawn. As far as we can gather, from the few hurried words we had with the captain, these defeats are attributed more to the utter lack of practice of our men than to any other cause, and naturally the matting wickets puzzled them considerably at first. Meanwhile we welcome them all back, and are glad to learn that they have spent such an enjoyable time.

The Rugby Football match between the Lomas and Buenos Aires clubs, which was played at Flores last Sunday, produced a close and exciting game. The forwards on either side were superior to the outsiders, and the numerous spectators were treated to some very close play by the two front ranks. The scrimmages were better packed than usual, and the dribbling in the open was superior to anything we have seen here for some time.

To the outsiders, if we except the two full-backs, we cannot offer much praise, for we have seldom seen more fumbling or weaker passing. This was the more noticeable on the right wing of the Buenos Aires three-quarter line, but all seemed to find the ball particularly difficult to handle. The half-backs too were slow, and their passing erratic, while the flying kicks of one of the winning team's half-backs are to be strongly condemned.

We regret to say Mr. A. A. Miller sprained his ankle during this match, and will be laid up, we fear, for some little time. This unfortunate accident robbed Lomas of one of their most energetic forwards, and naturally it affected their front rank seriously. But even so, it seems curious that they should have broken up as they did during the second part of the second half. Up till then they had quite held their own, but after Buenos Aires scored, they were rushed continuously. The winners will have to travel to Rosario next Sunday to play the semi-final of the Championship.

We are very glad that the Belgrano captain was able to raise a team to go down to Ensenada, and give the footballers on board H.M.S. Cambrian a game. Although the sailors were defeated fairly easily they had a very enjoyable game which was appreciated by one and all. We hear that the Cambrian is not to be here much longer, but if this information is incorrect, which we trust it is, we hope that as many of the clubs as possible will arrange matches with H.M.S. Cambrian.

The meeting at Belgrano on Thursday consisted of the usual six races, and was productive of the usual series of upsets, the tallest one coming in the Maiden for 2-year olds, won by Tenebreuse, giving a dividend of $95.50. The only favourite that was successful was Rivera, who seems back into form, and should do something better before long. The note of the day was the win of Laprida in the 1600 metre handicap, carrying 60 kilos, and it should be long before this good horse pays another contribution of $27.

A singularly pleasant day was vouchsafed to the Premio Invierno on Sunday at Palermo, though the crowd was hardly above the average. The Classic was rendered more interesting than expected by the advantage received by Le Sancy and Don Pepe from Cordon Rouge and Etolo. Accepting the lesson given by the hunchback in the Premio Chacabuco on the 7th as to how to run the horse, Perez sent Cordon Rouge along from the start, and Etolo though he followed up well, was never able to get near the leader, nor was Le Sancy, who came up in the straight and got second place, but was beaten by two lengths.

This performance puts the son of Gay Hermit very firmly at the top of the tree, and makes his prospects very rosy for the big races, as we have never believed Ultimatum to be his equal, and there is nothing else visible anything like as good as those he disposed of so easily here. Ovacion made his first appearance this year, but made no show, and does not look like coming back to form.

In the young ones, 1200 metres, Tetuan had no difficulty in scoring his first win, but the field had no great quality in it, and he will have to beat something better before getting into the first rank. The 1400 metres was well taken by Stella, who is likely to turn out a rare stayer. Listo and Tortoral both ran more in their primitive style than they have lately, and we hope will go on improving.

For the Gran Polla de Potrancas to be run on Sunday August 4th, there are still 30 left on the list to try their mettle over 1600 metres for the first time. Of these 30, those who have shewn up best so far are Ulma, Anarquía, Sardina, Riposte, Tupiza, Zara, Mine d'Or, Reina de Saba, Turqueza and Cina Cina. These are enough to furnish a good field and open race, but there are also Heraldica, Ya Verán and others who have not run badly, and Alcaldía, Directrice and Cuba, of whom great things are expected.

As the entries are made before the beginning of the year, it is natural that the late improvers should not be in the programme, but this year the absentees are very notable, the cream, such as La Ventana, Stella, Espuma, Loteria, etc. being out of it. As the prize being cumulative, always runs into five figures, there will probably be fewer left out next season, but this will contribute to make a large field this time, as the race will be very open.

We call the attention of our readers to the fact that the entries for the Hurlingham races, to be held Aug. 15th, close to-day at the offices of the Club, calle San Martin 121 at 5.30. As the Ayrshire Cup, which promises this year to be a most open and interesting race, is to be run on that date, we hope all the other races will lull well and that the Club will have a bumper meeting.

By-the-bye the entries also close to-day at 5.30, at the Hurlingham Office, 121 San Martin, for the Argentine Grand National Steeplechase, a handicap for all horses, distance 5,000 metres, to be run Sept. 11th. Half-forfeit can be declared before Aug. 20th, and so owners will have a chance of seeing how their horses are handicapped, before definitely accepting. As there is also $100 for the second horse, there should be a good entry, for weight makes a power of difference over a distance like this.

On Sunday, August the 4th, a gentlemen's doubles handicap tournament open to members of all clubs will be held on the courts of the Santa Lucia Lawn Tennis Club. The entrance fee will be $2 m/l. each player, and entrances must be made not later than Friday the 2nd to the Hon. Secretary, Mr. C. J. N. Carter, London and River Plate Bank, 399 B. Mitre. The handicaps will be arranged by a special committee and will remain sealed till the afternoon of August the 4th.

The final of the Gentlemen's Doubles at the All England Lawn Tennis Tournament, played on July 4th, resulted in a victory for the brothers Doherty over the much dread American pair. We reprint the following account from an exchange:—

"After all, the American attack did not carry all before it. The knowledge is gratifying after the performances of the American jockeys, American runners, American jumpers, American rifle-shots, American steel, iron, tin and hardware kings; and Americans generally. After the brothers Doherty had lost the first set to Messrs. D. Davis and H. Ward the prospects were not very bright. But the brothers soon warmed to their work, their returns became hotter and hotter, and although they did not repeat their previous day's performance of winning a love set, they retained the Championship in handsome fashion by 4-6, 6-2, 6-3, 9-7."

Mr. D. Davis, by the bye, plays left-handed.

The Mayor of Buenos Aires, we notice, has issued an order prohibiting employees of the Municipality, who are in any way connected with the handling of cash, from attending race-meetings, and signifying that if they are not willing to submit to this decree that they can resign their posts. Now this appears to us a rather drastic measure, though we expect the majority of our readers will not agree with us in this view of the matter. But it seems to us that if a man wants to gamble, no decree of the Mayor's will prevent him from so doing. Now Sunday is the only holiday in this country, and there are few forms of amusement, for a man who is not a fair athlete, and one of the pleasantest of these is to go to the races at Palermo. Then—and this is our point—if he wants to gamble there he can do so, but he must bet in ready money or not at all, whereas if he hangs about the city he can gamble with dice or cards and probably get a certain amount of credit, or "play paper" as it is called) i.e., pay in cheques or I.O.U.'s, which is a far worse form of gambling than the former, for it is when a man has lost more than he has, and more than he can conveniently raise, that he helps himself to the office till, but it is seldom that he goes there with malice aforethought to get a bit wherewith to back the "dead-snip" he knows of for Sunday.

Just now the papers are full of gush as to the alarming proportions to which gambling has risen in this Republic, and we are continually hearing people holding forth on the subject, and telling us that there never yet was anyone to equal the Argentine in this respect. For the benefit of these we quote a paragraph from an Australian paper, which we think proves conclusively that in that respect the British Colonies in the Southern Hemisphere can go one better than this Republic. The "Sydney Referee" writes: "We in New South Wales during the regime of Joseph Cook as Postmaster-General drove away "Tattersall" from our shores, and lost thereby a big revenue for the Post Office. That Tattersall's sweeps, even since the removal of their headquarters to the tight little island of Tasmania help to swell the revenue of this colony is shown by New South Wales postal notes having been presented on his behalf at the G.P.O., Sydney, on two days in May, to the number of 13,500, representing £5,290, and during June postal notes having been issued here in his favour for a total of £17,450, numbering 45,569."

Lester Reiff, the crack American jockey, who was first in the winning list last year, with 143 wins out of 549 mounts, and has just annexed the great Derby, is only 19 years old. His brother Johnny Reiff is only 13, yet he rode 124 winners out of 601 mounts, and so stands fourth on the percentage list. The result is that these youngsters have between them cleared over £40,000. One race alone—the Prince of Wales' Stakes, won by Johnny Reiff, was worth £10,000 besides the gold cup, worth £500. He wrote to his parents that he expected to get £1000 for winning it. The Reiff boys are about the only American jockeys, except Danny Maher, who have not been absolutely spoilt by good fortune. They both own wonderfully long heads, have saved most of their money, and have been devoting their off time this last winter to improving their education in Paris. It seems wonderful for a boy to have made enough money to live on for the rest of his life at a time when most men are just beginning their career, but it is all true, and there are piles to be made in the pigskin even here did our youngsters know how to go about it.

A curious accident happened at the June race meeting at the Curragh, Ireland. In the Kirwan Stakes, Mr. Jefferies ran a horse, called Jockey of Norfolk. His jockey, H. Gurnham, was annoyed by the horse's sulking at the post, and matters between steed and rider at last got so hot that the delay became irritating; and the jockey called to a man standing near to instigate him a bit with a stick. To onlookers the incident appeared most peculiar, and extraordinarily ill-judged. The bystander, whom Gurnham addressed, seemed as if afraid of approaching too near the fractious one, and finally flung the stick, ferule foremost, at the horse, who swerved at the precise moment and received the missile in the belly, which it etnered, with a sad and horrifying result—the hapless animal succumbing shortly afterwards to the injury.

FOOTBALL

BELGRANO A.C. v. H.M.S. CAMBRIAN.

This Rugby match was played last Sunday at La Plata. Unfortunately the temporary ground the Cambrian men have is not of the finest description for scientific football, being only about 80 yards in length, and having a deep open ditch close behind the touch line at one end, which was to say, the least of it, somewhat dangerous. Under these circumstances, it is not to be wondered at that the scoring was rather heavy. Belgrano were much the heavier team, and playing far better together, out-manoeuvred their opponents at all points, their forwards continually carrying the scrimmages. However, it was a very pleasant match, and the sailors played up with great pluck, and are evidently in fine condition.

The final score was 26 points (two goals, a dropped goal and a try) in favour of Belgrano. In the first half, Roberts and Im Thurn gained tries for the visitors, from the first of which Fothergill kicked a goal, and Jones, after a good run, got in for the Cambrian, but the try was not improved upon. Reil was first to get behind in the second period, and Fothergill kicked a second goal for his side. Im Thurn was the next to add a minor point. Then Halahan replied by dropping a goal. But directly afterwards Duggan ran in, and a few minutes later Fothergill dropped a goal. Just before time, Jones again scored a try for the Cambrian, but it was not improved on, and the game finished as stated above. After the match, the Belgrano men were most hospitably entertained on board the Cambrian.

The sides were:—

Cambrian—

Back—Jones.

Three-quarter backs—Bowen, Pennell, Halahan and Jenkins.

Half-backs—Coomber and Neil.

Forwards—Finch, Hicks, Salter, Bounday, Lang, Richards, Moore and Parslev.

Belgrano—

Back—Bouwer.

Three-quarter backs—Jones, Neele, Fowler and Fothergill.

Half-backs—Carthoys and Dorning.

Forwards—Brodie, Im Thurn, Roberts, Williams, Fowler, Roberts jr., Duggan and Forrester.

Referee—L. Corry Smith.

B.A.F.C. v. LOMAS A.C.

This important Championship match was played last Sunday at Flores, and attracted a considerable amount of interest. This match was really for the purpose of seeing which of the above Clubs has to send a team to Rosario next Sunday to compete in the Semi-final, and public opinion seemed to be in favour of Lomas.

B. A. had to take the field without their full-back, but Lomas were up to full strength, although they were most unfortunate in losing the services of Miller who, we regret to say, sprained his ankle and had to leave the field.

The ground was in splendid condition for a fast game, although on the hard side, but the sun was a trifle strong and affected the players considerably.

A. Anderson won the toss for Lomas, and decided to defend the Pavilion goal. Bellamy kicked off, and Lomas were soon attacking. Judicious kicking by the B. A. backs kept the Lomasites at bay, although more than once he looked very dangerous. At length the B. A. forwards got going, and with several combined rushes took play to well inside the Lomas lines. It was here that Miller, in being tackled, most unfortunately sprained his ankle and had to be taken off the field. This was a sad blow to Lomas, as Miller was doing excellent work as forward, both in the pack and in the open. Continuing B. A. kept up the attack, but time and again lost their advantage by carelessness in making their opponents out of touch. Ding-dong play continued of not a very interesting description from the spectators' point of view, and when the whistle sounded for half-time no score had been registered.

After a short interval play was resumed and B. A. at once attacked, although a weak return by Morton nearly cost them dearly. A good forward rush in which Bellamy and Allardice were prominent, took play to the Lomas twenty-five, and in some loose play that ensued, J. O. Anderson picked up and dropped a goal amidst loud cheers.

This reverse seemed to take all heart out of the Lomas forwards, and when F. Jacobs retired from the front rank, B. A. had matters almost entirely their own way. After a long attack Elliot got possession and using his knee to advantage, slipped through his opponents and scored some way out. J. O. Anderson took the kick, but failed to convert.

After this Lomas never got a look in. Bellamy twice and Lottermoser got over, but could not score, being well tackled and five-yard scrums were given, while Morton ran over also, but lost the ball.

B. A. were still attacking, when the final whistle sounded, leaving them victorious by a dropped goal and a try (seven points) to nil.

For the winners Elliot, Anderson, Ponce de Leon and Heriot were the pick of the outsiders, while Bellamy, Edge and Allardice worked hard forward, and were well backed up by the Blagdens and Lottermoser.

For the losers A. Anderson was very good as full-back and kicked well. MacMorran was the pick of the three-quarters, and Iles shone at half-back. The brothers Jacobs and Pfeiffer were the best of a useful pack of forwards.

Mr. F. Leitch acted as referee to the satisfaction of all concerned, and Messrs. Denny Stokes and J. Tait looked after the lines.

The following were the teams:

- Lomas A.C.—
 Back—A. Anderson.
 3/4 backs—H. B. Anderson, A. J. MacMorran, H. Cowes, L. Jacobs.
 1/2 backs—B. A. Iles and H. Mohr Bell.
 Forwards—F. Jacobs, A. Miller, R. J. Thurburn, O. W. J. Pfeiffer, C. H. Campbell, J. Campbell, J. Darbyshire, L. Mohr Bell.
- B. A. F. C.—
 Back—F. de C. Heriot.
 3/4 backs—G. F. Eliot, J. O. Anderson, J. Morton and H. Edye.
 1/2 backs—L. Ponce de Leon and M. Aron.
 Forwards—J. C. Bellamy, F. Corry Smith, A. Allardice, C. Edye, G. Blagden, R. Blagden, C. F. Lottermoser and T. Carr.

ASSOCIATION.

BELGRANO 2ND XI v. PORTEÑOS A.C.

At Belgrano on Sunday the return match was played between these two clubs before a fair attendance of spectators. The home side proved much too strong for their opponents, and won easily by six goals to one. For the winners, Messervy scored three goals, and Forrester, Penco and Kidd one each, while Tyrell made the point for the Porteños.

Mr. W. H. Ewe kindly acted as referee.

The sides were:—

- Belgrano—
 Goal—R. F. Dorning.
 Backs—Weir and W. Paff.
 Half-backs—H. Fraser, J. Baldock.
 Forwards—F. G. Messervy, A. Kidd, J. Penco, J. Rugeroni and Forrester.
- Porteños—
 Goal—E. Belerdi.
 Backs—E. Bowkett, M. Tyrell.
 Half-backs—H. Hughes, J. McAllister, T. Geoghegan.
 Forwards—T. Geoghegan, M. Lacano, J. Shilton, F. Kenny, E. Lavery.

ENGLISH HIGH SCHOOL v. ST. ANDREW'S ACADEMY.

These two schools met on Sunday at Caballito to play their match in the Third Division of the League, and, after a spirited and well contested game, the St. Andrew's Academy were returned the victors by three goals to two. A. Clark (2) and P. Bell, were the scorers for the winners, while A. Hutton and H. Gahan made the goals for the High School. Unfortunately, just before half-time, A. Brown, the High School captain and full-back, was injured and had to retire, so his side were obliged to play with only ten men for most of the game, which probably affected the result.

The following were the teams:

- English High School—
 Goal—E. Mautz.
 Backs—P. Miranda and A. C. Brown (Captain).
 Half-backs—H. Peluffo, H. Gahan, E. D. Brown.
 Forwards—J. James, A. Hutton, G. Morgan, R. Blanco, J. Llorente.
 Reserve—F. Cools.
- St. Andrew's Academy—
 Goal—J. Dodds.
 Backs—J. Sinclair and R. Green.
 Half-backs—W. Gomez, A. Coelho, H. Grant.
 Forwards—P. Bell, A. Bell, A. Clark, J. Santos, D. Sinclair (Captain).

SAN MARTIN v. BARRACAS A.C.

These teams met at San Martin on Sunday in lovely weather, and, after a pleasant game, Barracas ran out winners by four goals to one. In the first half Potter scored twice for Barracas, so they crossed over with the score 2-0 in their favour.

MacKinnon opened the San Martin account in the second half, and then a third goal was added to the Barracas score by Rugeroni kicking through his own goal, and finally Doyle added a fourth goal for his side, and the whistle blew with the score 4-1 in favour of Barracas.

Mr. Addecott carried out the duties of referee to the satisfaction of everyone. The teams were:

- Barracas—
 Goal—I. Euforia.
 Backs—T. Burns and G. Hearne.
 Half-backs—C. Thompson, J. Doyle, R. A. Brooking.
 Forwards—W. F. Heslop, W. Diggs, E. Potter, R. Macdonald, S. O. Bridge.
- San Martin—
 Goal—E. Schett.
 Backs—A. J. Rugeroni and A. Boutell.
 Half-backs—J. C. Labat, F. J. Grimsditch, G. R. Roberts.
 Forwards—J. W. Breckon, S. Mackinnon, J. McLean, E. Grimsditch, J. H. McLean.

LOMAS 2ND v. ESTUDIANTES.

This Second League match was played on Sunday at Lomas, and, after a scrambling game, resulted in Gonzalez scoring twice for Estudiantes, and Tannahill and Rodman once each for Lomas.

Mr. J. H. Williams was referee. The following were the teams:

- Estudiantes—
 Goal—S. Sanchez.
 Backs—S. Angel and P. McCarthy.
 Half-backs—M. Flaherty, F. Clarke, W. S. Harris.
 Forwards—A. Arcuri, T. Gonzalez, S. Martin, T. Hardy, E. O'Farrell.
- Lomas—
 Goal—C. Gibson.
 Backs—J. Rodman and J. Thomas.
 Half-backs—R. Rodman, D. Jones, W. Evans.
 Forwards—W. Hunter, J. H. Hinds, J. M. Tannahill, J. Nobili, C. Sterling.

A GOLF STANZA.

After the ball is over—
 The hedge just across the way.
 After you've searched an hour
 (For that's the fifth one that day),
 Many a man has spoken
 Words he'd fain recall,
 When on the links he's been searching—
 After the ball!

ESTANCIA AND COLONY

We regret to say that the inundations in the Chubut district are assuming graver proportions than at first expected. The town of Rawson is completely flooded and the Government offices have had to be abandoned. There is also much alarm lest the bridge should be washed away, which would be a very serious matter. In the neighbourhood of the town hundreds of people have been obliged to abandon their homes and seek refuge on the high ground.

The action of the agent of Messrs. Baring Bros. and Co. against the Curumalan Estancia Co., which we mentioned in these notes last week, is, as we suspected, nothing more than a matter of form, and in reality in no way affects the position of the Curumalan Co.

The recent frosts are bringing a tale of woe from both estancieros and chacareros alike. In the provinces of Buenos Aires and Santa Fé the young linseed has suffered severely, and in the latter province coming on the top of a two months' drought puts the estancieros in a sorry plight. Pasture is cut down to nothing, and cattle already thin will suffer heavily if the weather does not shortly change, and many a man will be skinning instead of sending his cattle rolling fat to the markets as he expected. In Santa Fé the ground is so hard and dry that it is impossible to put in the wheat, so altogether the outlook for many of our camp friends is the reverse of rosy.

Not very long ago $10,000 was considered a good price for a league of camp in the Pampa Central, yet last week a sale was concluded by Mr. G. Berraondo, of two leagues in Seccion 3 of that district, for $35,000, Mr. J. Vanori being the buyer. This conclusively proves how these outside camps are rising in price, and in our opinion carefully selected there is no doubt even under these conditions that they will prove profitable investments.

For the period of one year the Minister of Agriculture has prohibited the importation of any class of animal from Spain, or that may have been in direct or indirect contact with animals from that country. Vessels that ship such cattle on board for meat during the voyage, or for whatever other purpose, must slaughter them before entering Argentine waters. Vessels that may have shipped animals in Spanish ports prior to 30th July are to be inspected in the outer roads and such animals shall be allowed to land only when found to be in good sanitary condition.

Talking about quarantine at the present time, there are no less than three shipments of fine stock in Montevideo. Two from England and one from North America, all in quarantine. The two former, we believe, belong to Messrs. Hughes and Miller respectively, and we conclude are intended for Uruguay, as surely they can hardly expect to land them at this port under present circumstances. The shipment from North America was, we hear, intended for this country, but rumour says the authorities will not allow it to be landed. We wonder why this is so, are Canada and the United States too close to the United Kingdom, or is this pressure applied with the object of opening European ports? If the latter is the case, we sincerely hope it may succeed.

What a farce some of the restrictions for the prevention of cattle-diseases are in this country! We heard of a case the other day of an estanciero, who is lucky enough to own an estancia in this republic and another in the Banda Oriental, who being short of good bulls on the other side, wished to send some of his fine stock from here across. Well, this he was not allowed to do by river steamer direct, but was compelled to first send his bulls to Montevideo, where they underwent 40 days' quarantine. At the end of this time, the quarantined bulls were sent back to the infected port, Buenos Aires, and disembarked at that port, where they awaited the river boat to take them to their original destination!! Comments are needless.

The trade in the export of butter from this country is increasing so rapidly that it may interest our readers to see a few statistics of the Victorian Trade in Australia. The wonderful strides that have been made in this industry in that British colony ought to be a great incentive to those interested in this branch of business to apply all the energies they possess to develop a trade that promises in the near future to rival any that we have at the present time in this country. The foundation of the industry is the cream separator, which has made possible the handling of quantities of milk that would appal a dairyman of the old school. The separator has lifted butter-making from being an uncertain adjunct of the farm or estancia to the position of primary importance.

When the butter industry was first started in Australia, the Government extended a helping hand, and a bonus of one penny per pound was paid on all butter imported, while assistance was also given to build factories. The season following the erection of the first factory—1889-90—369 1/4 tons of butter, valued at £51,300 were exported to England. The trade was at once successful. New factories and creameries sprang up all over the country, and the dairy herds increased both in number and size. The following table shews the growth of the export trade:—

Season	Tons	Value £
1889-90	369	51,300
1890-91	759	91,200
1891-92	2,139	225,500
1892-94	3,613	404,432
1893-94	7,652	761,273
1894-95	11,584	1,081,243
1895-96	9,386	901,000
1896-97	9,895	942,247
1897-98	7,175	670,000
1898-99	8,880	888,000
1899-1900	17,107	1,604,600
1900-01	16,000	1,480,500
	95,426	9,036,695

More than two-thirds of Australian exported butter goes to England. Every year the Agricultural Department issues a list of the destination of the butter exported. Some of the most interesting figures for 1900 are:

	Pounds
United Kingdom	26,185,679
Inter-State	5,716,222
South Africa	4,745,107
India	158,000
Straits Settlements	138,894
Philippine Islands	499,797
China	22,304

The Government has retained a supervisory power over the export trade, and all butter intended for shipment is inspected by the departmental expert. As showing the uniform good quality of the butter, the Government extract for the season 1899-1900 is subjoined:

Quantity	Points allotted out of a possible 100	Percentage of whole
10,988	95-100	79.97
1,774	90-95	12.91
956	85-90	6.96
22	Pastry	.16
13,740		100.00

The importance of the industry is well illustrated by the rise in land values. Up to 1892 when the success of the export trade began to be assured, first class grazing land was worth between £20 and £25 per acre, with a rental value of from 15s. to £1 per acre. Now the same land is selling freely at from £30 to £45 per acre, and £2 per acre is easily obtainable as rent. The latest figures available show that there are in the state about 30,000 dairymen, something about 450,000 cows and feeding about 350,000 pigs, and the total quantity of milk produced yearly is about 100,000,000 gallons, which includes the milk made into cheese.

Some of our camp readers may be interested to hear that the care which is usually taken to keep the hoof of a horse in a normal state is not only for the most part wasted, but is more often than not decidedly mischievous. The treatment of the horse's foot in its perfectly healthy condition may be summed up in a few words. Exclude all stoppings and hoof ointment from the stable, and keep the surface of the hoof horn free from dirt by washing with cold water as often as may be necessary for that purpose. Something further, however, is required for the maintenance of a healthy condition of the hoof horn under the ordinary circumstances of the equine life. Horses are required to perform various kinds of hard work, and although they are far better provided by nature than their human owners are with protective covering, they nevertheless, like the human being, require some artificial appliances for the purpose of preventing damage to the sensitive structures.

Estancia, etc—2

The man who regularly stops the bottom of the feet with mixtures, in which manure plays a large part, is merely wasting time, and the man who anoints the front of the feet with a mixture of tar, tallow, or lamp black, is not only doing a perfectly useless piece of work, but is stopping up the open mouths of numerous horn tubes, which terminate on the surface, thus preventing the entrance of natural moisture, and helping rather to render the horn brittle than to preserve its elasticity. The art of shoeing is very important, and from remote times it has attracted the attention of experts who have had before them the problem of applying a substance to the bottom of the hoof in such a manner as not to interfere with its normal functions, at the same time to offer sufficient resistance to prevent the hoof itself suffering from attrition.

In the preparation of the foot for the shoe, after the removal of the old shoe, it is now universally recognised that the old practice of paring the sole out until it assumes a concave form, and yields to the pressure of the thumb, is contrary to common sense, and has long since been abandoned. The rasp is employed to the lower crust at the toe, heel, or quarters, as may be required, the sole itself and the frogs are left as much as possible undisturbed excepting where pieces of ragged horn require removal. Probably it will be seen that the foot is too long in front, and too low in the heel, obviously in such a case shortening of the toe is required. In the case of a foot which has been allowed to grow unchecked for a long time it may be necessary to correct the excessive growth in a wrong direction by degrees, and several shoeings at an interval of three weeks or a month will be necessary before the error can be properly corrected. Extreme obliquity of the fetlocks, for instance, turning the knees inwards or outwards, may often, to a considerable extent, be modified by lowering the crust of the inside or outside quarters, as the case may be. A tendency to "going over at the knees" may also, to a certain extent, be modified by shortening the toes, and allowing the heels to grow down.

THE "BUCHANAN" BLEND SCOTCH WHISKY

"Our analysis shows this to be a remarkably pure spirit, and therefore well adapted for medicinally dietetic purposes. It contains a very small proportion of extractive matters, while the acidity is practically NIL. The actual results of analysis were as follows: Alcohol, by weight 38.78 per cent., by volume 46.02 per cent., equal to proof spirit 80.64 per cent.; extractives 0.21 per cent.; mineral matter NIL; acidity reckoned as acetic acid, 0.027 per cent. The spirit whilst free from injurious and crude products, possesses a delicate and smooth flavour, owing partly to skill in blending and partly to the maturing effects of storage for some years in wood."
